ALBERT STILLMAN BATCHELLOR,

EDITOR OF STATE PAPERS.

CONCORD:

EDWARD N. PEARSON, PUBLIC PRINTER. 1895.

JOINT RESOLUTION relating to the preservation and publication of portions of the early state and provincial records and other state papers of New Hampshire.

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court convened:

That His Excellency the Governor be hereby authorized and empowered, with the advice and consent of the Council, to employ some suitable person, and fix his compensation, to be paid out of any money in the treasury not otherwise appropriated, to collect, arrange, transcribe, and superintend the publication of such portions of the early state and provincial records and other state papers of New Hampshire as the Governor may deem proper, and that eight hundred copies of each volume of the same be printed by the state printer, and distributed as follows: namely, one copy to each city and town in the state, one copy to such of the public libraries in the state as the Governor may designate, fifty copies to the New Hampshire Historical Society, and the remainder placed in the custody of the state librarian, who is hereby authorized to exchange the same for similar publications by other states.

Approved August 4, 1881.

PREFACE.

The character of the papers published in the series of which this is the second volume, and their relations and value in the documentary history of the state, were the subjects of comment in the preface to the volume immediately preceding this. In that publication were included the township charters or grants issued by the government of Massachusetts in the period when its jurisdiction was asserted over territory north of the present boundary line, and a part of the charters emanating from the provincial government of New Hampshire. An alphabetical arrangement was adopted as one that would render the documents most readily accessible to such as might have occasion to consult them in the printed form. It was found that only a part of the New Hampshire charters proper, could be included in the preced-Those falling under the letters A to E inclusive, however, found Those remaining are included in the present volume. Important place there. historical documents and the results of researches in the early history of the state by eminent students of that epoch are given in the appendix. The notes under each town title are of the same character as those which are found in the former volume. They contain numerous citations to authorities in local and general history relative to the several towns. While it is not to be presumed that a complete exposition of titles in our local history has been accomplished in these notes, it may be said that they are the result of a careful examination of the best accessible collections of works devoted to local history, and of an extensive correspondence with those supposed to be the best informed in this class of literature. The plan of illustration and indexing is that previously followed. The Blanchard and Langdon, Jeffries, and Holland maps of the province were reprinted for volume XXIV, and accompany it. They are useful as aids to an understanding of the grouping of the towns which were the subjects of grants by New Hampshire, Massachusetts, or Masonian authority, and which appear in the current series of publications. The volumes to follow will include, first, the grants made in the disputed territory west of the Connecticut River and known in history as the New Hampshire Grants, and next in order, the so-called Masonian Grants.

In the prosecution of this work the editor has realized the value of official co-operation from His Excellency Charles A. Busiel and all the members of his council. To the other gentlemen named and to the many to whom, on former occasions, a more general allusion was made as efficient coadjutors in connection with the preparation of preceding volumes, the assurance of a continuing sense of obligation is most cordially renewed.

(Cockermouth Extended) *George the Third by the Grace of God of Great Britain France and Ireland King Defender of the Faith &c.

To all to whom these Presents shall come Greeting

Whereas we of our special grace certain knowledge & mere Motion for the due encouragement of settling a New Plantation within our said Province of New Hampshire

by our Letters Patent or Charter under the Seal of our said Province Dated the 22^d day of November 1766, in the seventh year of our Reign, Did grant a Tract of Land equal to Six Miles square, bounded as therein express'd to a number of our loyal Subjects whose Names are enter'd on the same, to Hold to them their Heirs & Assigns on the Conditions therein declared to be a Town Corporate by the Name of Cockermouth as by referrence to the said Charter may more fully appear. And whereas the said Grantees have represented unto us that by reason of the great Inconveniencies which occur in the settlement of New Townships so remotely situated from any other Settlements that can afford any assistance hath render'd it impracticable for the whole Number of Grantees to perform that part of the Conditions that relates to the Cultivation of such a proportion of the said Grant; that there is a considerable number of Families now resident on the Premises, weh affords them hopes of a final Settlement without delay & humbly supplicating us not to take advantage of the breach of said Conditions, *but to lengthen out and grant them some further Time for the performance thereof; all which being duly Consider'd.

Know ye that We being willing to encourage & promote the Cultivation and Settlement of the said Tract, have of our further Grace and Favour suspended our claim of the forfeiture which the said Grantees may have Incurred, & by these Presents for us our Heirs and Successors, (by and with the advice of our Trusty and well beloved John Wentworth Esq' our Governor & Commander in Chief of our said Province & of our Council of the same) do grant unto the said Grantees, their Heirs and Assigns the further Term of Three Years from the date hereof for performing and fulfilling the Conditions Matters & Things by them to be done as aforesaid; Except the Quit Rents, which are to remain due & payable as express'd & reserved in the Original Grant or Charter

In Testimony whereof We have caused the Seal of our said Province to be hereunto affixed Witness our Governor & Commander in Cheif aforesaid the 24th day of January in the 12th year of our Reign Annoque Domini 1772.

HINSDALE.

[This town was included in the original grant of Northfield, Mass. Incorporated as Hindsdale September 3, 1753, and named in honor of Col. Ebenezer Hindsdale. September 26, 1753, the governor decided that the east line should extend to Chesterfield, thus taking off a portion of Winchester; and the town was incorporated on that date. On the establishment of the State of Vermont and the final determination of its jurisdiction, the town lost all of its territory west of the Connecticut.

[Granted by Massachusetts as Upper Ashuelot April 20, 1733. Incorporated as Keene April 11, 1753, and named in honor of Sir Benjamin Keene. The northeast corner was included in the limits of Sullivan, incorporated Sept. 27, 1787. Another portion, with parts of Nelson and Marlborough, went to make up the town of Roxbury, Dec. 9, 1812. A part of Swanzey was annexed Dec. 10, 1812. An act was passed July 1, 1868, by which the town of Roxbury was to be annexed to Keene whenever the provisions of the act were adopted by a majority of voters in both towns, but this has not yet been done. A city charter was granted July 1, 1865, but was not adopted till July 3, 1873.

*Province of New \ GEORGE the Third by the grace *1-347 Hampshire \ of God of Great Britain France and Ireland King Defender of the ffaith and so forth.

L. S. Whereas we of our special grace and mere extended motion for the due encouragement of setling a new Plantation within our Prov: of New Hampshire in New England by our Letters Patent or Charter under the Seal of our said Province Dated the 5th day of July Annoque Domini 1763 in the Third year of our Reign; a Tract of Land equal to six miles square bounded as therein expressd (& since survey'd, admeasured, marked & ascertained by our Order to Isaac Rindge Esq^r our Surveyor Gen¹ of Lands for our said Province) Granted to a number of our Loyal subjects whose Names are enter'd on the same to hold to them their Heirs and Assigns on the Conditions therein Declared, and to be a Town Corporate by the name of Lancaster, as by referrence to the said Charter may more fully appear. And whereas the said Grantees have represented unto us that by reason of the great Inconveniencies which occur in the Settlement of New Townships so remotely situated from any other Townships or Settlements that can afford any Assistance hath render'd it impracticable for the whole number of Grantees to perform that part of the Conditions that relates to the Cultivation of such a proportion of the said Grant. That there are a Considerable number of Families now resident on the Premises, which affords them hopes of a final Settlement without delay. And humbly supplicating us not to take advantage of the breach of said Condition, but to lengthen out, and grant them some further Time for the performance thereof. Now Know YE that we being willing to promote the end proposed Have of our further Grace and favour suspended our Claim of the forfeiture which the said Grantees may have incurr'd, and by these Presents Do Grant unto the said Grantee their Heirs and Assigns the further Term of Five Years from this Date for performing and fulfilling the Conditions, matters and things by them to be done as aforesaid.-Except the Quit Rents, which are to remain due and payable as express'd and reserv'd in the Original Grant or Charter.

[Grant of Landaff to Dartmouth College, 1770.]

*4-38 *Province of New Hampshire.

George the Third by the grace of God of Great Britain firance and Ireland King Defender of the (Landaff) faith & so forth.

To all People to whom these Presents shall Come, Greeting.

Whereas many liberal and pious donations both in Europe and America have been made for the purpose of civilizing and educating Indians, and for the furtherance of learning & christian knowledge; And whereas the most extensive good will undoubtedly result from such a wise and generous design, both to the cause of Christianity and knowledge, and also to our Service and the permanent Security of our Colonies: by reclaiming the Savages to virtuous knowledge and social subordination to the Laws, and also enabling our good subjects in those remote parts of our Dominions to acquire Learning, and thereby preventing their insensibly and unavoidably sinking into an illiterate and savage State, unhappy to themselves and dangerously dishonorable to good Government: And whereas a College hath by us been Incorporated and erected by the name of Dartmouth College, under the great Seal of our said Province, for these and many other equally worthy and commendable purposes of the like nature Now know ye that for these Purposes we of our special grace certain knowledge and mere motion, and for the due encouragement of setling a new Plantation within our said province by and with the advice of our Trusty and well beloved John Went-WORTH Esq^r our Governor and Commander in chief in and over our said Province of New Hampshire in New England and of our Council of the same, Have upon the Conditions and reservations herein after made, given and granted and by these Presents for us our Heirs and Successors do give and grant as a Public Donation to the Trustees of Dartmouth College (lately incorporated and erected within this our said Province) and to their Successors in that Trust for the use and benefit of said College and to their Assigns, a certain Tract or parcel of Land commonly called and known by the name of Landaff, situate, lying and being within our said Province and containing by admeasurement Twenty five thousand two hundred and forty seven Acres, three roods and ten perches out of which an allowance is to be made for Highways and unimproveable Lands by rocks, Ponds, mountains and rivers One thousand and forty Acres free according to a plan and Survey thereof exhibited by our Surveyor General of Lands for our said Province *by our said Governor's Order and returned into the Secry's Office a Copy whereof is hereunto annexed butted and bounded as follows Vizt Beginning at the Southeasterly corner of Gunthwaite at a beech tree and running North Sixty two degrees West by said Gunthwaite Eight miles and thirty six rods to a beech tree at the South Westerly corner of Gunthwaite and North Easterly corner of Bath, from thence South Two degrees East Six miles and fifty six Rods to a Spruce Tree the South Easterly corner of Bath, from thence South fifty five degrees East six miles to a Stake, from thence North Easterly to the bounds first mentioned. To have and to hold the said Tract of Land as above expressed together with all the Priviledges and Appurtenances to them the said Trustees of said Dartmouth College in their

said Capacity and to their Successors in the said Trust & to their

Assigns for the use and benefit of the said College for ever; by the name of Landaff, upon the following Terms, Conditions and Reservations Viz^t

First. That there shall be setled & resident on the Premises Sixty Families by the expiration of four Years viz^t Twelve Families in One Year from the first day of March next; also Twelve Families more in the next Year viz^t by the first day of March 1772, also Twelve Families more in the Third year Viz^t by the first day of March 1773, and also Twenty four Families more in the fourth year namely by the first day of March which will be in the year of our Lord 1774; on penalty of the forfeiture of any and every delinquent's Share and of such Share or Shares reverting to us our Heirs and Successors to be by us or them enter'd upon and regranted to such of our Subjects as shall effectually settle and cultivate the same.

SECOND That all white and other Pine Trees within the said Township fit for masting our Royal Navy be carefully preserved for that use & none to be cut or felled without our special Licence for so doing first had and obtained; on penalty of the forfeiture of the right of any Proprietor, Setler or Possessor to us our Heirs and Successors as well as being subject to the penalties prescribed by any present as well as future Act or Acts of Parliament.

THIRD That a Site for a Town Plot be within one year laid out by the Trustees in such part of the said Township as they shall find best for Settlement of at least One Hundred and fifty families; to each one Acre.—which Town Plot shall be laid out in Streets

*4-40 parallel to each other, so as to intersect at Right Angles; the Two *middle Streets to be one hundred and Thirty feet wide: and all other Streets to be at lest Sixty feet wide.

*I-408 *Province of New \ George the Third by the Grace Hampshire \ of God of Great Britain France & Ireland King Defender of the Faith &c.

To all to whom these Presents shall come Greeting.

Whereas we of our special Grace certain Knowl-(Lempster edge and mere Motion for the due encouragement Extended.) of settling a New Plantation within our said Province of New Hampshire by our Letters Patent or Charter under the Seal of our said Province Dated the 5th day of January 1767 in LEMPSTER. 229

the seventh year of our Reign, did grant a Tract of Land equal to Six Miles square, bounded as therein express'd to a number of our loyal Subjects, whose Names are enter'd on the same, to Hold to them their Heirs & Assigns on the Conditions therein declared to be a Town Corporate by the Name of Lempster, as by referrence to the said Charter may more fully appear. And whereas it hath been represented unto us that the difficulties which have hitherto occur'd in the Settlement of the said Township are principally owing to the remote situation of the said Tract from any other Settlements that can afford any necessary assistance to the Grantees in the effectual prosecution of the Duties stipulated in their Charter, and from the want of Roads which they had to cut and clear, which prevented their travelling to their respective Lots; and also, the Improvement of the Premises was much retarded by the total delinquency of certain of the Grantees therein Named Vizt Alexander Steward, Alexander Steward Junior, Daniel Gates, Nathaniel Gates, Dudley Woodbridge, Oliver Woodbridge, John Steward and John Steward Junior, who have intirely neglected to cultivate improve or contribute in any wise towards the Settlement of the said Tract, by which means their respective Shares (agreeable to the Tenor of their Charter) are forfeited and revert to us to be regranted; & it appearing also, that there are Eight Families now settled and resident on the Premises & the said Grantees having likewise supplicated us not to take advantage of the breach of said Condition but to lengthen out and grant them some further Time for the performance thereof. *Therefore,

Know YE that We being willing to encourage and promote the Cultivation & Settlement of the said Tract, do hereby signify our taking the advantage of the forfeiture aforesaid, so far as relates to the Eight Shares of the said Delinquents, & have and do hereby exclude them respectively and by these Presents do admit in the room & stead of the said Delinquents, Namely, Bozenger Salter, John Southmayd, James Dickson, Nathaniel Sparrow, Richard Sparrow, James Sparrow, Peter Spencer and Cp't John Langdon Jun^r, and do grant to them the said admitted Grantees, the said Eight forfeited Shares to be equally divided to and amongst them, and to be held & possess'd by them their Heirs & Assigns on the same Conditions Reservations and Duties by which the other Grantees hold & are subject to: And have of our further Grace and Favour suspended our claim of the forfeiture which the said Grantees may have Incurred, and by these Presents do grant to them their Heirs and Assigns the Term of Three Years from the date hereof for performing & fulfilling the Conditions Matters and Things by them to be done as aforesaid; Except the Quit Rents which are to remain due and payable as express'd and reserved in the Original Grant or Charter, and Provided that one third of the Duty required by the said Original Grant be fully done the first Year, one third the Second Year, and the remaining third, the last Year.

In Testimony whereof We have Caused the Seal of our said Province to be hereunto affixed Witness John Wentworth Esq^r our Governor & Commander in Chief of our said Province of New Hampshire the 21st day of January in the 12th Year of our Reign Annoque Domini 1772.

[Granted as Concord August 6, 1763, to Joseph Burt and others. The same territory was granted as Chiswick January 31, 1764, to John Fansher and others. The Chiswick grant was regarded as made by mistake and ineffectual. The grant of territory adjoining (now Littleton and Dalton) by the same name was supposed to be equivalent to the first Chiswick. Regranted as Gunthwaite October 20, 1768, to Leonard Whiting and others. The Gunthwaite title gave way, and the Concord grant finally prevailed. The name was changed to Lisbon June 14, 1824. The line with Franconia was established June 27, 1826. All that part of Landaff northwest of the Ammonoosuc River was annexed to Lisbon June 23, 1859.

LONDONDERRY.

[Formerly known as Nutfield. Granted June 21, 1722, to John Moor and others, and named Londonderry from Londonderry in Ireland. The town was divided into two parishes Feb. 25, 1739-40. This act was partially repealed Nov. 6, 1778, and the bounds changed April 16, 1784. Windham was set off and incorporated as a parish Feb. 12, 1741-2. The northwest portion of the town, with other territory, was incorporated as Derryfield (now Manchester), Sept. 3, 1751. A portion was annexed to Hudson, March 6, 1778. Another part of the town was annexed to Windham Sept. 26, 1777, and Samuel Clark, with his estate, was also set off to Windham Nov. 26, 1778. The line between these two towns was established Nov. 22, 1782. A third section was annexed to Windham Dec. 25, 1805. Derry was set off and incorporated July 2, 1827. The line with Hudson was established June 27, 1857.

GEORGE the THIRD by the grace of God of Great Britain, France and Ireland King Defender of the faith and so forth

To All to whom these Presents shall come Greeting

Whereas we of our special grace certain knowledge and mere motion for the due encouragement of setling a new Planta within our said Province of New Hampshire by our Letters Patent or Charter under the Seal of our said Province Dated the 8th day of July 1761, in the first year of our Reign Did Grant a Tract of Land equal to six miles square, bounded as therein express'd to a number of our Loyal Subjects whose Names are enter'd on the same, to hold to them their Heirs and Assigns on the Conditions therein declared to be a Town Corporate by the Name of Lime as by reference to the said Charter may more fully appear,—And whereas it hath been represented unto us that the difficulties which have hitherto occurr'd in the settlement of the said Township are principally owing to the remote situation of the said Tract from any other Settlements that can afford any necessary assistance to the Grantees in the effectual prosecution of the Duties stipulated in their Charter, & from the want of Roads, which they had to cut and clear, which prevented their Travelling to their respective Lots; and also, that these delays are in some measure occasioned by sundry of the Grantees in the said Charter mentioned Vizt Joshua Shaw, Saml Shaw Jun Charles Gardner, Henry Thompson, Edwd Kavannah, James Patrick, Dunkin Quantun, Rufus Thompson, David Spear, David English and Samuel Shaw of Palmer, who have entirely neglected to cultivate, improve or contribute in any wise towards the settlement of the said Tract; by which means their respective Shares (agreable to the Tenor of their Charter,) are forfeited, and revert to us to be regranted; and it appearing also, that there are Twenty one families now setled & resident on the Premises—and the said Grantees having supplicated us not to take advantage of the breach of said Condition but to lengthen out & grant them some further time for the performance thereof. Therefore know ye that we being willing to encourage & promote the Cultivation & settlement of the said Tract, do hereby signify *our taking the advantage of the forfeiture aforesaid so far as relates to the Eleven Shares of the said Delinquents & have and

GEORGE the Third by the grace of God of Great Britain ffrance and Ireland King defender of the faith and so forth.

To all to whom these Presents shall come Greeting—

Whereas our loyal Subjects Inhabitants of a Tract of land heretofore Incorporated by the Name of Monson have Petitioned our Governor and Council of our said Province, setting forth, that in and about the centre of said Township, the land is so very barren & broken as to admit of scarce any Improvement, which renders it impracticable for their Civil or religious Polity and therefore humbly Pray that the said Town may be divided, and annexed to and Incorporated with the Towns of Amherst & Holles as is herein after expressed, said Town of Monson being between those Townships and adjoining to them respectively, and the said Towns of Amherst and Holles having been notified of said Petition, have signified their consent and desire that the Prayer thereof may be granted: And it appearing unto us to be conducive to the general good of our said Province, as well as of the said Inhabitants in particular, by maintaining good order & encouraging the culture of the Land.—That the same should be done—Therefore know YE that we of our special grace and mere motion and for encouraging and promoting the good purposes and ends aforesd (by and with the advice of our Trusty and wellbeloved John Wentworth Esquire our Governor and Commander in Chief, & of our Council of our said Province of New Hampshire) have ordained & declared and by these Presents do will, ordain & declare, that the said Town of Monson be and hereby is divided, and the Present Inhab^{ts} and those who shall here after Inhabit thereon, are accordingly set off in the following manner Vizt Beginning at the North east corner of said Town of Monson, then extending South by the Town of Merrimack two miles, then West, to the West line of said Monson, then North to Souhegan River, then down said River to the bounds first mentioned: be annex'd to the Town of Amherst: and that the remainder of said Monson be annexed to the Town of Holles. And the Inhabitants aforesaid according to the above division shall be held and deemed as part of the body politic of said Towns respectively, and are hereby entitled to hold & enjoy all Town Priviledges &c which any other of the Inhabitants of said Towns by Law hold and Enjoy. And shall also be subject to all the same Duties &c Provided nevertheless that nothing herein contained shall be construed to prevent the assessing and collecting the Province Taxe or Taxes that are or may be demanded for this present year, but that the same shall be Assessed and Collected as tho' these Presents had not issued.—In Testimony whereof we have caused the Seal of our said Province to be hereunto affixed Witness John Went-WORTH Esquire our Governor and Commander in chief aforesaid, the 4th day of July in the 10th year of our Reign Annoque Domini J' Wentworth.

[Granted by the Masonian Proprietors as Monadnock No. 6, May 10, 1752, to John Hutchinson and others. The grant was renewed Sept. 30, 1767, and again Feb. 23, 1774. Incorporated as Packersfield Feb. 22, 1774, and named in honor of Thomas Packer. The present name was adopted June 14, 1814, to take effect Oct. 1, 1814. In 1777 an unsuccessful attempt was made to change the name to Sullivan. The northwest part of the town, combined with the other territory, was incorporated as Sullivan Sept. 27, 1787. The southwest corner was combined with other territory to form the town of Roxbury Dec. 9, 1812. The line between Nelson and Roxbury was changed June 15, 1820, by which Nelson lost a small tract. A small piece of land was severed from Stoddard and annexed to Nelson June 25, 1835.

[Newport Charter Renewed, 1769.]

*Province of New } GEORGE the Third by the Grace *1-331 Hampshire } of God of Great Britain France and Ireland King Defender of the Faith & Can

Whereas we of our special Grace and mere motion for the due encouragement of setling a New Plantation within our Prove of New Hampshire (Newport by our Letters Patent or Charter under the seal of extended) our said Province Dated the 6th day of October 1761 in the first year of our Reign, a Tract of Land equal to six miles Square bounded as therein expressed (and since survey'd, Admeasured, marked and ascertain'd by our Order to Isaac Rindge Esq^r our Surveyor General of Lands for said Province) Granted to a number of our Loyal Subjects whose Names are entered on the same to hold to them their Heirs and Assigns on the Conditions therein declar'd, and to be a Town Corporate by the name of Newport as by reference to the said Charter may more fully appear— And whereas the said Grantees have represented unto us that by Reason of the great Inconveniencies which occur in the settlement of New Townships so remotely situated from any other Townships or settlements that can afford any Assistance, hath rendered it impracticable for the whole Number of Grantees to perform that part of the Conditions that relates to the Cultivation of such a proportion of the said Grant—That there are Fifteen Families now Setled on the Premises; which affords them hopes of a final Settlement without delay. And Humbly Supplicating us not to take advantage of the breach of said Condition, but to lengthen out and grant them some further time for the performance thereof.

Now know ye that we being willing to promote the end proposed Have of our further Grace and favor suspended our Claim of the forfeiture which the said Grantees may have Incurr'd, and by these Presents Do Grant unto the said Grantees their heirs and Assigns the further Term of Four Years from this Date for performing & fullfilling the Conditions, matters and things by them to be done as aforesaid Except the Quit Rents which are to remain due and Payable as express'd and reserved in the Original Grant or Charter.

In Testimony whereof we have caused the Seal of our said Province to be hereunto affixed Witness John Wentworth Esq our Governor and Commander in Chief this 2nd day of 1-331 February in the 9th Year of our Reign Annoque Domini 1769—

[Petition from Selectmen of Newtown, 1771.]

[Farmer's Mss. Town Papers, Vol. 6, p. 237.]

Province of New ? To his Excellency John Wentworth Esq: 5 Captain General, Governor, & Commander Hampshire in chief in & over his Majesty's Province of New Hampshire; & the Honourable his Majesty's Council; & House of Representatives, in general Assembly convened.

We the subscribers, being the Selectmen of Newtown, & acting on behalf of said Town, do hereby signify that we can by no means consent that a Committee be sent to run a line between us & South Hampton, laid under the restrictions which South Hampton hath, in their Petition propos'd. For, whenever there is a line established between us & them we hope to be strengthned by it, & think it highly reasonable that we should.

There is a number of Families between Poe River & our meeting house, (now of South-Hampton) whom we apprehend should of right belong to us.

We exceedingly need them (being much weakened by a large separation); while South-Hampton, we suppose, can well enough spare them, their Ministerial charges being quite low compared with ours.

They were originally of us, & would have been so now if a Minister had been settled here at the time there was one there; or, had there been at that time only a good prospect of the Settlement of one.

They desire to belong to us, & for this have earnestly Petition'd—They owe their religious Priveledges, of a publick nature to us—They are more convenient to our Meeting House than to their own; the far greater part in regard to length of way, & all, a great deal, in regard to the goodness of it.

Therefore, we imagine tis fitting that we should have such a line as will annex these People to Newtown.

And we not only think so ourselves, but a Committee formerly sent by the general Court, to judge of this matter, thought so too, observing that nature had marked out a line between said towns, & made report that Poe River should be it.

And it seems that South-Hampton are at least suspicious, that any honest impartial Committee, would be of the same Mind, or else (considering the mighty inconveniences, of which they complain in their Petition, on account of there not being a line) they would consent to submit this matter to the judgment of an unbiased Committee of the Courts appointing, without laying it under any restrictions at all; which is a proposal that we have often made them; and what we would now be glad to do—

And, therefore, we take this opportunity to humbly request that the Honourable Court would send a Committee upon the business above Mention'd, free from all confinement, excepting that of reason & Conscience—And your humble Petitioners will, as they are in duty bound, ever pray &c

*Province of New Hampshire George the Third by the grace of *4-51 God of Great Britain France and Ireland King Defender of the Faith & so forth.

Whereas we did by our Royal Charter under the Seal of our said Province of New Hampshire dated the Third day of May in the 9th year of our Reign grant to Seven of our loving Subjects, whose Names are Enter'd thereon, agreeable to their Petition for the same, a Tract of Land within the limits of our said Province of the Contents of Six miles square by the name of Shelburne under several Conditions and reservations therein particularly express'd as by referrence to the same will at large appear and whereas it bath been represented unto us by the said Grantees, that upon a critical search and Survey of said Tract, as bounded in the said Grant or Charter, it appeared that the greatest part thereof was so interspersed with Mountains, unimproveable Lands and Waters, that it will not accomodate near the number of Inhabitants that are by the Conditions of the said Charter to be settled and resident on the said Land; which appearing to be matter of Fact; and the said Grantees having petitioned for our further and additional grant to the Premises, contiguous thereto according to a plan presented; and that the settling and cultivating that part of our said Province (which induced us to make the said first Grant) may not be frustrated, but duly carried into Execution: Know YE, that we of our special grace certain knowledge and mere motion for the due encouragement of settling a new Plantation within our said Province as aforesaid, by and with the advice of our Trusty and well beloved John Wentworth Esquire our Governor and Commander in Chief of our said Province of New Hampshire and of our Council of the said Province Have upon the Conditions and reservations herein after made given and granted and by these Presents for us our heirs and Successors do give and grant in equal Shares unto our loving Subjects Inhabitants of our said Province of New Hampshire, who have Petitioned us, setting forth as above recited, and also, their readiness to settle and improve the Premises immediately; and to their Heirs and Assigns for Ever, whose Names are enter'd on this Grant, to be divided to and amongst them into seven equal Shares, all that Tract or Parcel of Land situate, lying and being within our said Province containing by admeasurement Forty thousand acres, being something more than Six miles square, out of which an allowance is to be made for highways and unimproveable Lands by rocks, ponds, mountains and rivers Two thousand and Eight hundred Acres free, according to a plan or Survey thereof exhibited by our Surveyor General of Lands for our said *4-52 *Province by our said Governor's Order and returned into the Secretary's Office of our said Province, a Copy whereof is hereunto annexed, butted and bounded as follows (including the aforesaid Tract, called and known by the name of Shelburne) Viz^t Beginning at an hemlock Tree standing in the East Boundary line of our said Province and running North Eight degrees East on said Line to a Maple Tree six miles, from thence North Eighty two degrees West Six miles to a beech Tree, from thence North Eight degrees East Two hundred rods to a Spruce Tree, from thence North Eighty Two degrees West four miles to a Red Birch Tree, from thence South Eight degrees West Six miles and Two hundred rods to a red Birch Tree, from thence South Eighty two degrees East Ten miles to the bounds began at. To have and to hold the said Tract of Land as above expressed together with all the Priviledges and Appurtenances to them the said Grantees and to their respective heirs and assigns for Ever, by the Name of Shelburne, upon the following Conditions Vidilicet.

First That the Grantees at their own cost shall cut, clear, and make passable for Carriages of all kinds a road of Four rods wide thro' the said Tract hereby granted and this to be completed within Two years from the date of this Grant in failure of which the Premises and every part thereof shall be forfeited and revert to us our heirs and Successors to be by us or them reentered upon and regranted to any of our loving Subjects.

SECOND That the said Grantees shall settle or cause to be settled Twelve Families by the first day of March 1774 who shall be actually cultivating some part of the Land and resident thereon, and to continue making further and additional cultivation & settlement of the Premises so that there shall be actually settled and resident thereon Sixty Families by the first day of March 1779 on penalty of the forfeiture of such delinquent's share and of such Share's reverting to us our heirs and Successors to be by us or them enter'd upon and regranted to such of our Subjects as shall effectually settle and cultivate the same.

THIRD That all white and other Pine Trees within the said Township fit for masting our Royal Navy be carefully preserved for that use and none to be cut or fell'd without our special Licence for so doing first had and obtained upon the penalty of the forfeiture of the right of such Grantee his heirs and Assigns to us our heirs and Successors as well as being subject to the penalty of any

be Enacted:

FOURTH That before any division of the Land be made to and among the Grantees a Tract of Land as near the centre of the said Township as the Land will admit of shall be reserved and marked out for Town-Lots, one of which shall be allotted to each Grantee of the Contents of one Acre.

FIFTH Yielding and paying therefor to us our heirs and Successors on or before the First day of March 1771 the rent of one Ear of Indian Corn only if lawfully demanded.

SIXTH That every Proprietor, Settler or Inhabitant shall yield and pay unto us our heirs and Successors yearly and every year for Ever from and after the expiration of one year from the aforesaid First day of March namely on the first day of March which will be in the year of our Lord Christ One thousand seven hundred and Eighty, One Shilling Proclamation Money for every hundred Acres he so owns, settles or possesses and so in proportion for a greater or lesser tract of the said Land, which money shall be paid by the respective Persons abovesaid their heirs or Assigns in our Council Chamber in Portsmouth or to such Officer or Officers as shall be appointed to receive the same, and these to be in lieu of all other Rents and services whatsoever.

George the Third by the grace of God of Great Britain France and Ireland King defender of the faith and so forth

Whereas we of our special grace and mere motion, for the due encouragement of setling a New Plantation within our said Province of New Hampshire by our Letters Patent under the Seal of our said Province Dated the Twenty sixth day of June One thousand seven Hundred and sixty two, in the second year of our Reign, a tract of Land equal to six miles square, bounded as therein express'd to a number of our Loyal Subjects, whose Names are enter'd on the same, to hold to them their heirs and Assigns on the Conditions therein declared to be a Town Corporate by the Name of Woodbury as by reference to the said Patent or Charter may more fully appear. AND whereas the said Grantees have represented unto us that by reason of the great Inconveniencies which occur on the settlement of New Townships so remotely situated from any other Settlements that can afford any assistance hath render'd it impracticable for the whole number of Grantees to perform that part of the Conditions that relates to the cultivation of such a proportion of the said Grant; that there are a considerable number of Families now resident on the premises, which affords them hopes of a final Settlem^t without delay; and humbly supplicating us not to take advantage of the breach of said Conditions, but to lengthen out, and grant them some further Time for the performance thereof. Now Know YE that we being willing to promote the end proposed, Have of our further graee and favour suspended our Claim of the forfeiture which the said Grantees may have incurr'd and by these Presents do grant unto the said Grantees their Heirs and Assigns the further Term of Five Years from the 30th Novem^r 1768 for performing and fulfilling the Conditions matters and things by them to be done as aforesaid. EXCEPT the Quit rents which are to remain due and payable as express'd and reserved in the Original Grant or Charter.

WALPOLE.

[This town was Number 3 in the line of towns on the east side of Connecticut River. Granted by Massachusetts, Nov., 1736, to John Flint and others. Granted by New Hampshire Feb. 13, 1752, to Benjamin Bellows and others, and incorporated as Walpole. It was also sometimes called Great Falls and Bellows-town. The charter was renewed March 12, 1761. The privilege of a ferry across the Connecticut at this place was granted to Benjamin Bellows Aug. 18, 1773. Col. Enoch Hale, of Rindge, was authorized to build a toll-bridge over the river at Bellows Falls Dec. 31, 1783. A tract of land from the north part of the town was combined with a part of Charlestown to make up the town of Langdon Jan. 11, 1787.

*Province of New Hampshire GEORGE the Third by the grace of *1-374 God of Great Britain France and Ireland King defender of the Faith &c-

To all to whom these Presents shall come Greeting

WHEREAS we of our special grace & for the (Warren Extended) due encouragement of setling a New plantation within our said Province of New Hampshire in New England, by our Letters Patent or Charter under the Seal of our said Province Dated the 14th day of July Annoque Domini 1763. in the Third year of our Reign: did Grant a Tract of land near Six Miles square, to a number of our loyal Subjects whose Names are enter'd on the same, to hold to them their heirs and Assigns on the Conditions therein declared to be a Town Corporate by the Name of Warren, as by reference to the said Charter may more fully appear. whereas the Grantees aforesaid have Petitioned our Governor and Council of our said Province, Setting forth That in the Survey and plotting the said Township a mistake was made whereby the said Grantees were deprived of a considerable part of the Land granted, by its interfering with other Grants; And also representing That the difficulties the Grantees have met with in cutting Roads for the Transportation of Provisions &e hath hitherto prevented a complete Settlement and cultivation, agreable to the Conditions of the said Grant. And also praying that they might have an equivalent Grant out of our unappropriated adjacent Lands to make up the deficiency occasioned by the Survey aforesaid, and that the same may be annex'd to and deemed as part and parcel of the said Township of Warren, and held in Common, or sever'd and divided to and among the Grantees aforesaid as the other lands in the said Township are held and Enjoyed; And that a further time may be allowed the Grantees to settle and cultivate the same, which being tho't reasonable—We have tho't fit, (by and with the advice of our trusty and well beloved John Wentworth Esquire our Governor and Commander in Chief of our said Province and of our Council of the same,) and by these Presents do grant unto the said Grantees their heirs and Assigns, upon the same Conditions, reservations and Duties expressed in the Original Charter of Warren That the bounds therein described being uncertain from the mistake aforesaid, shall be according to the following lines including the addition hereby made Vizt Beginning at the North westerly corner of Rumney and running North Twenty four degs East Five Miles and three quarters of a mile, from thence turning off and runing North Fifty Eight deg^s West about four miles and One half mile to land lately granted to George Meserve Esquire to a Beech Tree: from thence South Twenty five degrees West one mile and Thirty Nine Chains and One half, to a Birch Tree, from thence North Fifty Eight degs West one mile and Sixty six chains and three quarters to an Ash Tree, *1-375 from thence South Twenty degs West Three miles *and Fifty seven Chains and an half to a Spruce Tree marked W. W. D. C. from thence South Fifty two degrees East about Six miles to the bounds first began at: being about Nineteen thousand Six hundred & Sixty three Acres-Also an addition of three thousand Eight hundred and Seventy seven Acres on the Northerly side of the above described Premises out of which an allowance of One thousand six hundred Acres is to be made for unimproveable Lands-To Begin at a Beech Tree standing in Meserve's line and running North Twenty five deg^s East Two miles and Thirty One Rods, from thence South Fifty Eight degs East two miles and one half mile and Fifty nine Rods, from thence South Thirteen deg^s west Two miles and sixty Two rods, from thence North 58 degrees East to the Beech Tree began at. which bounds are according to an actual Survey made by Isaac Rindge Esquire our Surveyor General of our Lands within said Province.—And we being willing to promote the cultivation and Improvement of said Tract, do of our further grace and favour sustend our claim of the forfeiture which the said Grantees may have Incurred, and by these Presents do grant unto the said Grantees the further Term of Four years from this date, for performing and fulfilling the conditions, matters & things by them to be done as aforesaid—Except the Quit Rents which are to remain due and payable as expressed and reserved in the Original Grant or Charter. In Testimony whereof we have caused the Seal of our said Province of New Hampshire to be hereunto affixed Witness our Governor and Commander in Chief aforesaid the Fifth day of July in the 10th year of our Reign Annoque Domini 1770.—

FIRST PLANTING

AND ON THE

PISCATAQUA PATENTS.

BY

John S. Jenness.

	Ċ

THE FIRST PLANTING OF NEW HAMPSHIRE.

Whether the first settlement within the limits of New Hampshire was made at Little Harbor near the mouth of the Piscatagua, or at Dover Neck some six miles up the river, is a question which has long employed the studies and pens of our local antiquaries, and of late has found its way into the discussions and acts of our Legislature. Each of these localities has its warm partizans, who have brought to the controversy research and ingenuity in such equal measure, that the question seems, indeed, to have been buried still deeper in doubt and obscurity by their confusing speculations. It is much to be regretted that uncertainty should rest over the most interesting of all periods in the history of our state, that of its birth and infancy; and we feel that an effort to clear away this uncertainty and to bring out into the light the truthful picture of those earliest days, will well be worth the making.

The date of the settlement upon the promontory, now called Odiorne's Point, at the smaller mouth of the Piscatagua river, is not a matter of dispute. Mr. David Thomson, a resident of Plymouth, England, having procured from the Grand Council of Plymouth, Nov. 15, 1622, a patent for six thousand acres of land to be selected by him in New England, sailed from Plymouth in mid-winter with a handful of colonists in the good ship called the "Jonathan of Plymouth," (the Mayflower of New Hampshire,) and arrived at the Piscataqua in the early spring of 1623. Mr. Thomson's design was to found a plantation, convenient for trade and the fisheries, somewhere near the mouth of the Piscataqua river, and as he had visited New England in previous years, and was familiar with the coast, it seems probable that the site of his settlement had been determined upon before he left England upon his present enterprise. David Thomson is described by Morton in "The New England Canaan," published in 1637 as being "a scottish gentleman, that was conversant with those people (the natives) a scholar and traveller that was diligent in taking notice of those things, as a man of good judgment."

The original agreement or indenture, under which Thomson came over, was recovered several years ago among the ancient Winthrop papers, and has recently been published by Charles Deane, Esq., accompanied by copious and learned notes. From this it appears that Thomson had three Plymouth merchants as partners or coadventurers with him in his enterprise, named Abraham Colmer, Nicholas Sherwill and Leonard Pomerie, who were to contribute to the expenses of founding and carrying on the new plantation, and to share in its property at the expiration of the partnership. David Thomson's colony, which first landed with him at Little Harbor, comprised probably not more than ten men.

The indenture referred to provided that the little colony "so landed, shall and will use their best endeavor (by the directon of said David Thomson) with as much conveniencie as maye be, to find out . . . some fitt place to settle and Builde some houses or buildings for habitacons, on which they are to begin with as much expedicon as they maye: to the lymits and precincts of which habitacons or buildings soe intented to be there erected, there shall be allotted of the lands next thereunto adjoininge, at or before the end of five years next ensuing the date hereof, the full quantitie of six hundred acres of land or neere thereabouts."

In pursuance of this clause of the Indenture, Thomson and his men selected the Point at Little Harbor as a "fitt place to build their houses for habitacons" and began upon them with as much expedicon as they could. The site selected for the settlement was chosen with excellent judgement. From the Little Harbor fronting the north side of the promontory a salt water creek runs back so far towards the ocean, as almost to convert the enclosed point into an island of about six hundred acres area, which was the precise amount of land required by the Indenture to be allotted to the new plan-The soil is good, and among the rocks on the harbor shore is a living spring of fresh water. The harbor is safe and accessible at all times to vessels of light draught, and most commodiously situated for the prosecution of the fisheries, as well as for the peltry traffic with the Indians of Sagamore Creek and Piscatagua river. Above all other advantages in those perilous times, the Point, rising on every side towards its center and almost surrounded by water, was easily defensible against the assaults of the savages. These considerations probably determined Thomson in the selection of this site for the new plantation, which he named, perhaps from the Indian appellation, "Pannaway"—a name, which seems however not to have survived the period of Thomson's own occupation and ownership of the plantation.

The principal dwelling house erected at Pannaway was built of stone, and of considerable size. Hubbard informs us that "the chimney and some part of the stone wall were standing in his day" (1680). The house, which, a few years after its erection, passed into the hands of Capt. John Mason and his associates, was afterwards called by these proprietors "Piscataqua House," and sometimes in popular parlance, "Captain Mason's stone house." It was never designated, we believe, Mason's Hall, though Hubbard and his followers have stated to the contrary. The term "Mason's Hall" was sometimes though rarely applied to the "Great House" at Strawberry Bank, erected by the adventurers of Laconia about 1631.*

Thomson's House, erected in 1623 at Pannaway, seems from its remains to have been laid upon a foundation of sea sand and small stones packed close into a trench. The sea sand is identical in appearance with that still abundantly found on the harbor shore in front of the house. There was no cellar beneath the building. The walls above the foundations were built of a slate-like shale laid in blue clay, both of which material are abundant in that immediate neighborhood. Gov. Winthrop built for himself a dwelling house at Mistick of similar material a few years later.† When not greatly exposed to the rain, the tough clay of Little Harbor is as durable as the best mortar. The chimney of the ancient Jaffrey house at New Castle, as Mr. Albee, its present occupant, informs us, was laid in this clay two centuries ago, and still stands strong and solid.

With these materials close at hand, Thomson and his colony could have erected a comfortable and spacious habitation in a short time after their landing. Little or nothing would have been required from England for that purpose beyond window glass, hardware and household utensils. The site of the Pannaway house is still confidently pointed out by the present owners of the territory, and part of the foundation walls are believed to have been exposed by the exeavations for a road, which, thirty years ago, was laid out from the main highway to the harbor. Close by the house, the foundations of a small building, supposed to have been a blacksmith's shop, are pointed out. Among its debris have been recently found, by very slight excavations along the road-side, charcoal and ashes, nails, pieces of iron, a pipe-stem, etc., and also, strange to relate, parts of a human skeleton. No doubt several other buildings were erected around the principal dwelling, such as a cooper's shop, a carpenter's shop, storehouses, boat houses and barns, but no remains of these have as yet been discovered.

The fishing stages and fish houses, we conjecture, were put up in the sheltered coves upon the ocean side of the point, and in close proximity to Flake Hill as it is called, where, according to tradition, the fish were dried. In one of these coves are still to be seen numbers of wooden spiles driven into the sand, which once served, probable, as a foundation for fish houses or boat houses. Beyond Flake Hill and the main building lies a well filled cemetery, which holds all that remains of the first settlers of New Hampshire. From the long space between the head stones and foot stones, many of which are still standing, this cemetery seems to have been a grave-yard of men. We found no small graves in this ancient God's Acre. Nature herself has erected a most appropriate monument to the memory of the hardy, daring men who laid the foundations of our state amid the dangers and privations of the wilderness, and have here at last taken up their rest. Out of the very graves near the center of the small cemetery rises a rugged gnarled walnut tree, bent and distorted in its struggles of two centuries against the elements—a memorial and symbol of the courage and fortitude of the ancient Pannaway men, whose long slumbers the noble tree defiantly protects.

Pannaway house must have been a structure of considerable size to have afforded accommodation to Thomson and his new colony; and as it was put up by ordinary English workmen, we may reasonable conjecture, that it followed the general plan and presented the general appearance of the dwelling houses of the time of James I., vast numbers of which still remain in good preservation all over the old country. As soon as his buildings were put in habitable condition, Thomson entered actively into the prosecution of his enterprise at the Piscataqua, and he continued engaged in that business at Pannaway until about the expiration of the stipulated term of copartnership with the Plymouth Merchants, in Nov. 1627.

Pannaway plantation became at once well known along the New England coast, and was visited within its very first year by many of the most interesting and striking characters connected with our early history. Phinehas Pratt came there as early as May, 1623, and before the great crackling fires of a cold spring, recounted, no doubt, the story of the terrible winter he had passed at Wessaguscus; of his marvellous escape from the murderous savages across a trackless frozen forest for near fifty miles into New Plymonth in quest of succor, and of the valiant achievements of the redoubtable Miles Standish, who, with a small band of soldiers, set out the very next day from the Pilgrim village, and slaying Pecksuot, the savage chief, with his own hand, succeeded in dispersing the Indians and rescuing the trembling, exhausted planters of Wessaguscus from impending annihilation.

A month or two later, came into Pannaway a half-drowned, half-naked man, imploring succor and protection. He proved to be Mr. Thomas Weston, the faithful friend and agent of the Pilgrim fathers in England before they sailed away for the new world, though at present they entertained toward him sentiments of distrust and unkindliness. His political and religious sentiments did not accord with those of the separatists at New Plymouth. Weston had now been cast away, while cruising along the New Hampshire coast between Boar's Head and Merrimack river; his shallop was wrecked, and himself afterwards assailed and stripped of his clothes by the Indians. The miserable man succeeded at last, however, in making his way along the coast into Pannaway, and there he was clad and restored to health and furnished with means to return to Plymouth.

About this same time, the Pilgrim hero, Miles Standish himself, made his appearance at Pannaway. "Standish," says Hubbard, "had been bred a soldier in the Low countries and never entered the school of Christ or of John the Baptist, or if ever he was there, he had forgot his first lessons. A little chimney is soon fired, so was the Plymouth captain, a man of very small stature yet of a very hot and angry temper."* The valiant captain, at the conclusion of his stout achievements in the rescue of Wessaguscus, was employed to buy provisions at the eastward "for the refreshing of the Plymouth colony." He must have been at Pannaway about the last of June, as he returned to Plymouth in July, laden with the provisions he was in quest of, and bringing along in his company our Mr. David Thomson from Pannaway.†

The next important visitor at Pannaway was Capt. Christopher Levett, "his majesty's woodward for Somersetshire," as he describes himself. Levett's design was to establish a city at some eligible spot along the New England coast, to be named "York," after the metropolitan city in England, and to found there, in all pomp and circumstance, a full prelatical establishment over all New England. Capt. Levett was an officer in the royal navy, high in favor at court, and of much distinction in the old country. He stayed at Pannaway about a month during the early spring of 1624, awaiting the arrival of his men, to begin his search along the coast for some suitable site for his projected city.

While Levett still remained at Pannaway, Governor Robert Gorges arrived there with a considerable company. Robert Gorges was the son of Sir Ferdinando Gorges and "like his father, of an active enterprising genius, and had newly returned from the Venetian war." He came out with a commission under the Great Seal, appointing him "Lieutenant General and Governor of New England," and designating Capt. Christopher Levett, before mentioned, as one of his Council. It was at Pannaway that the ceremony of installing Levett into his high office was performed by Governor Gorges, assisted by three others of his Council, and in the presence of all the people, no doubt, then at the plantation. We may be sure that this eeremony, to which it was desirable to give as much distinction and publicity as possible, was performed in a most imposing manner on that great and stirring day in the annals of Pannaway.

That the Indians were visitors at Pannaway during the very first year of its foundation, appears from the narrative of Phinehas Pratt, who writes that "at the time of his (Capt. Levett) being at Pascataway a sachem or Sagamor gave two of his men, one to Capt. Levett and another to Mr. Thomson:" but one that was there said, "How can you trust those savages? Call the name of one 'Watt Tyler' and the other Jack Straw, after the names of the two greatest Rebills yt ever were in England."

Neither was the society of women wholly lacking at Pannaway during this period. David Thomson's wife resided with him at his new plantation, and it is reasonable to believe that she came not without female companions. And it was here at Pannaway, that John, the son of David, it is believed, first saw the light—the first-born of New Hampshire.

We have thus sketched, as briefly as possible, some of the principal events in the history of Pannaway for the first year of its existence, from the spring of 1623 to the spring of 1624. It is not within the design of this paper to follow its history any further. It will suffice our present purpose to add, that the plantation founded by David Thomson and his co-adventurers at Little Harbor passed in 1630, by way of lease, into the hands of the company of Laeonia. It was then that the doughty soldier of fortune, Capt. Walter Neale, the Governor for that company, and the worthy compeer of Miles Standish himself, took possession of Pannaway as his "chiefe habitacon," and thus preserved the nucleus of the future State of New Hampshire.

The Pannaway plantation, the story of whose birth and infancy we have thus outlined, was, we are convinced, prior in date to any other settlement within the limits of our State, and several years anterior to that of Edward Hilton at Dover Point. The earliest period to which the latter settlement can be referred upon any of the testimony which has come down to us, is the year 1628, or possibly the year 1627. If there had been any settlement at Dover Neck prior to that period, there exists the testimony of no contemporary to the effect that he had visited it or had seen it, or had heard of it from rumor or report. And certainly it is highly improbable that such a settlement could have existed four or five years up the Pis-cataqua river, without having been known to the Pilgrim historians, such as Bradford and Winslow, not once spoken of or referred to

by any of the numerous visitors at Pannaway.

If Hilton's Point had been settled as early as 1623, would not the planters and servants employed there have found occasions to meet constantly and familiarly with their countrymen at the thriving plantation of Pannaway only six miles distant? Would not the existence of a Hilton's Point colony have been as well and widely known as that of Pannaway itself? And yet no settlement at Hilton's Point until several years subsequent to that of Thomson at Little Harbor, is referred to by any New England writer of that time or in any contemporaneous paper, letter, affidavit, or document of any kind. On the contrary, Christopher Levett, Esq., who, as we have seen, spent a month at Pannaway in the early spring of 1624, so far from having heard of any English settlement up the river, writes thus on his leaving for the Eastward: "About two miles further to the East, I found a great river and a good harbor, called Pascattaway, but for the ground I can say nothing, but by the relation of the Sagamore or King of that place, who told me there was much good ground up in the river about seven or eight leagues."*

Certainly, if Hilton had settled a plantation at Dover Neck in 1623, Levett must during his long visit to David Thomson have heard of such a settlement, and would not have been compelled to rely upon an Indian Sagamore for a description of the Piscataqua river; nor is it likely that he would have passed over without notice so important a circumstance as the foundation there of a new English colony. It is fair to conclude, in the absence of direct testimony on the subject, that up to the time of Levett's visit to Pannaway in 1624, the Piscataqua above its mouth still remained a solitude unbroken by white settlers.

The patent of Hilton's Point was granted to Edward Hilton, March 12, 1629 (1630, according to our present style of reckoning), about seven years after the settlement of Thomson at Pannaway. Can it be believed that Hilton founded a plantation at Hilton's Point, in 1623, seven years before he got a deed of the land his plantation stood upon? No great expense would certainly have been incurred by him until he had first acquired title to the soil. Nor did Edward Hilton himself ever to our knowledge make any pretence to having begun a plantation on the Piscataqua at so early a date. The patent granted to him in 1630 recites, as usual with such instruments, the utmost that he claimed to have done at Hilton's Point before that year. The language is this, "that Edward Hilton and his associates hath already at his own and their proper costs and charges transported sundry servants to plant in New England aforesaid at a place there called by the natives Wecanacohunt, otherwise Hilton's Point, lying some two leagues from the mouth of the river Pascataquack in New England aforesaid, where they have already built some houses and planted corn, and for that he does further intend by God's Divine Assistance to transport thither more people and cattle, &c."*

It will be seen that Hilton made no claim to having settled a plantation at Hilton's Point so early as 1623, as he naturally would have done had such been the fact. Nor is there any pretence in the patent that he had set up fishing stages there, as Belknap and others, following Hubbard, have asserted. The language of the Grant imports simply that the plantation at Hilton's Point was to be carried on for trade and agriculture, and that feeble beginnings in that direction had been very lately made, to be followed by a more strenuous exertion and a larger outlay upon the acquisition of title to the plantation. Edward Hilton lived on the Piscatagua for many years after founding his plantation, and was a gentleman of energy and His territory was sold by him shortly after he obtained his patent, to Capt. Thomas Wiggin and his associates of Shrewsbury, This patent became for many after years the source of much conflict and litigation. Yet never did Hilton, nor those claiming title under him, undertake to strengthen that title by averring a seven years' possession and actual occupation before his patent was issued.

Positive testimony as to the date of the Hilton's Point settlement may, however, be found in a careful declaration made in 1654 to the Mass. General Court, by John Allen, Nicholas Shapleigh and Thomas Lake, wherein the Hilton's Point Patent is relied upon by the declarants as a protection against certain alleged encroachments made by the Mass. authorities. These three declarants, familiar with the whole history of Hilton's Point and interested to make out Hilton's title and possession as ancient as they could, present the following as the first article of their case. "1, that Mr. Edward Hilton was possessed of this land about the year 1628, which is about 26 years ago."† Edward Hilton was then living in the immediate vicinity of Great Bay, well and intimately known to all the declarants; and the date of his first possession of Hilton's Point must have been within the familiar knowledge of them all.

The notion among our historians and antiquaries that the Dover settlement was contemporaneous with that of Pannaway in the spring of 1623, is founded wholly and solely, so far as we can discover, upon a certain careless statement contained in Hubbard's Hist. of New England, written more than a half a century after the settlement of New Hampshire—a loose statement, made upon heresay, in a paragraph (as printed) conspicuous in all respects for inaccuracy. And worse than all, the little of truth the paragraph of Rev. William Hubbard of Ipswich did contain, has been most grossly distorted and misunderstood. Hubbard's language is this: merchants and other gentlemen in the west of England sent over that year (1623) one Mr. David Thomson with Mr. Edward Hilton and his brother Mr. William Hilton, who had been fishmongers in London, with some others that came along with them. furnished with necessaries for carrying on a plantation there (about Piscatagua river.) Possibly others might be sent after them in the years following 1624 and 1625; some of whom first, in probability, seized on a place called the Little Harbor on the west side of the Piscatagua river, toward or at the mouth thereof; the Hiltons, in the meanwhile, setting up their stages higher up the river towards the northwest at or about a place since called Dover. But at that place called Little Harbor it is supposed was the first house set up that was built in those parts." *

An examination of this statement by Hubbard will satisfy the student that it amounts to this: First, that the first house or settlement on the Piscataqua was made at Little Harbor. Second, that the Hiltons set up their stages up the river somewhere in the meanwhile between 1623 and the years following 1624 and 1625; and Hubbard has not said nor meant to say that Hilton's settlement was made in 1623. Third, that the Hiltons set up their stages at or about a place since called Dover. Hubbard has not stated nor meant to state that these stages were set up at Hilton's Point precisely, but only at some place about that Point.

A little consideration will convince us that Hubbard could hardly have intended to say that the Hiltons did ever set up stages at Hilton's Point; and certainly Hilton himself in the preamble to his grant of 1630 never made any pretence, as we have seen, to having set up any fishing stages there. The stages referred to, were large and expensive structures, intended for use in the fishing business. Hilton's Point is situated some six or seven miles above the mouth of Piscataqua river—a tidal stream of such rapidity that it is often impossible for a boat to overcome its current, while on the other hand the great codfisheries lie several miles out to sea beyond the river's mouth. A fisherman leaving Hilton's Point at the very turn of the ebb tide, might, perhaps, under favorable circumstances, reach the fishing banks in the course of four hours; if he intended to return by the next flood tide, he would be compelled to turn back without casting a hook. If he stayed two or three hours to fish, he would not be able to get home the same day. Can it be believed that experienced fishermen would have selected such a site as Hilton's Point for a fishing establishment, when as good land or better could have been taken up anywhere at the river's mouth or along the coast?

Where, indeed, it really was that these fishing stages were set up, (if at all,) Hubbard has not definitely informed us, nor can we now discover; but it hardly seems probable that a site was selected above the river narrows. Taking the whole case together, we may perhaps conclude from Hubbard's statements, if we chose to place any reliance whatever upon them, as they stand printed, that the Hiltons sometime between 1623 and 1626 founded a fishing establishment somewhere up the river between Dover and the river's mouth. This may be the truth, without conflicting in the least with the testimony we have adduced, that the trading and agricultural establishment on Hilton's Point itself was founded by Edward Hilton in the year 1627 or 1628.

We perceive, therefore, that Hubbard is no authority whatever in support of the alleged settlement of Hilton's Point in 1623, and as no other evidence has been adduced to prove such a settlement contemporaneously with that at Pannaway, we may justly consider the question at rest, and accord the priority in the first planting of New Hampshire by several years to David Thomson and his men at Pannaway. Indeed a close scrutiny of Hubbard's statement by the light of other facts will convert his misunderstood narrative into an authority for our conclusion. He tells us that the settlement "at or about a place since called Dover" was made by the two Hiltons, Edward and William. If that were so, it could not have been made in the year 1623, because William is found residing at Plymouth with his family as late as 1624, and indeed is not mentioned as living on the Piscataqua until several years later.

We venture to add, though unnecessary to our argument, that the time and manner of Edward Hilton's arrival in the Piseataqua is also very uncertain. Hubbard writes that both Edward and William came over in company with Thomson in 1623. That the careless historian made a gross error as to William we have just pointed out, and it is probable he fell into a similar mistake as to Edward. At all events, the Indenture between Thomson and his partners gives no countenance to Hubbard's loose expressions; and not a particle of contemporaneous testimony has been added tending to show Edward Hilton's residence at the Piscataqua before the year 1628, when he first appears as assessed £1 towards the expense of Morton's banishment.

A strong concurrent body of testimony would, indeed, be necessary to satisfy a rational mind, that Edward and William Hilton, or Edward alone settled at Dover Neck as early as 1623. At that period not a white man dwelt within all the borders of New Hampshire, tribes of bloodthirsty "nefandous" savages roamed through the pine forests and gathered around the falls of the rivers. Hilton's Point, from its close proximity to the Cocheco, where large bands of Indians made their homes, was particularly exposed to savage assault. Is it credible that Hilton, without any colony to assist him, (for, as we have seen, no colony came over to Dover Neck until 1628 or 1629,) should have, as early as 1623, removed from the succor of all his friends, six or seven miles from Pannaway, and taken up an almost, if not altogether, solitary residence in the midst of treacherous and cruel savages; when the whole country practically lay open to him to go in and occupy where he would? A wise and prosperous merchant, as Edward Hilton was, a prudent and judicious gentleman, as he ever afterwards proved himself to be, would never, as we believe, have undertaken an enterprise as unnecessary and profitless, as it would have been rash and foolhardy.

It was some years, we conclude, after the settlement of Pannaway, whether we consider the testimony or weigh the intrinsic probabilities, before the plantation at Hilton's Point could have been begun; and it is much to be regretted, that the antiquaries and historians of our State should have permitted the Legislature to fall into the error of incorporating a body of men to erect a monument at Dover Neck, "in commemoration of the settlement of the Point in 1623."

THE PISCATAQUA PATENTS.

In the preceding monograph we have sought to dispel the obscurity which has so long enveloped the very ciadle of New Hampshire history. We have endeavored to establish that the first English settlement within the limits of that State was made by David Thomson and his company in 1623, at Pannaway, Little Harbor, about five years earlier than Edward Hilton began his plantation at Hilton's Point, now called Dover Neck.

Advancing from this starting point only a few steps further into the early history of New Hampshire, the student is again shut in by a dense fog, through which for a long time he is compelled to grope his uncertain way. Before the year 1632 is passed, he finds himself in the midst of a number of patents on the Piscataqua, none of which can he clearly make out and define. He perceives long and bitter contests between these rival patents, the true ground of which he cannot understand. He discovers that at last all these contending patentees and planters are in some way swept into the jurisdiction of Massachusetts Bay, but the dexterous legerdemain by which the annexation was effected, entirely escapes his detection. In vain does he seek for light in the pages of the Pilgrim or the Puritan historians. The whole confraternity, indeed, avowedly look upon the Piscataqua plantations with utter contempt, and waste little or no time upon the annals of those "sons of Belial," who haunted about the lower part of the river.

Moreover, it happens, as we shall see in the sequel, that it became the policy of the Bay Colony, in prosecuting their designs over the Piscataqua, to say or write as little as possible on the subject, so that in case they should ever be called to account for their conduct in the matter, they could not, in any event, be condemned out of their own mouths.

The true story of the Piscataqua Patents has thus never been told; and, indeed, until the recent discovery of important documents in the English Archives, bearing on the subject, that portion of our early history was incapable of any clear relation.

Let us attempt to dissipate some of the mists, which have so long hung over Piscataqua River. Let us enquire what these patents really were, what was their real meaning, what must be their true construction, what conflicting interests arose under them; let us sketch the outlines of their history down to their extinction, and discover, if possible, in what way these patents were at last merged into the Bay Colony. Such an enquiry, in the present state of our knowledge, must needs be delicate and difficult; nor, in so novel an undertaking, is it likely to attain absolute success. Our hopes will be fully gratified, if these few pages shall succeed in letting in some measure of light upon this obscure and confused portion of our early history.

The instrument which has been the chief cause of the confusion and obscurity referred to, was the Patent, mentioned in the preceding monograph, granted in 1629-30 by the Grand Council for New England to Edward Hilton and his associates—a petty conveyance of a small tract of land around Dover Neck, but which in the course of events having been elevated into some political importance, played a leading part, as we shall see, in the early annals of New Hampshire. It was during the years 1628 and 1629, that Mr. Edward Hilton, a member of the ancient and honorable Guild of Fishmongers of London, with the aid of a number of Bristol merchants, put up a few cabins at the Point which took his name, and laid the feeble foundations of a trading and lumbering plantation. This occupation was, it seems, unwarranted by any previous grant of title from the Grand Council; though probably some agreement or understanding had been arrived at, for the execution of a good and sufficient deed of conveyance, as soon as the plantation should be fairly under way. It was not uncommon for the Grand Council to require from petitioners for land in New England, some evidence of efforts already made and expenditures actually incurred towards the improvement of the desired territory, before the patent was actually executed and delivered. As the quit rents on these conveyances were merely nominal, the Council could hardly have hit upon a better way of testing the sincerity and ability of those who solicited from them gratuitous grants for the alleged design of founding plantations in the New World.

Edward Hilton and his associates having in 1628 and 1629 "transported sundry servants to plant upon Hilton's Point, now Dover Neck, built some houses, planted corn, etc.," and having thus satisfactorily shown their intention and ability to carry forward the plantation already begun, at length received from the Grand Council a conveyance or Patent for the territory they had taken up. This Patent was executed March 12, 1630 (old style), or according to our present supputation of time, March 23, 1630.*

The territory conveyed to Hilton and his associates by this Patent is bounded and described in the instrument, as follows: "All that part of the river Piscataquak, called or known by the name of Wecanacohunt or Hilton's Point, with the south side of the said river, up to the fall of the river and three miles into the maine land by all the breadth aforesaid."

We invite particular study into the true intent and meaning of this brief description, because of the falsification of its terms and the strange distortion of its meaning, which we believe was subsequently put upon the patent by the authorities of Massachusetts Bay; whereby the patent was split into two distinct parts, and a large tract of territory on the southerly or Rockingham County side of the river was, by construction, brought within its limits. To the consideration of this subject in greater detail, we shall return in the sequel, after several other necessary preliminaries have been brought to the student's knowledge.

It seems clear to us, that the terms of the Patent are intended to bound and limit, not two entirely separate and disjoined bodies of land, (as Massachusetts afterwards contended,) but only the one contiguous compact territory, on which Hilton and his associates had already begun their plantation. Such, indeed, is the express declaration of the preamble to the grant. Beginning at Hilton's Point, (now called Dover Neck—a well-defined projection into Piscataqua river.) the boundary line, as we construe the Patent, ran up along the southerly side of that river to the lower or Quampegan Falls—a distance of some seven or eight miles—and reached back into the interior country three miles along the entire river frontage; thus embracing a considerable portion of the present towns of Dover, Rollinsford, and Durham, and including the falls of the Cocheco and Oyster rivers.*

Soon after obtaining his Patent, Mr. Edward Hilton returned to the Piscataqua with reinforcements and supplies, and settled down at the Point, which already bore his name. Formal possession or livery of seizin was given to him July 7, 1631, by Thomas Lewis.

Hilton's Point, now called Dover Neck, upon which Hilton and his men pitched their settlement, is, in the language of Dr. Belknap, "a high neck of land between the main branch of Pascataqua and Back River, about two miles long and half a mile wide, rising along a fine road and declining on each side like a ship's deck. It commands an extensive and variegated prospect of the rivers, bays, adjacent shores, and distant mountains. It has often been admired by travellers as an elegant situation for a city, and by military gentlemen for a fortress."†

But, on the other hand, the new-come planters soon felt the sore need of meadow land and pasturage, not to be found on the sandy Point itself, nor in its convenient vicinity within their own grant. Across the wide waters to the south, however, reposed unoccupied a country of virgin beauty, heavily timbered with primeval forests, and fringed all round its watered sides with emerald fields, and meadows both salt and fresh. It was very natural that the Hilton Point planters should fall into the easy way of ferrying their flocks and herds across the river to graze upon these vacant fields. Before long they came to moving grass and felling timber and planting the fields; and then one after another put up dwellings and barns and entered into full adverse possession of the territory, now embraced in Newington and Greenland. Legal title to these forests and meadows, we believe, they In after years, it is true, these trespassers undertook to rest their title upon some ancient Indian grant, but, as is well known, Indian deeds to New England lands were not in law held to be any better "than the scratch of a bear's claw." They occupied these lands, in the beginning, as vacuum domicilium, in the absence of any effective opposition from the true owners.

Let us then enquire, who were the real proprietors of these Rockingham County lands at the time the Hilton Point planters trespassed

As a preface to this enquiry, we need to state, that in Nov., 1629, about four months prior to the execution of the Hilton Patent, a large tract of territory, situated in the present State of New York around Lake Champlain, had been granted by the Grand Council to Sir Ferdinando Gorges, Capt. John Mason and seven other associates.* This province was named Laconia, by reason "of the great Lakes therein."

The design of the Laconia adventurers was to seize upon and engross to their own profit the rich peltry traffic of that vast region, then in the hands of the French and the Dutch. It was believed, in the absence of accurate knowledge of the interior country, that Lake Champlain (then called the Iroquois) could be reached from the New England coast by a journey of about 90 miles, and that only a narrow portage separated it from the head waters of Piscataqua river. Under this delusion, the Laconians hired the buildings which had been put up seven years before by David Thomson at the smaller mouth of the Piscataqua, and established there, under command of Capt. Walter Neale, a factory or entrepot, as a basis for their magnificent design upon the New York lakes. The company of Laconia were in the actual possession of Pannaway at Little Harbor when Hilton and his company sailed up the river to establish their plantation at Hilton's Point eight miles above. And before Hilton's title was perfected by livery of seizin Strawberry Bank had begun to be settled; no less than sixty men were employed in the company's business on the Piscataqua,† and a plantation had been established at Newichwannock, not far from Quampegan Falls, and on the opposite side of the river from Hilton's grant. It seems to us obvious from these considerations, that the character and extent of the Hilton patent must have been familiarly known and understood by the Company of Laconia and the considerable body of men in its employment.

The Laconia adventurers expended a great deal of time and money in quest of an easy way from the Piscataqua to their coveted El Dorado of beaver and otter skins, but all their efforts miserably failed, and after a struggle of some two years, their design was finally abandoned.

† Adams' Annals of Portsmouth, 18.
† We will add here, as a piece of curious information, that although the original design of the Laconians to reach Lake Champlain by ascending the Piscataqua was so soon abandoned, yet their patent of the province of Laconia was never, it seems, surrendered nor forfeited, but was considered as vesting in them a valid subsisting title down almost to the period of our Revolution. Jonathan Carver, who visited Lake Champlain in 1767, writes in the well known account of his travels, as follows:

But during these two years' occupation of Piscatagua river, the Laconian associates had acquired an accurate knowledge of that region and its many advantages for traffic and commerce; and now, upon the failure of their original designs upon Laconia, the same body of associates, nine in number, resolved to turn their future efforts towards the development of the Piscataqua itself in the way of the fisheries and the lumber trade and of such moderate peltry traffic as could be prosecuted in that vicinity.

As the Laconia Patent conveyed to the adventurers no portion of Piscatagna river, nor indeed any territory whatever within the present State of New Hampshire, it was their first care to procure a grant of the desired region, or at least so much of it as had not been previously conveyed to Edward Hilton and his associates.

Accordingly, the same nine men, who constituted the Company of Laconia, procured from the Grand Council a conveyance, dated Nov. 3, 1631, (some twenty months later than the Hilton Patent,) of a considerable tract on both sides of the Piscatagua river. This important Patent, entitled "the Grant and Confirmation of Pescataway," hitherto unknown to our historians, except from a brief and grossly inaccurate abstract in Hubbard's printed history, was discovered by the writer a few years ago among the English Archives, and will be found in the Appendix.*

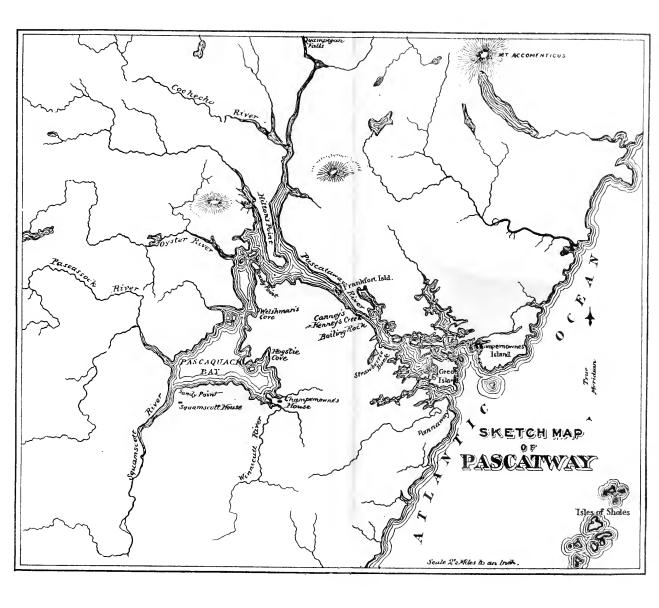

There is not the slightest difficulty in running out the boundaries of this "Grant of Pescataway," as will be apparent from an inspection of our Sketch map of the Piscatagna country, on which the two river patents are laid down. The river called Pascassocke in the description is the same, no doubt, now named Lamprey River, which empties into the head of Great Bay at New Market. By the terms of the Patent, the boundary line, it will be seen, ran through the middle of the Bay, called Pascaquack (now Great Bay) in a westward and southwestward direction to the bottom or lower falls of the river Pascassocke. The Lamprey is the only river which answers to this description. Indeed, the original Indian name of the river was Piscassett;† and that name has been retained by its principal branch, in the form of Piscassic, even to the present day.

[&]quot;A vast tract of land between the two last mentioned lakes (Lakes Champlain and Ontario) was granted in the year 1629 by the Plymouth company . . . to Sir Ferdinando Gorges and Capt. John Mason."

"This immense space was granted by the name of the Province of Laconia to the aforesaid gentlemen on specified conditions and under certain penalties; but none of these amounted in case of omission in the fulfillment of any part of them to forfeiture, a fine only could be exacted."

"On account of the continual wars to which these parts have been subject from their situation between the settlements of the French and the Indians, this grant has been suffered to lie dormant by the real proprietors. Notwithstanding which, several towns have been settled, since the late war, on the borders of Lake Champlain and grants made to different people by the Governor of New York of part of these territories which are now become annexed to that province." (Carver's Travels, p. 173.)

^{*} Appendix No. 2. † Farmer and Moore's Col. p. 50.

The boundaries of the territory covered by the "Grant of Pescataway" began at or near Rye Ledge, not far from the present southerly line of Rye, and sweeping around the coast into the mouth of Piscataqua river, continued up the river to Fox Point, thence to Great Bay and through the middle of Great Bay to Lamprey River lower falls, and across the country about nine miles to the point of beginning; together with the Isles of Shoals and a strip of land three miles wide along the northerly side of the river.

So much of the Pescataway grant as lay on the southerly side of the river and around Great Bay is now embraced in the towns of Portsmouth, Newington, Greenland, New Castle, and Rye.

It will be seen, on a comparison of Hilton's Patent with the "Grant of Pescataway," that there is not the slightest conflict between them, as we have laid down the two conveyances. The Pescataway Grant expressly mentions and locates the Hilton Plantation and carefully excludes it from the conveyance. The two patents are thus entirely consistent with each other and stand well together. Both of them were executed by the same grantor, the Grand Council, some of whose most active and efficient members were then maintaining a considerable establishment on the Piscataqua, and were entirely familiar with its topography, as the minute accuracy of the description in their patent clearly attests. Neither ignorance nor mistake can be reasonably imputed to the Grand Council, nor to either set of grantees in the two river patents.

We may be morally certain that these patents did not conflict at all with each other, and that the Hilton Patent was not understood between the parties to it to cover any portion of the "Pescataway Grant." Nor do we believe that any such pretence would ever have been set up, but for the appearance upon the scene of a new Power—

the government of Massachusetts Bay.

The Great Charter of Massachusetts Bay had been granted by King Charles I, March 4, 1628-9—antedating thus both of the Piscataqua patents, as well as Capt. Mason's Patent of the Province of New Hampshire which had been issued Nov. 7, 1629. In the summer of 1630, Gov. John Winthrop with a considerable company of colonists, brought the Charter over to New England. It was, indeed, a grand resounding Charter, but the extent of territory embraced within it was almost ludicrously disproportionate to this large document. Its sea-coast hardly stretched to forty miles; and more than the half of even that scanty line—to wit: from near Salem to the Merrimack—seems to have been the property of Capt. John Mason.* Very naturally, therefore, did the Founders of the Bay Colony begin at once on their arrival to feel about for more land, and to scan attentively the language of their Charter. On the south they found themselves hemmed in by their friends, the Plymouth colony; the west was a wilderness difficult of access. It was thus to the north that their hearts most earnestly yearned. The same year of Winthrop's arrival, the Mass. colony, it is said, violently seized upon Mason's patent of Cape Anne, "stretching their bounds three miles to the Northwards of Merrimack River, and turned the servants and tennants of the said John Mason out of their possessions."*

They next cast their eyes over the Piscataqua region, which they particularly coveted. "Because ye river of Pascataqua is very beneficall for plantacon," writes George Burdett in 1638, "having also an excellent harbour, weh may much pfit or anoy them in case of warre, therefore they (the Massachusetts) endeavour with all their skill &

might to obtain the command thereof."†

A plausible pretext for the annexation of the desired region was found in the somewhat ambiguous language of their charter. By its terms they were granted "all the lands which be within the space of three English miles to the northward of the river, called Merrymack, or to the northward of any and every part thereof." The Massachusetts at once contended with great ingenuity, that under these terms their northern boundary reached a parallel of latitude drawn three miles above the most northerly point on the Merrimack river—a construction which would include Captain Mason's Patent of New Hampshire, and all of Maine below Clapboard island in Casco Bay.

It is here to be repeated that the Charter of Mass. Bay passed the seals March 4, 1628-9; thus antedating Mason's Patent of New Hampshire as well as both the Piscataqua river grants. If the Massachusetts construction of their Charter should prevail, then all of the patents on the river would be swept away: the whole of that region would fall by prior title into their hands and jurisdiction; and neither Mason, nor Hilton and his associates, nor the grantees of "Pescataway" could have offered any effectual opposition.

This ingenious interpretation of the Charter having been hit upon, there appeared as early as 1631 upon the banks of the Piscataqua, one Capt. Thomas Wiggin, a stern Puritan and a confidential friend of Governor John Winthrop of Mass. Bay. We find Wiggin writing from that place to Gov. Winthrop in Oct., 1331, persuading the latter to take revenge on a party of Indians for a murder committed on Walter Bagnall, called Great Wat, at Riehman's isle. There is an implication in this request, that jurisdiction over the offence was in Mass. Bay, although Richman's island lies almost as far north as

Portland harbor. The governor, however, says Winthrop, "thought best to sit still awhile."*

At this time (Oct., 1631) no special grant of the lands around Great Bay had been issued; the "grant and confirmation of Pescataway" being dated in Nov., 1631, in usual course would not reach New England until the early spring of 1632. In 1632, however, upon the arrival of the new Patent of "Pescataway," a collision occurred between Capt. Wiggin and Capt. Walter Neale, the latter acting in behalf of the Pescataway grantees. Hubbard informs us, that Wiggin, being forbidden by Neale "to come upon a certain point of land, that lieth in the midway betwixt Dover and Exeter, Captain Wiggin intended to have defended his right by the sword, but it seems both the litigants had so much wit in their danger as to wave the battle, each accounting himself to have done very manfully in what was threatened; so as in respect not of what he did, but what might have fallen out, the place to this day retains the formidable name of Bloody Point."†

Hubbard does not inform us what and whose title it was, which Wiggin intended to defend, but as at that time he had no interest whatever in the Hilton Patent, even though that Patent could be construed to cover Bloody Point, it seems clear that he could only have set up as against Neale that title, which, as we have seen, he had already asserted, and which he spent his whole after life in maintaining—the title of Mass. Bay under their great Charter of 1628.

As the construction the Bay Colony put upon their charter would, if enforced, have swept away the entire property of all the Piscataqua planters, it must have encountered a hot and determined opposition from the whole river. The Massachusetts perceived that the Piscataqua planters were bitterly hostile to them in political and religious principles, and would on that account be likely to receive efficient aid from the old country, in case of an open conflict. Again, they must have known that the real intention of the King was only to grant them as their northern boundary a strip of land three miles wide following the course of the Merrimack river. The strip of selvage of that breadth, was intended, we suppose, to protect the river from the artillery of any adjoining province—the range of artillery of that day being usually computed at three miles. The Privy Council, as the Massachusetts well knew, were inimical to the Bay Colony, and would seize with avidity upon the slightest transgression of their chartered limits or corporate powers, as a ground for vacating the charter itself.

In these difficulties, the Bay Magistrates deemed it prudent to *1 Winthrop, 63. † Hubbard's Gen. Hist., p. 217.

break up and confuse, if possible, the solid front of opposition, before making an open attack; and to that end they resolved to get into their own hands the entire Hilton Patent, and thus extinguish the hostility of its present proprietors to their schemes and desires.

Accordingly, after concerting the plan with Gov. Winthrop and his assistants Capt. Wiggin shortly after his quarrel with Capt. Neale went out to England in 1632, and forming a company of "honest men," as Winthrop calls them, succeeded, with their aid, in purchasing from Hilton and his Bristol associates the entire Hilton Patent, at the price of £2150. The purchasers were Lord Say, Lord Brook, Sir Richard Saltonstall, Sir Arthur Hazlerigg, Mr. Whiting and other men of Shrewsbury, all of them Puritans and friends to Mass. Bay, who had been "writ unto," we are informed, "by the Governor and Magistrate of Massachusetts, who encouraged them to purchase the said lands of the Bristol men, in respect they feared some ill neighborhood from them."*

Capt. Wiggin, appointed manager for the new company, returned to New England with reinforcements and supplies, and a "godly minister," arriving at Salem Oct. 10, 1633.

As soon as he had entered into possession of the newly purchased territory, he took immediate steps, in accordance with the original understanding, to submit that territory to the jurisdiction of Massachusetts. Early in the following month he wrote to Gov. Winthrop, "that one of his people had stabbed another and desired he might be tried in the Bay, if the party died. The Governor answered, that if Pascataquaek lay within their limits (as it was supposed) they would try him."†

Before the next winter was passed, Capt. Wiggin again wrote to the Governor of Massachusetts, offering jurisdiction over erimes committed at the river, to the Bay Colony. "The Governor," says Winthrop "and divers of his assistants met and conferred about it, but did not think fit to try them here."±

The fact is, the scheme to purchase the Hilton Patent and then turn it over to Mass. Bay, had for the present utterly failed. Wiggin found it impossible to deliver his territory according to the bargain and understanding.

Intense hostility against their design sprang up at once among the original Hilton Point planters, who were in occupation of the ground. Edward Hilton was himself a royalist and a churchman, and the planters brought over by him during the period the patent was in his hands, were naturally of the same feather. These men had now taken up and improved the lands on Bloody Point and around the easterly side of Great Bay in considerable numbers, though without any legal title to them whatever. But, as none of the patents of the Piscatagua country, not even that of Capt. Mason of the Province of New Hampshire, conferred any rights of government and jurisdiction, but were all of them simply indentures or deeds of territory, it is obvious that there were no courts or tribunals on the land, before which these squatter rights could be called in question; and of course the triffing value of these little properties would deter any resort to the King in Council. The squatters upon the Piscataqua thus found their possessory titles practically unquestionable, so long as they kept aloof from Massachusetts. But on the contrary, if Massachusetts were permitted to stretch her boundaries over the river, in her train would come organized courts of Law, before which land titles could be brought up for trial. This view must have been appalling to most of the planters. These squatter planters could produce in Court no instruments of title to their lands; nor had their possession been long enough continued to raise a prescriptive title. What reasonable hope of protection then could they place in a Massachusetts Court on the trial of a real action brought by the favored proprietors of the Hilton Patent? In this emergency the planters, threatened by a common calamity, gathered together for resistance to Capt. Wiggin's designs, and with such vigor did they carry on the contest, that those designs were for a time baffled; and by a sort of petty revolution Wiggin was deposed from his office as Governor, to which he had been appointed by the proprietors of the Patent, and the people set up an independent government among themselves, under the name of a Combination. In that year, 1637, George Burdet, a staunch churchman, succeeded Wiggin as Governor. In 1638, that inconsistent, unstable character, Capt. John Underhill, having been disfranchised, brought under admonition and banished from Massachusetts, came to Dover and was chosen Governor over the Combination, upon the understanding, no doubt, that his principles were hostile to the Bay. After Capt. Underhill had held his office about three years, however, his principles or interests in that matter underwent a change. Although a new Combination was drawn up, dated Oct., 1640, and was signed by Underhill himself, the people soon discovered that he was plotting, after all, to bring the Piscatagua under the Mass. jurisdiction,* and following the lead of Thomas Larkham, a conformist clergyman, they raised another rebellion in the interest of their independence. The quarrel, embittered by religious dissensions, waxed hot and came to open violence. Hanserd Knollys, who was the minister of the Underhill faction, fulminated a bull of exeommunication against Larkham; and in return Larkham knocked off Knowles' hat. Captain Underhill and Knowles flew to arms, expecting help from the Bay, and "so marched out to meet Mr. Larkham, one earrying a Bible on a halberd for an ensign—Mr. Knowles being armed with a pistol. When Mr. Larkham saw them thus provided, he withdrew his party and went no further, but sent down to Mr. Williams, Governor of Strawberry Bank, for assistance, who came up with a company of armed men, and beset Mr. Knowles' house, where Capt. Underhill was, kept a guard upon him night and day till they could call a court, and then, Mr. Williams sitting as judge, they found Underhill and his company guilty of a riot and set great fines on them and ordered him and some others out of the Plantation."*

During the long continuance of these broils and dissensions, Massachusetts still hesitated to seize violently upon the Piscataqua. They feared the opposition of the planters under the river patents, to which we have already referred. They dreaded the bitter hostility of the numerous persons who had been banished from the Bay on account of their Antinomian principles, and taken refuge on the Piscataqua; they feared, perhaps, the vengeance of Sir Ferdinando Gorges and his grantees, whose territories in Maine would also be absorbed by the Mass. construction of their charter. But the Bay magistrates never permitted their claim over the Piscataqua to fall into oblivion. In 1636, for instance, Gov. Winthrop wrote to Dover, that if the latter dared to receive any persons that had been "cast out" from the Bay, it would be taken ill, and threatening them, that if such exiles were received, "they should survey their utmost limits and make use of them.†

But now at last, in 1640, amidst the turmoils and bitter quarrels among the inhabitants, Massachusetts saw her long awaited opportunity to spread her jurisdiction over the Piscataqua. The Company of Laconia had long since broken up; the grantees of Pescataway had nearly all of them withdrawn from further interest in the country; Capt. John Mason, the patentee of New Hampshire, had died in 1635, leaving that Province to an infant grandson; and all fear of the royal interference was dispelled amid the fast growing dissensions in the old country. Again the planters on the upper Piscataqua were, as we have seen, torn and paralyzed by civil and religions dissensions; and those on the lower plantation, who since Mason's death had laid claim to the ownership of the lands on which they resided, though without any legal title, and now lived in terror of Mason's heir, even they, though antipodal in every sentiment to the Bay strong arm of the Massachusetts.

Puritans, were inclined to seek protection for their property from the

In this propitious juncture of affairs, Massachusetts sent forward to the Piscataqua the famous Hugh Peters, with two others, "to understand the minds of the people, to reconcile some differences between them and to prepare them." * Peters spent a considerable time on the river, and upon his return in the spring of 1641, reported to Gov. Winthrop, that the Piscataqua people were, in his own words, "ripe for our Government, as will appear by the note I have sent you. They grone for Government and Gospel all over that side of the Country. Alas! poore bleeding soules." †

The precise methods used in preparing the people for the Puritan annexation have never been fully disclosed. Edward Hilton's assent was purchased by a covenant from the Massachusetts, that his estate should be ever after exempt from county rates.‡ Gov. Francis Williams of the lower plantation was secured for the measure, writes Peters, but the manner is not revealed. The chief inducement, however, held out to the population at large, seems to have been the promise of the Bay Colony, that they should "enjoy all such lawfull liberties of fishing, planting felling timber as formerly they have enjoyed in the said ryver." §

The general propositions having been settled upon, a committee was appointed on the part of the Piscataqua planters to come to an agreement with the agents of the Massachusetts upon all the various terms of the annexation. Such agreement was soon arrived at, and thus at last the entire Piscataqua region passed in 1641, under the jurisdiction of Mass. Bay.

The formalities adopted in perfecting the transaction were, first to procure from the then proprietors an absolute conveyance to the Massachusetts Colony of the jurisdiction over the Hilton Patent. This conveyance was made June 14, 1641, and executed by George Willis, gent. and others in behalf of the rest of the patentees; || and was followed the next October by an Act of the Mass. Gen. Court, accepting and declaring "the ryver Pascataquack" to be within the jurisdiction of the Massachusetts.¶

It is now, in 1641, that we first hear of the strange distorted construction of the Hilton Patent, which ever afterwards seems to have prevailed.

It will be remembered that the territory, really covered by the Hilton Patent, was, if our views are correct, only that small portion of the Piscataqua, extending from Dover Point to Quampegan Falls and three miles back into the country. But such a narrow construction was by no means sufficient for Massachusetts, if the submission of that patent was to be relied upon as a justification for their seizure of the entire river. It became necessary to seek some widely different construction from ours, in order to stretch the patent over the lands on the opposite side of the river down to its mouth. The Massachusetts and the patentees of the Hilton Patent easily found means to make such a construction in a slight ambiguity of its terms, to explain which we must invite a moment's careful attention to the topography of the country.

The Piscatagua river, taking its rise from the Wakefield ponds, descends in a southeasterly course and passes Hilton's Point (now Dover Point) on the lower or easterly side. At this prominent neck it meets a large body of water coming down at ebb tide from the westward, and then the two flow on together to the ocean, about seven miles below. As one ascends this large western body of water from Dover Neck, he reaches, about a mile above it, a prominent Point, now called Fox Point, so named, according to tradition, from the circumstance that, in olden times, when the country-side was up for a fox hunt, it was the custom to beat over a considerable extent of the neighboring cover and drive the game out upon this sharp promontory, from whence, as a fox never takes the water, there was no escape. At Fox Point, the river turns sharp about, at an acute angle, and ascending in a southerly direction expands into a lake, now called Great Bay, about four miles wide at its upper end. Great Bay is a tidal lake, not at all dependent upon the Piscataqua for its waters. At high tide, when this large basin is filled by the sea, the prospect over its pellucid surface, framed all around with green meadows and waving grain and noble woods, is truly enchanting. But when the tide is out, a vast bed of black ooze is exposed to view, traversed here and there by narrow canals, bearing the scanty waters of the several small streams, which empty into this great lagune. One of the largest of these streams, coming from the south and emptying into the upper extremity of this lagune, is now called Exeter river, and some five miles above its mouth are the Squamscott Falls.

Now the Hilton Patent, if we recall its terms, conveyed the Point itself, "with the south side of said river (Piscataqua) up to the falls of the river and three miles into the mainland by all the breadth aforesaid."

Why might not the words, "the south side of said river," reasoned the Bay authorities, appropriately designate the line drawn from the mouth of the river up to Fox Point and thence around Little and Great Bays to Squamscott river, and thence up that river (now called Exeter river) to the falls?* Great Bay and Exeter river might be made to pass as the Piscataqua; and Squamscott falls would answer well enough for the falls referred to in the description. At all events there was no power on the river, as we have before stated, to dispute whatever construction the Massachusetts chose to put upon the instrument. Accordingly, the construction we have mentioned was adopted and enacted into a law by Mass. Gen. Court, in June 1641, and made a part of the very instrument of submission, by which the Hilton Patent was put under their jurisdiction.

The language of the preamble to that convention,* was as follows: "Whereas some Lords, Knights, gentlemen, and others, did purchase of Mr. Edward Hilton and some merchants of Bristol, two patents, one called Wecohannet or Hilton's point, commonly called or known by the name of Dover or Northam, the other pattent, set forth by the name of the south part of the ryver of Pascataquack; beginning at the sea-side or near thereabouts & coming round the said land by the river unto the falls of Squamscott as more fully appears by the said grant, &c." Then follows a concession to the Mass. government, of jurisdiction over all the said territory, "Provided always," continues the instrument, "& it is hereby declared that one of the said patents, that is to say, that on the south side of the ryver of Pascataguack & in the other pattent one third of the land with all improved land in the said pattent to the Lords and gentlemen & other owners shall be & remain unto them, their heirs and assigns forever as their proper right and as having true interest therein, saving the interest of jurisdiction to the Massachusetts." "And this honored Court of the Massachusetts hearby promise to be helpful to the maintenance of the right of the Patentees in both the said Pattents in all the legal courses in any part of their jurisdiction.";

*See Appendix No. 3. † Appendix No. 3.

The preamble, it will be noted, recites that the Lords, &c., had purchased of Edward Hilton two patents, the one called Hilton's Point or Dover Patent; the other "set forth by the name of the south part of the ryver Pascataquack, &c." Some of our ablest antiquarians have charged the Massachusetts with having designed by this phraseology to raise a false belief in the public mind, that the Hilton Point or Dover Patent was a separate and distinct instrument from that which conveyed the south side of the river, on which latter, about this time they conferred the name of the Bloody Point Patent or more frequently, the Squamscott Patent. We think injustice has been done in this matter, from not attending with sufficient care to the meaning of the word Patent, as used in those days That word was employed to designate the teritory granted as well as the instrument of conveyance. Thus Dover Patent meant that portion of the lands conveyed by the Hilton Patent lying on the Dover side of the river; so, Bloody Point or Squamscott Patent designated the territory, construed to be covered by the Hilton Patent, which lay on the Squamscott side of the river. Indeed the land embraced within the present town of Stratham was called Squamscott Patent, until the incorporation of the town in 1715. (9 N. H. Prov. Pap. 778.) It was natural and convenient, when a Grand Council grant covered two distinct parcels of territory, that these parcels should take distinct names. The "Grant and Confirmation of Pescataway," for instance, embracing as it did lands on both sides of the river, for convenience was split into two distinct portions in common parlance, and that portion which lay on the southerly side of the river went by the name of the Great House Patent or twenty thousand Acre patent. There is no design in the preamble, above quoted, to convey a false impression that the titles to the Dover and Squamscott Patents were founded upon two separate and distinct instruments of conveyance; but, on the

Now, we enquire, does the Hilton grant purport to begin "at the sea-side or near thereabout," as the Gen. Court has enacted in 1641? Does it specify the "Falls of Quamscott" as the upper limit of the grant? Does it describe the boundary as "coming round the said land by the river," as the Mass. authorities have declared? We find no such language nor any such meaning in the Hilton Patent.

Indeed, it may well be doubted whether at the time the Hilton Patent was granted, the name Piscataqua was ever applied by the English or the Indians to the Exeter River, on which the Squamscott falls are situated.*

*The Indian name of our noble river was, as nearly as it can be expressed by English letters, Paskataquauke—or otherwise Paskataquagh—the last syllable being pronounced with a guttural sound and a forcible expulsion of the breath, not capable of representation by our letters, but closely resembling the sounds of the Gaelic or some of the Oriental tongues. This syllable quauke or quagh is clearly the Indian word auke signifying a place or locality—a word found scattered abundantly all over the Abenaki country, in combination with various descriptive prefixes. The prefix Pa-skata, as the Indians seem to divide the word, (with a strong accent upon the last syllable), we have recently been led to believe signifies a branch, division, separation.

Some fifteen years ago, as we are informed by Rev. Dr. Alonzo H. Quint of Dover, there happened to be a small party encamped at Dover Point, one of whom was then an Indian undergraduate in college, or recently graduated. Elder Samuel Sherburn, of Barrington, was there at the same time, engaged in the melaneholy search for the body of his son, who had been lost off a gundalow at Boiling Rock. One day Elder S. asked the educated Indian the meaning of the name "Piscataqua." The Indian at once held up three extended fingers, and said, "You see that? well, three rivers make one," referring, of course, to the fact that the two main branches of the Piscataqua and the Bellamy or Back river, all meet together at Dover Point.

Dover Point.

A few days after receiving this information from Dr. Quint, the writer chanced to meet on the steamboat that plies between the Shoals and Portsmouth, two Oldtown Indians on their return to the Penobscot. They were both men of middle age, apparently intelligent, and could converse, though with some difficulty, in English. On my enquiry of them as to the signification of "Piscataqua" (which they pronounced Pa-skata-quauke,) their answer was prompt and unpremeditated. Holding up their hands and extending two or three fingers, just as had been done by the Indian at Dover Point, they said Pa-skata meant a branch or division of the river into two or more parts—the whole word Paskataquauke meaning a place where boats and canoes ascending the river together from its mouth were compelled to separate according to their several destinations. Since that interview, the writer has conversed, on the same subject, with another party of Indians encamped for the summer at the Farragut House, Rye Beach. Their translation of the word Piscataqua was the same as above given. And that definition is also confirmed by Thoreau, who informs us in his "Maine Woods" on the authority of an Abnaki Indian, that Piscataquis, the name of a river in that State which empties into the Penobscot above Bangor, signifies "branch of a river," in the Abnaki dialect.

It will be remembered that some of the permanent settlements of the Indians were at the

in that State which empties into the Penobscot above Bangor, signifies "branch of a river," in the Abnaki dialect.

It will be remembered that some of the permanent settlements of the Indians were at the falls of Squamscott, Piscassoeke (Lamprey), and Shanhassick (Oyster river), the way to which lay up the vestern branch of the Piscataqua waters, and other settlements lay at Nee-week-wan-auke (my wigwam place), access to which was up the castern or main branch of the river. The water course to the Indian habitations at Cochecho falls and along Bell-amy or Back river, lay on the north and the north-west sides of the same Hilton's Point. That Point was thus to the Indians the most important and most striking natural object on the river. From the convenience of access to this conspicuous promontory for all the river Indians, it must always, we think, have been the chosen seene for the gathering of all the tribes, for their pow wows and their war-dances, and their green-corn dances and their general assemblies for purposes of war or the chase. And it was also the place where the Indians of the various villages on returning to their homes branched off from each other and paddled their canoes up the pellucid streams to their several wigwams.

Whether the native tribes had any general name for the whole river does not as yet appear. Probably not, if we are to reason by analogy from their usual custom in similar cases. The word Pascataquauke designated the branching of the river at Dover Point, and if we may be permitted to go a little way further into these dubious speculations, we inferfrom the Indian names above Dover Point that the branch of the great river particularly designated by that title was the westerly branch which reaches up to Fox Point and thence through Great Bay to Lamprey river. Our inference is drawn from the Indian names of these latter hodies of water. Great Bay was called by them Pascaquack, and Lamprey river bore the name of Pascasoeke, both of which words are but slight modifications of Pascata

The Patent of New Hampshire, for instance, issued to Mason in 1629, applies the name Piscataqua to the main stream, which comes down over Quampegan falls. So also the "Grant of Pescataway" in 1631 uses that term in the same sense.

Looking again carefully at the Mass. legislative construction of the Hilton Patent, we are curious to know what has become of the twenty-five square miles or thereabouts, really granted by that instrument, as we understand it. We find its entire rear boundaries carried away; nothing is left of the territory except what might pass under the two words "Hilton's Point"—at the utmost a few acres of barren ground, quite inadequate to the purposes of a trading and lumbering plantation such as Hilton intended to establish.*

Another serious consequence of this construction, if carried out, would have been the confiscation of almost the entire peninsula on the south side of the river, granted in 1631 to the nine Laconia adventurers. The plantation at Little Harbor, all the buildings, lands, and improvements at Great Island and Strawberry Bank, the result of large expenditures of money and ten years of labor and hardship, would have passed into the hands of the proprietors of the Hilton Patent, without the slightest compensation.

The Mass. construction of that Patent was, however, never fully carried out, as we shall see in the sequel. The chief purpose of that construction was to furnish the Bay Colony with such a pretext of jurisdiction over the New Hampshire plantations, as, in combination with the ambiguous terms of their own charter, might justify or excuse the advance of their northern limits to the banks of the Piscataqua. A few preliminaries having then been arranged, such as conferences with the inhabitants and the procurement of signatures to petitions for union with the Massachusetts, the latter colony, in Oct. 1641, took all the south Piscataqua plantations into their government, and retained them for nearly forty years, until, in 1679, New Hampshire was reclaimed from the Massachusetts by the King, and erected into a Royal Province.

On finally draughting the Statute of annexation, the question arose for determination, whether the Piscataqua should be taken into the Bay jurisdiction upon the voluntary submission of the planters and patentees of the Hilton Patent; or whether jurisdiction over that region should be assumed, as being within the Massachusetts bounds*.

called by them the Winnakahannet; above the Cochecho to the Great Falls it was named

It was, we suppose, by the English that the word Piscataqua, applied by the aborigines only to the branching of the stream at Dover Point, was first used to designate the entire river from its source in the Wakefield ponds to its mouth.

^{*}The Point must be carefully distinguished from the Neck. The former name, as appears from Dover Records, we are informed by Dr. Quint, was always confined between the very end of the promontory and a low huckleberry swamp, a short distance in the rear.

Feeling, we conjecture, that their title to the river under the Hilton patent, just submitted to their jurisdiction, was at least questionable, if not clearly worthless, the sagacious government of the Bay resolved, now that opposition was disarmed, to rest their right to the Piscatagua upon the vigor of their own charter. This position was highly advantageous for the Massachusetts, as it was already meditated to advance their chartered limits across the Piscatagua far north into the Province of Maine, upon the strength of that same construction of their charter. Accordingly, the Act of Annexation, consummated Oct. 9, 1641, making no mention whatever of the Hilton Patent, nor of the surrender of jurisdiction over it by its proprietors, nor of the voluntary submission of the people, though by these means only had the Massachusetts got control of the river, now, in the preamble, rests the Massachusetts title upon the sole and simple declaration, that the annexed territory lay within the original chartered limits of the Bay Colony;† and it is thereupon enacted "that from thenceforth the said people inhabiting there (on the river Pascataquack) are and shall be accepted and reputed under the Government of the Massachusetts as the rest of the inhabitants within the said jurisdiction are."±

Now that the jurisdiction of the Bay Colony had, in the way we have described, been securely extended over the long coveted Piscataqua, the Massachusetts had little or no further interest in the river patents, and no doubt would gladly have withdrawn from any further intermeddling in the matter. But difficulties and injustices of many sorts soon sprang up all over the annexed territory, which long disturbed the quiet of the new Government. Only a slight outline of these feuds and contentions, however, will the general subject of this paper permit us to present here.

The inhabitants of Bloody Point in particular, who had formerly crossed the river from Dover, as before stated, now found themselves in danger of being stripped of their farms. Under the Mass.

^{*2} Winthrop, 42. † Appendix, No. 4.
† By the terms of this statute of annexation of October, 1641, certain privileges were guaranteed to the Piscataqua people, as an inducement, no doubt to their yielding to Mass. jurisdiction. One of these was that "the inhabitants there are allowed to send two deputies from the whole ryver to the Court at Boston." This article was one of prime importance to the Piscataqua people, and flattered them with the hope that under its provisions they were really to secure a representation in the Gen. Court at Boston. This hope proved quite delusive as to the planters of the lower Piscataqua. The Act of Union undoubtedly granted them a right to send a deputy to General Court, but the laws of Massachusetts, it was found, rejected all deputies except freemen of their colony and members of the Congregational church in good standing. Now, as there was not for some years after the annexation any congregational church gathered "in a church way" at Strawberry Bank or Great Island, there were no suitable deputies to be found on the lower river. (I.N. H. Prov. Pap. 167.) Those benighted people succeeded in finding among them "a godly man" from Massachusetts, named James Parker, and him they deputed to Gen. Court in 1642 and 1643. In 1644, they sent Mr. Stephen Winthrop; but with the exception of these three years, no deputy came from the lower Piscataqua until the year 1653 (Id. 367); by which time the control of that region had fallen entirely and absolutely into the hands of the Puritan friends of Massachusetts.

contract with the owners of the Hilton or Squamscott patent, the latter's title to the whole of these lands was acknowledged and warranted by Act of Gen. Court, and more than this, upon the laving out of the limits of Dover in 1642, it would seem that the whole of Bloody Point was excluded out of Dover township, so that these now isolated planters had neither title to their farms, nor the protection of any organized town government, nor any rights in the town common lands. In these straits they applied earnestly to the General Court for relief, and the latter, whose favor to the proprietors of the Squamscott Patent was fast fading away, granted their prayer, and in 1643, an Act was passed, that "all the marsh and meadow grounds lying against the great bay or Strawberry Bank side shall belong to the town of Dover, together with 400 acres of upland ground adjoining or lying nere to the said meadow."* This Act was passed without the consent and against the protests of the proprietors of the Hil-The following year (1644) the Mass. Gen. Court ton Patent.† granted to the township of Dover the entire neek of land, known as Bloody Point, bounded on the southward by a line drawn from Canney's Creek to Hogstie Cove. (See Sketch Map.) This latter grant, like the former, was made, it would seem, in disregard of the rights of the owners of the Hilton Patent, towards whom, now that the jurisdiction of Massachusetts had become firmly fixed over the Piscatagua, the friendship of the latter had sensibly cooled.

So, too, the inhabitants of Strawberry Bank, though by the Act of 1641 all their estates were liable to seizure by the proprietors of the Hilton, or then more generally called Squamscott Patent, manfully struggled against that Patent and defied Capt. Wiggins "to bring his Pattent to this present Court." And some of the Dover people, even after the considerable concessions above mentioned had been made to them, maintained a hostile spirit to the Hilton Patent, as it had been construed, declaring in their Petition of 1654, that this "Patent wee conceive, (under favor) will be made voyde if it be well looked into."

Meantime, in the twenty years and upwards since the Puritan Lords and gentry of Shrewsbury had purchased the Hilton Patent for the convenience of Mass. Bay, its ownership had in various ways passed mostly into the hands of other proprietors, some of whom were by no means friendly to that colony. The property had been originally divided into twenty-five shares of one hundred pounds each, which shares passed from hand to hand by bills of sale, many of which are still to be found on record. At the period to which we have now arrived, from 1650 to 1656, the Hilton Patent had thus come to be largely owned in various proportions by a considerable number of New England persons, among whom were the Quaker, Nicholas Shapleigh, Edward Colcord, a man subsequently convicted by the Massachusetts "of many notable misdemeanors and crimes,"* and others

perhaps of similar stripe.

On the other hand, the lower plantation on the Piscataqua had, since 1641, undergone a complete transformation, civil and religious. A party of strict Puritans had, by the aid of the Massachusetts, gotten possession of that plantation, and under the system of the Bay Colony were enabled to perpetuate their power at their own pleasure, and to allot among themselves—some eight or ten in number—nearly all the valuable common lands within their limits. If we may trust the language of a petition to the King made in 1665, by some of the nonfreemen of Portsmouth, "five or six of the ritchest men of this parish ruled, swaied and ordered all offices both civil & military at their pleasure." These men, continues the petition, "have kept us under hard servitude, and denyed us in our publique meeting the Common prayer Sacramts and decent burial of the dead," "and not only so, but have also denied us the benefit of freemen wise at the election of officers, the aforesaid party always kept themselves in offices for the manageing of the gifts of lands & setling them * * * and have engrossed the greatest part of the lands within the precincts and limits of this plantation into their own hands, and other honest men, that have been here a considerable time have no lands at all given to them."

In this posture of affairs, it was not to be expected that the share-holders of the Hilton Patent should receive and further special favor from Massachusets, as against the Piscataqua settlements. For a considerable time, indeed, the General Court declined, though nrgently petitioned, even to order a partition of the Patent, but at last, in 1655, the Court partially yielded and appointed a Committee "to make a just division of the (patent) of Squamscott only & that which hath reference to Dover be respited untill another time."‡

The Report of this Committee, made the following year, in view, no doubt, of the impolicy if not impossibility of making a partition of all the territory declared to be within the Patent by the Act of 1641, proceeds upon the idea of effecting a compromise among the now numerous and discordant interests.

In the preamble, the Committee first lay down the extent of territory to be divided. They do not pretend to quote the exact language of the Patent, but content themselves with putting their own construction upon it. "When we came to peruse the Pattent," they say, "we found it to extend for the length of it from the lower part of the river Pascataquack on the south side of said river unto the falls of said river at Exeter and for breadth along the said river 3 miles from the falls of the head-line for the breadth of it."

The last clause of this description is, as it stands, utterly unintelligible. The obscurity seems to have been caused by the negligence of the transcriber of the Report. It so happened that in our researches among the original Mass. Records, we came upon another report of the Partition Committee made about a week before the Report finally adopted. As this first Report, not having been acted upon, was not printed among the Mass. Records, it has escaped the notice of our The preamble to the first Report,* which was obviously intended to be copied into the second, supplies the words (here printed in italics) which are necessary to give that second Report a meaning. Its language is this: "when we come to peruse the patent, we found itt to extend for the length of itt from the lower part of the river Pascataquack on the south side of the said river unto the falls of said river at Exeter; and for breadth along the said river three miles into the land upon which wee measured three miles from the falls for the Head Lyne for the breadth of itt."†

On comparing the preamble to this final Report (as corrected) with that of the Act of Submission of 1641, we find a material variance between them. By the former, the Hilton patent only reached down to the lower part of the river, while by the Act of Submission it is declared to begin "at the sea-side or thereabouts." In their Report, the Committee fix upon Boiling Rock as the lower boundary of the patent on the river, and in this easy and arbitrary manner, the entire settlements below Boiling Rock were excluded from the patent.

The committee, in their final Report, also except out of the patent all the extensive lands granted to and incorporated with Dover by the Mass. Gen. Court, together with a hundred and fifty acres added; and they also restrain the limits of the patent along the easterly part of Great Bay to a depth of one and a half miles into the land, instead of the three miles allowed by the Act of 1641; on the ground, they say, that "the land was so narrow to the seaward, that we can allow no more according to the intent of the Patent as we understand it." It seems plain that the Committee, in making their partition, acted and assumed to act, not as judicial officers, but rather in a spirit of compromise, in the hope of composing the long standing dissensions among the Piscatagua planters.

^{*}The most striking difference between these two Reports consists in this, that by the first nothing whatever is allowed out of the Patent to the Dover people or to the planters upon Bloody Point, though considerable tracts had been granted them in 1643 and 1644 by Act of Gen. Court. We suppose it was this strange or crafty omission which roused the people of Dover and Bloody Point (then a part of Dover) to active resistance to the adoption of the Committee's first Report; and led to the amended Report, which was finally approved. † 3 Mass. Archives, 452.

Their scheme was to satisfy as far as possible, or at least to appeare all the conflicting interests in the Squamscott territory. To the lower plantation they granted all the land below Boiling Rock; to Dover they confirmed the territory on Bloody Point and around Great Bay, which had been granted to the town in previous years; to the proprietors of the Hilton or Squamscott Patent they reserved only the remainder, which they then proceeded to divide up among the three classes or ranks of these proprietors in the general manner, as we understand the Report, designated upon the accompanying Sketch The portion colored upon the map in yellow was assigned to the "Shrewsbury men;" that in blue was laid off to Capt. Thomas Wiggin and his partners;* that in red, which had long since been granted by Massachusetts to Dover, was confirmed to that township, and that colored green was allotted to Gardiner, Lake, and their partners.†

*It is curious to notice, on comparing the northern boundary of Capt. Wiggin's portion with the southerly bound of the "Pescataway Grant," how nearly, if not precisely, they correspond. The Great Bay would, of course, constitute the natural northern bound of the second division granted to Wiggin and his partners, and it is difficult to understand why the committee adopted the limit laid down in their Report, unless they were acquainted with the bounds of the Pescataway Grant, and desired to keep the Captain's own lands out of harm's way against any contingencies.

† The various localities marked upon our sketch map, indispensible to any clear understanding of our subject, have been ascertained from documents, records, statutes, &c., with as much of care and pains as the difficulty of the research required

Canney's Creek or Core (erroneously called Kinges Creek in the printed Report of partition) lay on the Long Reach of the Piscataqua, about a half a mile above Boiling rock, and next below the lower bound of the ancient Rawlins farm, still in possession of that family. Its exact location appears from the terms of the grant made by Portsmouth in 1661, to Capt. Brian Pendleton of a tract of 240 acres of land "next to James Rawlins," "which takes its beginning," says the record, "at Kenney's cove and runs down by the riverside 80 rods to Pyne cove and thence into the woods 480 rods to the edge of the Pitch pine Plain upon a W. S. W. Lyne." (1 Ports. Rec. p. 77.) The several grants made about the same time to other persons, of all the remaining lands down the river to Boiling Rock, estabish the distance of Canney's cove above that prominent landmark. The reason why this little cove was selected as the lower boundary of Bloody Point was, we conjecture, that it just embraced the land of James Rawlings, an early and influential Dover man, whose farm had the cove for its lower boundry.

embraced the land of James Rawlings, an early and inducatial Dover man, whose farm had the cove for its lower boundry.

"Hogstye Cove" is ascertained from the terms of a survey made by Portsmouth in 1695. Mr. George Snell and William Vaughan, the surveyors, "run the line," they report, "from Canney's Cove in the longe rech to Hoggstye cove at the mouth of ye great Bay, and from the middle of the mouth of ye one cove to the middle of ye mouth of ye other is West and by South and East & by North and strikes Mr. William Furber's Barne." (1 Ports. Rec. p. 330.)

lies in the vicinity.

The entire neck of land lying above the line drawn from Canney's Creek to Hogstye Cove was originally called, from the circumstances of the quarrel between Captain Wiggin and Neal, before referred to, Bloody Point, a name still retained by a projection into the river

Neal, before referred to, Bloody Point, a name still retained by a projection into the liver nearly opposite Dover Point.

"Cotterill's Dglight" was a location at the extreme south-east corner of Great Bay near the mouth of Winnicot river, or perhaps Packer's creek. (1 N. H. Prov. Pap. 208, 222. 1 Ports. Rec. Anno 1666.) We have been unable to discover the origin or meaning of this name. The site of Captain Champernown's house upon the magnificent farm of the late Col. Joshua W. Peirce at Greenland, is still pointed out to the delighted antiquary. Here dwelt for many years, in something of antique breadth and state, that relative and almost companion of Rawleigh and Gilbert; that noble born and bred of all New Hampshire's first planters.

Grand old English oaks, planted, as tradition has it, by the Captain's own hands, still lift their brave vigorous heads over the fertile meadows, true Herne's oaks, we exclaimed at the

The partition thus made of the Hilton or Squamscott Patent, in 1656, as we have described it, was accepted as final so far as it related to the two portions set off to the "Shrewsbury men" and to Captain Wiggin—those colored on the map in blue and in yellow. As to these portions there had never existed any conflicting title, except that of John Mason and his heirs under his patent of New Hampshire—a title, which, in the then political condition of England under Cromwell, hardly amounted to a cloud.

The remainder of the Hilton or Squamscott patent, as laid down by the Committee, lay wholly within the Pescataway Grant.* But though the owners of the Pescataway or Great House Patent had, as we have argued, a superior title to the whole peninsula, embraced within their limits, yet in the present posture of affairs, now that all the land below Boiling Rock was reserved to them by the Committee for Partition, it was deemed better by John and Richard Cutt, Capt. Brian Pendleton, Richard Martyn, Joshua Moodey and the few others who then ruled the lower plantation under the Massachusetts, to negotiate peaceably for the purchase of the small remainder of land, left to the Squamscott proprietors, than to undertake a probably fruitless appeal to the Courts of Law. Having resolved on this course, the above named gentlemen so managed the affair, that in a few years they themselves became owners of nearly the entire tract.

In 1658, or before that year, the selectmen of Portsmouth bought of Thomas Lake the entire tract of land between Kenney's Creek and Boiling Rock, on the river, and running back nearly a mile and a half into the land "to the edge of the pitch pine plain upon a W.

first glance—unique in New Hampshire—a scene as beautiful as that from Windsor castle over Datchet Mead.

The ancient name, Sandy Point, is retained to the present day. Not far from this point is still discernible the cellar of the famous Squamscott house. Capt. Thomas Wiggin, so often referred to in these pages as the constant friend of Mass. Bay, erected this house about 1650, and here he died in 1667. For fourteen years he had held the high office of assistant to the Governor of Mass. Bay, the only Piscataqua man, we believe, ever chosen to that position. Having, in 1651, purchased of Thomas Lake a large interest in the Squamscott Patent, there was allotted to him and his partners (who subsequently released their interests to him), a territory three miles square, along Exeter river, now embraced in the town of Stratham. In close proximity to the "Squamscott House," in a field which slopes north towards the Bay, and almost upon the northern boundary of his land, are buried the bodies of that grim, sturdy Puritan and several generations of his family. The present owner of this burial ground, a lineal descendant of Captain Thomas, conducted us to the cemetery. Headstones, footstones, inscriptions, were all gone. Great maples and oaks were growing over the ancient God's acre: dead leaves rustled along the weird and shadowy ground. As the Puritan had in his life resembled Joshua, the son of Nun, who lead the children of Israel into a land flowing with milk and honey, so, like Joshua, was he fitly buried "in the border of his inheritance, in Timmath-scrah, on the north side of the hill of Gaash."

^{*}This latter grant was still held as the cherished property of the town of Portsmouth. Even so late, for instance, as 1660, Portsmouth appointed Commissioners to run out the line between that town and Hampton, "always provided" says the record, "that not any of the lands belonging to the Great House Patent be granted to be in the township of Hampton by those empowered by us." (1 Ports. Rec. p. 66.) The Great House Patent seems to have been the familiar title of the old "grant and confirmation of Pescataway," so far as it applied to the southerly side of the river. This southerly section of the Pescataway Grant appears also to have been sometimes entitled the "Twenty Thousand acre Patent." (1 N. H. Prov. Pap. 83-96.) Pap. 83-96.)

S. W. Lyne." The consideration paid by the town was £50. In 1661 this large tract was divided and laid out among Capt. Brian Pendleton and his associates;* 240 acres each to Capt. Pendleton and John Cutt, 80 acres to Joshua Moodey, and 52 acres to Richard

Martyn.

This large and valuable tract stretching from Winnicut River along Great Bay to Sandy Point seems to have lain unappropriated until 1669, at which time the town, having determined to assert their own superior title over it against the Squamscott patentees, granted two-thirds of the entire tract to John Cutt, Nathaniel Freyer, Capt. James Pendleton and others, "provided," continues the Record, "the parties abovesaid maintain and defend the same in the towne's behalf at their, the aforesaid parties owne proper cost and charge against any that shall oppose—further that the town grants and confirms unto Mr. Andrew Wiggin the right and title to his land, as was granted to him by Capt. Lake and Capt. Waldron with the priviledges of our town, provided wee recover the land aforesd by law."† A few grants to private individuals seem also to have been made by Lake and Waldron out of their portion of the Squamscott Patent, but on quite nominal considerations.

In these several ways, the pretended claim of the Hilton Point proprietors to any of the land covered by the "Grant of Pescataway," or "Great House Patent," was at last extinguished, or repudiated, and nearly the whole of that territory (except what remained to Dover) fell into the hands of a knot of men at Portsmouth, as rapacious as they were harsh and bigoted.

As to the "Dover Patent," or northerly portion of the Hilton Patent, as it was construed by Massachusetts, we do not find that any steps were ever taken to lay out and bound the land covered by it, but the township of Dover having been partly bounded out in 1642, shortly after the union of the Piscataqua to Massachusetts, received in 1656, concurrently with the partition of Squamscott, a quit claim from the planters of all their interest in Dover, with a slight reservation of about 16 acres.‡

The only substantial advantage derived from the Mass. construction of the Hilton Patent was taken by the Massachusetts themselves. Jurisdiction over the Piscataqua had been obtained by the skilful use of that instrument, and when once got, it was firmly kept, after that instrument had disappeared. But this usurpation, of which it has been said "a more unjust and tyranical act never was perpetrated on this continent," \security was not destined to endure for many years. The people of the lower Piscataqua were in spirit deadly hostile to the Mass. Bay. Shortly after the annexation, a few of the Puritan sort and faith had crept into the country, and by the aid of the Bay had seized on the offices and places of power and appropriated to themselves nearly all the common lands; but the original planters grew daily more and more incensed. In 1651, the inhabitants of Strawberry Bank openly rebelled and attempted to withdraw their subjection to the Boston government.* But this outbreak was suppressed. Another effort was made to the same purpose on the arrival of the Royal Commissioners in 1664, though without permanent success. But in 1679, the Massachusetts usurpation over the Piscataqua was terminated by the erection of New Hampshire into a Royal Province.

Thus did the last fruits of the Hilton Patent decay and perish; thus were the angry broils of forty years composed. The proprietors of the Patent had after all profited little or nothing by the attempted appropriation of Piscataqua lands; the Massachusetts were in the end compelled to disgorge the purloined jurisdiction they had so uneasily obtained and kept, and thus retributive justice was at last meted out to all the actors in the transaction.

In conclusion and recapitulation of the views presented in this monograph, we have endeavored to show that it was the desire of Mass. Bay to include the Piscataqua region within her limits and to secure there a good neighborhood of "honest men," which led her magistrates to effect, through their friend Capt. Thomas Wiggin, in 1633, a purchase and transfer of the Hilton Point Patent to the Puritan Lords and gentlemen of Shrewsbury; whose successors in 1641, in accordance, we suppose, with the original understanding, made a full submission of the Patent to Mass. jurisdiction. At the same time, in furtherance of the same general design, a statutory construction was put upon the Patent, by which it was split into two distinct portions, and the lower or Squamscott portion was violently stretched so as to cover the whole southern bank of the river from Squamscott falls to its mouth.

The Hilton Patent having thus served its political and religious purpose, was never fully enforced. Large portions of its territory were granted to Dover and a still larger part was retained by Strawberry Bank, and in the conclusion of the whole matter, the Squamscott patentees took but trifling advantage from the distorted misconstruction of their grant.

The long controversy was no doubt of trifling importance, but whoever will study it attentively will see displayed such a stubborn conflict between patentee and planter; such a hot contention between

^{* 1} N. H. Prov. Pap., 195.

Royalist and Roundhead; such fierce hatred between Puritan and Churchman; and at all times such political sagacity and vigor of thought, as make the story of the Hilton Point Patent (only a brief outline of which we have sketched) the most instructive if not entertaining in the early annals of New Hampshire.

The real history of New Hampshire during the first half century of its existence has not been written. Until a very recent date, the only original materials for such a history, available to our students, were the scanty relics of our town and county records, and a few documents preserved among the Archives of Massachusetts or in private hands together with some casual hints and prejudiced notices of the Piscataqua to be found among the historians of Plymouth and Dr. Belknap's narrative of this early period, founded upon materials such as these—the only ones, however, at his command eould at best have drawn a mere outline of its history; and now it turns out that even the outline of our early history made by that elegant historian is utterly mistaken and distorted. The annals of New Hampshire, from the time of its first planting down to its erection into a royal province, in 1679, require to be entirely rewritten. A great mass of new materials for that purpose has lately been gathered together by our antiquarians, and now await only the kindling pen of an impartial historian to shed a clear and satisfactory light over the tortuous ways and the dark mysteries of our early history.

NOTE.

Previous to our discovery of this instrument, our knowledge of its terms was derived solely from the abstract printed in Hubbard's Gen. Hist. of New England, p. 215. Hubbard had evidently seen a true copy of the instrument which he states was then extant (circa 1680) in the hands of some gentleman living at Portsmouth. He quotes accurately considerable portions of the document; but when he undertakes to set forth a condensed description of the limits of the Grant, his language, as printed, is misleading or unintelligible. The text is as follows: "Among other things there is also added [to the Pescataway grant] salt works, lying and being situate near the harbor of Pascataqua with all the lands adjoining, that run along five miles westward by the sea-coast, and so to cross over in an angle of three miles breadth towards a plantation in the hands of Edward Hilton supposed to be about Dover and so towards Exeter."

This description is absolutely without meaning. What signification can be attached to the words, "and so to cross over in an angle of three miles breadth towards a plantation in the hands of Edward Hilton?" And, moreover, this description, as it stands printed, purporting to be copied out of the Patent itself, is on its face erroneous, for how could a Grant, made in 1631, refer to the town of Exeter, which was unknown and unnamed until several years later?

We may be confident that the Rev. William Hubbard did not write any such description of the "Pescataway Grant," as is printed in his history, and that the jargon of his printed language has been introduced by the ignorance of carelessness of his transcribers, or by the impossibility of deciphering at times "Hubbard's crabbed autograph." As is well known, the "General History of New England" was printed by the Mass. Hist. Society from a manuscript which once belonged to Prince. This manuscript was not in the author's own handwriting, and different portions of it were copied by several different transcribers, some of whose chirography is illegible to the most careful study. Under such circumstances, the printed History could hardly escape numerous errors which, though they have severely shaken the authority of the work, are not justly chargeable against the "learned and ingenious author" himself.

Whoever will take the pains to compare Hubbard's description of the "Grant of Pescataway," above quoted, with the language of the Instrument itself, will be satisfied that he had before him a copy of the instrument at the time he extracted his description from it, because the words used in this description are nearly all of them to be found in the Grant. The description, as printed, purports from its inverted commas to be quoted literally from the instrument itself. This is obviously incorrect, as Hubbard undertakes only to give the substance, not the language, of the grant.

What were the exact words used by the historian in making up his epitome of the Pescataway grant, we shall perhaps never know; but it may be entertaining, in the absence of any sort of knowledge on the subject, to indulge in fanciful conjectures. Suppose we supply to Hubbard's description the few words, here printed in italics, to be found in the Patent itself, but omitted perhaps by the transcriber; the clause will then read thus:

"Among other things there is also added salt works lying and being situate near the harbor of Pascataqua with all the lands adjoining, that run along five miles westward by the sea coast and al-so the lands on the cast side of the river, to cross over into the landward at a right angle by the space of three miles breadth towards a Plantation in the hands of Ed. Hilton supposed to be about Dover and so towards Exeter."

The description, as thus amended, would be an intelligible and generally accurate abstract of the limits of Pescataway Grant.

THE ACT OF UNION.

A General Court held at Boston the 9th day of the 8th month 1641. Whereas it appeareth that by the extent of the line (according to our patent) that the ryver of Pascataquack is within the jurisdiction of the Massachusetts & conference being had (at severall times) with the said people & and some deputed by the Generall Court for the setteling and establishing of order in the administration of justice there. It is now ordered by the Generall Court holden at Boston the 9th day of the 8th month 1641, & with the consent of the inhabitants of the said rvver as followeth:

Imprimis, That from henceforth the said people inhabiting there are and shall be accepted & reputed under the government of the Massachusetts as the rest of the inhabitants within the said jurisdiction are.

Also that they shall have the same order and way of administration of justice and way of keeping courts as is established at Ipswich & Salem.

Also that they shall be exempted from all publique charges other than those that shall arise for, or from among themselves or from any occasion or course that may be taken to procure their own particular good or benefit.

Also they shall enjoy all such lawfull liberties of fishing, planting felling timber as formerly they have enjoyed in the said ryver.

Mr Simon Bradstreete, Mr Israell Stoughton, Mr Samuel Symonds, Mr Willi. Tynge, Mr Francis Williams & Mr. Edward Hilton or any four of them, whereof Mr Bradstreete or Mr Stoughton to bee one these shall have the same power that the Quarter Courts at Salem and Ipswich have.

Also the inhabitants there are allowed to send two deputyes from the whole ryver to the Court at Boston.

Also Mr Bradstreete, Mr Stoughton and the rest of the commissioners shall have power at the Court at Pascataquaek to appoint two or three to joyne with Mr Williams & Mr Hilton to govern the people as the magistrates do here till the next Generall Court, or till the Court take further order.

It is further ordered that until our commissioners shall arrive at Pascataquack, those men who already have authority by the late combination to govern the people there shall continue in the same authority & power to be determined at the coming of the said commissioners & not before. REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON PARTITION.

May 22, 1656.

We whose names are hereto subscribed according to an order of the honored Generall Court in November 1655, appointinge us to make a first devision of the Pattent of Swamscott doe thus make our returne.

When we come to peruse the Pattent we found it to extend for the length of it from the lower part of the river Pascataquack on the south side of said River unto the falls of said River at Exeter, & for breadth along the said River 3 miles from the falls of the head lyne for the breadth of it, which head lyne we run upon a southeast poynt of the compass which ended three quarters of a mile beyond Aspe brooke towards Hampton about 40 pole beyond or below the high way where we marked a great red oak on fowre sides.

2dly. From the said head lyne we measured for the length on the Northeast poynt of the Compass 6 miles & a halfe the which extended to that part of the bay near Winicott River.

3dly. We measured a second cross line for breadth beginning at Squamscott house extending it 3 miles upon the south east poynt where we did mark several pine trees. The rest of the land belonging to the Pattent about & below the great bay we understood to be impassable as to measuringe by reason of the exceedinge thick swamps; but we took the best information we might of diverse & severall inhabitants of the great Bay & Straberry Banke & their reports agreed viz., that from the lower part of the bottom of the Bay neere Captain Champoun's house to the River neere the Boyling Rock or thereabouts all the neck of land within that Lyne unto the little Bay Contayning as neere as men of best experience can informe about 4 miles square being all within the Pattent. And whereas from the easterly part of the great Bay, being a part of the river, we should have measured 3 miles into the land we find in that place by credible information the land so narrow to the seaward that we can allow no more according to the intent of the Pattent as we understand it that one mile and a halfe to be run from each poynt of the bottom of the Bay upon an easterly line into ye land.

To the matter of service appoynted unto us by the Generall Courte concerning divissions of the Pattent, we finding the present owners to be of three sorts or ranks we have therefore agreed to make three severall divissions. The first division being 8 shares & one quarter belonging to Mr. Nathaniel Gardner, Mr. Tho. Lake and partners, we assign and lay out to them all the land from Bloody Point unto the boyling Rock for breadth or thereabouts & for length extendinge to the lower lyne of the middle devission which is about 40 pole from Sandy Poynt & so the lyne running southeast 3 miles in the land as also the land lying upon the bottom of the great Bay, being or extendinge one mile & halfe from every part of the bottom of the bay upon an east'ly lyne into the woods in which division of the land & marsh graunted unto Dover by the generall Court shall be & remayne to them forever viz., the land from Kinges Creeke to a certain Cove neere the mouth of the great Bay called Hogstye Cove with all the marsh from that place round about the bay up to Cotterills Delight with 400 acres of upland as it graunted by the Court bounded layd out and possessed by the inhabitants of Dover with 50 acres of upland more about or neere the great Bay with 50 acres to be layd out and disposed of by Capt. Richard Walden to some of the inhabitants of Dover, whom he sees fitt.

The second division being 8 shares and one quarter belonging to Capt. Thomas Wiggin and partners, who have purchased and obtained the same, we assigne & lay out 3 miles square beginning at a plump of trees standing on a peece of old planting land about 40 poles below Sandy Poynt, & up the river upon a streight line toward Exeter, the River being the bounds of it on the North side & at each end to run a lyne upon the southeast poynt of the Compass 3 miles into the land there to bound it on that side, Provided that Capt. The Wiggin pay unto the other two thirds the sum of £66 13s 4d according to their shares and proportions in boards within 6 months if demanded which he is to pay at either of his saw-mills in Pascataquack river.

To the third division being 8 shares & one quarter belonging to the Shrewsbury men, to which we assign & lay out all that land from the uppermost lyne of the middle division to the mouth of the Creeke called Mr. Wheelwrights creeke, the same to run 3 miles towards Hampton upon a southeast lyne all the land between this lyne & Exeter falls to the full extent of the Lyne to ly[e] to Exeter, being graunted to them by deed of gift by Capt. Wiggan sole Agent for the Company.

The Court allows and approves of the returne of this Committee as is here exprest.

REPRINTED FROM

PROCEEDINGS OF THE MASSACHUSETTS HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

Vol. 14, p. 358.

THE INDENTURE OF DAVID THOMSON AND OTHERS.

A Paper Communicated to the Historical Society of Massachusetts May 11, 1876. By Charles Deane.

Some two or three years ago, the President of this Society, Mr. Winthrop, placed in my hands an old parchment deed,—discovered among his rich ancestral treasures of a like character,—which he said contained the name, among others, of David Thomson. I found it, on examination, to be an indenture, dated 14th December, 1622, between David Thomson, of Plymouth, of the one part, and three merchants,—viz., Abraham Colmer, Nicholas Sherwill, and Leonard Pomery, also of Plymouth,—of the other part. This parchment, 17 by 20 inches in size, was that part of the indenture which contained the covenants and the signatures of the three merchants just named. An exact copy of the document is given below; but, in order that the reader may get at its meaning in fewer words, I will here give a résumé of it.

The indenture recites that the Council for New England had granted to David Thomson, under date of the 16th October, 1622, six thousand acres of land and one island in New England; and that Thomson had absolutely conveyed one-fourth part of the island to the three merchants of Plymouth named, with covenants to convey in fee simple the fourth part of the six thousand acres. In consideration whereof, it is agreed between the parties as follows:—

First. That the three merchants will, at their own charge, this present year, provide and send two men, with Thomson, in the ship "Jonathan, of Plymouth," to New England; with victuals and provisions, &c., as shall suffice them till they are landed. And, if they land there within the space of three months after the ship shall pass Ram Head (a promontory just outside of Plymouth Sound), the residue of the three months' victuals shall be delivered to Thomson at his landing, there to be disposed of by him towards finding a fit place for the intended habitation, and also to begin the same.

Second. The three merchants will this present year, at their own charge, provide and send three men more, in the ship "Providence," of Plymouth, if they may be so soon gotten, or in some other ship, with the first expedition that may be, to New England; the charges of these three men to be borne equally by all the parties.

Third. Two men more are to be sent this present year in the "Jonathan," the charges of them to be borne by all the parties equally.

Fourth. As soon as Thomson and the seven men are landed in New England, he shall, as soon as convenient, find out a fit place to make choice of the six thousand acres of land, and a fit place to settle and erect some houses or buildings for habitations, and to begin the same. Adjoining these buildings, there shall be allotted, before the end of five years, six hundred acres of land, which, with all the buildings and everything appertaining to them, shall, at the end of said five years, be divided equally between all the parties; and all the charges for building, planting, and husbanding, &c., during that time, shall be equally borne by all. The residue of the six thousand acres to be also divided in a convenient time between the parties in four parts, whereof Thomson is to have three-fourths, and the other three parties one-fourth.

Fifth. At the end of five years, the island shall be divided in four parts, whereof Thomson is to have three parts, and the others one part.

Sixth. Three-fourths of the charge for planting, husbanding, and building on the said island, shall be borne by Thomson, and one-fourth by the other parties.

Seventh. All the profits during the five years that may arise on the six hundred acres, by fishing, trading, &c., shall be divided equally; only the merchants shall have liberty to employ ships to fish at their own charge, if Thomson does not bear his share of such charge.

Eighth. All benefits and profits arising during the five years on the residue of the six thousand acres, and on the island, shall be divided among them; Thomson to have three parts, and the others one part. Each of them shall, on request, deliver a just account of his receipts and payments during the five years.

The three merchants named in this covenant are persons well known in the history of Plymouth, in England.

Abraham Colmer (or Colman) was Mayor of that town in 1615 and in 1627, and Alderman in 1626. Nicholas Sherwell was Mayor in 1618, 1628, and 1637. In 1625, "Thos. and Nic. Sherwell erected, founded, and established the Hospitall of Orphans' Aid" in that city. Leonard Pomeroy was a member of the Council in 1612, and Mayor in 1623. On the 22d March, 1630, the ship "Jonathan, of Plymouth," of 150 tons, is mentioned as owned by Nicholas Sherwell and Abraham Colemer. "Mr. Fowell," probably John, one of the witnesses to the scaling and delivering of the indenture, was "Town Clarke" of Plymouth in 1612.*

^{*}See "A History of Plymouth," by Llewellynn Jewett, F. S. A., 1873, pp. 145, 147, 152, 165, 167, 171, 176; Cal. S. P. Domestic, 1626, p. 511; 1630, p. 468; 1637, p. 6; 1638, p. 607.

David Thomson himself is too well known in the early history of New England, to need special mention here. He came over in the spring of 1623, and settled at a place called "Little Harbor," on the west side of the Piscataqua River, where he is found in that year by Robert Gorges and by Christopher Levett. About the year 1626, he took possession of the island in Boston Harbor which now bears his name, where he soon after died, leaving a wife and an infant son to whom the General Court of Massachusetts subsequently granted this island. In Robert Gorges's patent, he is styled "David Thomson, gent." Winslow calls him a "Scotchman." In this indenture, he is described as of "Plymouth." His name is often mentioned in the Records of the Council for New England. He appears to have been actively employed in a confidential capacity as a sort of agent or messenger of the company.

On the 5th of July, 1622, "It is ordered that David Thomson do attend the Lords, with a petition to his Majesty for forfeits committed by Thomas Weston. As also to solicit the Lords for procuring from his majesty a proclamation concerning the fishermen of the western parts. Likewise to procure some course for punishing their contempt of authority."

On the 24th of July, "Mr. Thomson is appointed to attend the Lords, for a warrant to Mr. Attorney-General for drawing the new patent."

On the 8th of November, "Mr. Thomson is ordered to pay unto Leo. Peddock £10 towards his pains for his last employments to New England."

On the 11th of November, "Mr. Thomson is appointed to attend

Sir Robert Mansell," concerning Captain Squibb's commission.

On the 15th of November, "Mr. Thomson and the clerk" are directed to "see the tun of iron weighed," to be sent to Whitby. And on the same day "Mr. Thomson is appointed to solicit Capt. Love to pay in the £40 for which Sr. Saml. Argall standeth engaged," &c.

On the 16th of November, "It is ordered that Mr. Thomson solicit the adventurers for payment in of their moneys"; and under the same date, "Mr. Thomson's patent was this day signed by the above-

said Council."

On the 3d of December, "Mr. Thomson propoundeth to have order from the Council for transportation of ten persons with the provisions for New England. And the persons so transported to pay the Council the usual rate for their transportation, after the expiration of two years."

This indenture, as will be seen, recites a grant from the Council of

New England to Thomson, under date of 16th October, 1622. The Records of the Council show no grant to him under that date; but under 16th November we read, "Mr. Thomson's patent was this day signed by the above said Council." It may have been drawn in the previous month, and the date inserted, but not signed till later.

That the whole programme indicated in this indenture was carried out according to its terms, I should hesitate to affirm. But that the preliminaries of it were entered upon, there is no reason to doubt. This indenture was executed in two parts. The part before us, signed by the Plymouth merchants, belonged to Thomson, was brought over with him, and after his death, in Massachusetts, found its way to the possession of Governor Winthrop. It may have been used incidentally as evidence in the subsequent controversy about Thomson's Island. The assistance agreed upon at the outset by the merchants must have been afforded. It is not likely that Thomson would have come over without assistance; and here we find the agreement for the requisite aid, made by responsible merchants, engrossed on parchment, and the name of the vessel given to be employed in the transportation of him and the men to be sent over in their service.

In the extracts cited above from the Records of the Council for New England, where Thomson's name so often appears from July to December, 1622, the two last entries indicate his plans and intentions respecting New England. After the 3d of December, his name disappears from the Records.* He was preparing to go to New England, and was now employed at Plymouth in making arrangements for the voyage. His indenture with the merchants is dated the 14th of that month, in which they agree that the vessel in which he was to be transported to New England, the "Jonathan, of Plymouth," should be sent "this present year," which ended on the 24th March. In a few months later we find Thomson himself here. †

^{*} Under the date of the 25th of the following February, the elerk was ordered to call upon Mr. Collingwood (who had formerly been elerk of the Council, but now was elerk of the Virginia Company) for a copy of Sir John Bruce's patent. The elerk makes the following memorandum: "Mr. Collingwood answered me that he hath delivered all the books to Sir Ferd. Gorges and to Mr Thomson"; that is, some time previously.

[†] The earliest notice of David Thomson's purpose respecting New England is in the Records of the Council for New England, under the date of 16th November, 1622. "Mr. Thomson's patent was this day signed by the above said Council." Then under date of 3d December, "Mr. Thompson propoundeth to have order from the Council for transportation of 10 persons with the provisions for New England. And the persons so transported to pay the Council the usual rate for their transportation, after expiration of 2 years." Next follows the indenture before us, dated 14th December, 1622, containing the agreement to send Thomson out to New England in the ship "Jonathan," "this present year." In the patent to Robert Gorges, of 30th December of this year, "David Thomson, gent.," is authorized to put Gorges in possession of the premises.

The earliest notice of Thomson's being in New England is in Winslow's "Good News," published in 1614. In describing events, apparently in the summer of 1623, he says: "At the

The earliest notice of Thomson's being in New England is in Winslow's "Good News," published in 1614. In describing events, apparently in the summer of 1623, he says: "At the same time, Captain Standish, being formerly imployed by the Governor to buy provisions for the refreshing of the Colony, returned with the same, accompanied with one Mr. David Tomson, a Scotchman, who also that spring began a plantation twenty-five leagues Northeast from us, near Smith's Iles, at a place called Pascatoquack, where he liketh well."

Winslow, in his "Good News," says that Thomson began his plantation in the "spring" of 1623. The "Jonathan" would, no doubt, be fitted out by her owners for fishing upon the coast of New England, after having landed her freight at Piscatagua River; such general intention being expressed in the indenture, by an agreement that they might pursue that business, independently of Thomson, if he did not choose to bear part of the charge. As it was always desirable to reach the fishing grounds early, by the 1st of March certainly, for the first season of New England fishing, the vessel would be likely to sail as early as January.

Every thing therefore combines to make it historically certain that Thomson came over according to the agreement made in this indenture. To these considerations it may be added, that the theory which has existed for nearly a hundred years, that Thomson came over in the employment of the Laconia Company,—a theory promulgated by the accomplished Belknap,—has no foundation in truth, and had been exploded before the discovery of this Thomson indenture. Thomson had removed from Piscataqua to Massachusetts Bay, and had died there, before the Laconia Company was in existence. Belknap undoubtedly adopted this theory as an inference from some passages in Hubbard's History of New England. Historical facts seem often

Governor Bradford, in speaking of Weston's Colony, under date of 1623, says, "There were also this year some scattering beginnings made in other places, as at Paskataway, by Mr. David Thomson, at Monhigen, and some other places, by sundry others." Bradford also speaks of the arrival of Gorges in the Bay of Massachusetts, about the middle of September, 1623; of his coming to Plymouth, and of his dealings with Weston; finally, of his returning from the eastward "towards the spring" at which time he visited Thomson, as we learn from Christopher Levett, and restoring to Weston his vessel which he had taken from him. Christopher Levett, who came over here in 1623, returning next year, says: "The next place I came unto was Pannaway, where one M. Tomson hath made a plantation. There I stayed about one month. . . . At this place I met with the Governor (Gorges) who came thither in a bark which he had from one M. Weston, about twenty days before I arrived in the land. . . . The Governor told me that I was joined with him in commission as a counsellor, which being read I found it was so. And he then, in the presence of three more of the Council, administered unto me an oath." Bradford says that Admiral West, Levett, and the Governor of Plymouth, for the time being, were named in Gorges's commission as his Council; but Gorges had power "to choose such other as he should find fit." West at this time had left New England, and Governor Bradford does not appear to have been present at Piscataqua, so that Gorges must have availed himself of his privilege to elect others to fill those vacancies. It has been said that Governor Gorges at this time organized his government for all New England. The administering of the oath to Levett was all that appears to have been done here. He had organized his government before going to Piscataqua, so far as to eall a meeting of the assistants at Plymouth, and to order the arrest and trial of Weston: and soon after, on his return to Massachusetts, to issue his warrant for his second arrest, an

*Captain John Smith says that March, April, and May, and September, October, and November, are the months for New England fishing; June and July for fishing at Newfoundland. Ambrose Gibbons, in his letter to the Laconia proprietors, 13 July, 1633, says that the ships must be sure "to be at their fishing places the beginning of February." (A Description of N. E., pp. 17, 18; Provincial Papers relating to N. H., 1.81.)

to have lain, in Hubbard's mind, in a loose and chaotic form; yet he appears to have come somewhere near the truth, when he says, "In the year 1623, some merchants about Plymouth and the west of England sent over Mr. David Tomson, a Scotchman, to begin a Plantation about Piscataqua," &c. But in another part of his History, in his indefinite and generalizing way, he says:—

"Some merchants and other gentlemen in the west of England, belonging to the cities of Exeter, Bristol, and Shrewsbury, and towns of Plymouth, Dorchester, &c., . . . having obtained patents for several parts of the country of New England, . . . made some attempt of beginning a plantation in some place about Pascataqua River, about the year 1623. . . . They sent over that year one Mr. David Thomson, with Mr. Edward Hilton and his brother, Mr. William Hilton, who had been fishmongers in London, with some others, that came along with them, furnished with necessaries for carrying on a plantation there. Possibly some others might be sent after them in the years following, 1624 and 1625; some of whom first, in probability, seized upon a place called the Little Harbor, on the west side of Pascatagua River, toward, or at, the mouth thereof; the Hiltons, in the meanwhile, setting up their stages higher up the river, toward the northwest, at or about a place since called Dover. that place called the Little Harbor, it is supposed, was the first house set up that was built in those parts. . . . Sir Ferdinando Gorges and Captain John Mason might have a principal hand in carrying on that design, but were not the sole proprietors therein," &c. (pp. 105, 214, 215.)

He then cites the grant of the Council, of 3 November, 1631, to certain persons now known to have been associates in the "Company of Laconia;" who, the year before, soon after that company had been formed, sent over Captain Neal as Governor. And then he proceeds to speak of the Shrewsbury proprietors, who had employed Captain Wiggin to carry on the settlement begun by the Hiltons.

In this half-conjectural way Hubbard seems here to group together certain persons in England, some of whom are now well known as having been associated in 1630 and 1631, and a few years following, in the Company of Laconia; and others who about that same period became interested in the Hilton patent, and to make them instrumental in beginning, and carrying on for the first decade of years, the plantations on the Piscataqua River; whereas there is no evidence that any one of these persons (if we except Thomson's three partners of Plymouth) had any hand in the beginning of the enterprise, or became interested till at a later period, when some of their names appear.

Dr. Belknap, who used and cites Hubbard's MS., placed too much reliance on these passages in that History, and was therefore led into the error which he has handed down. He knew of the grant to Mason and Gorges of 10 August, 1622, embracing the territory between the Merrimack and Sagadahoe. He also knew that those two persons and others were members of the Company of Laconia. Relying on Hubbard's statement above cited, he concluded that the grant of 1622 was the Laconia grant, and that the associates, under the name of the Company of Laconia, began the settlements at Little Harbor and Hilton's Point, in 1623, "in two divisions."* We now know that this company had no interest in the settlement at Hilton's Point, afterwards Dover; that it came into existence at a later period, some years after both these settlements on Piscatagua River had been begun; and that the merchants of Shrewsbury and Bristol also now appear for the first time as purchasers in the Hilton patent of 12 March, 1629-30.†

What assistance the Hiltons may have received from private sources, or who rendered such assistance, if any was granted, we This patent is to Edward Hilton himself, reciting that he know not. and his associates had at "their own proper costs and charges transported sundry servants to plant in New England." This shows that he was the principal person who began and carried on the settlement up to that time. No one of these prominent persons in London or elsewhere is named in it, as they would certainly have been, if they had been his associates. He, however, soon afterwards sold out his patent, or the greater part of it, and these purchasers subsequently sold to others and then we begin to hear of the Bristol men and the men of Shrewsbury, mentioned by Hubbard, and the Lords Say and Brook and their associates. But whatever obscurity

^{*}John Josselyn, who picked up many things in the country by heresay, and jotted them down in his narrative in a form not always exact, confines the Laconia grant to Gorges alone (p. 199). He also makes a strange confusion of grants in saying that "the Province of Main or the country of the Traquois (Iroquois), heretofore called Laconia or New Somersetshire, is a colony belonging to the grandson of Sir Ferdinando Gorges, "&c. (p. 197). That the province of Laconia ("so called," says the younger Gorges, "by reason of the great lakes therein") was located in the neighborhood of the great lake or lakes of the Iroquois, supposed to lead up from the rivers Merrimack and Sagadahoe, with privileges for the establishing of depots on the coast, was true. Josselyn, however, got the notion that this province was included within the province of Maine, from the narrative of the younger Gorges (p. 48), who had his own claims to establish. The "Laconia" grant, in which the name first appears, was issued 17 November, 1629; that of "New Somersetshire" was Sir F. Gorges's division of 1635, between the Piscataqua and Sagadahoe, afterwards enlarged, as to its interior boundary, and confirmed by the charter of the Province of Maine, 3 April, 1639. The name "Laconia" nowhere appears in the history of Maine or New Hampshire before the grant of 17 November, 1629, above mentioned, was issued.

† Belknap's N. H., I. 8, 9, 32; Hubbard 217, 221. The grant of 10 August, 1622, to Gorges and Mason, which the proprietors intended to call the Province of Maine, appears to have been a dead-letter; at least the patentees never made any use of it, and the Council made other grants, covering the same territory, as if it never had an existence. The Council Records are silent as to the issue of such a grant, and it was wholly disregarded in the grand division of 1623.

may hang over the history of the beginning of the Hilton settlement, we now know under what circumstances Thomson began his enterprise at Little Harbor.

What led Thomson to fix his mind upon Piscataqua River as a place of settlement, we are not told. The selection must have been made before he embarked. Whether his original patent from the Council, of 16 October, 1622, recited in the indenture, in any manner located the grant of six thousand acres, we are equally ignorant. Among some imperfect memoranda which I saw in the Public Record Office in London, drawn up about the time of the Restoration, and entitled "A catalogue of such patents as I know granted for making plantations in New England," is this: "1622. A Patent to David Thompson, M. Jobe, M. Sherwood, of Plymouth, for a pt of Piscattowa River in New England."*

This can hardly refer to Thomson's patent above cited, as that appears to have been issued to himself alone. It may refer to some earlier project of Thomson's never perfected. The Records of the Council for New England throw no light upon it. If the memorandum can be trusted, it shows that Thomson had knowledge of, and plans relating to, the Piscataway River, some time before he came to New England.

In this indenture, it will be seen that Thomson and his men are "to find out some fit place or places there"—that is, in New England—"for the choice of the said six thousand acres of land, according to the intent of the grant aforesaid." We may not know the precise tenor of the grant to Thomson; but no location or limitation is recited in the indenture before us. By this it appears that Thomson had actually granted one-fourth part of an island, and had covenanted to convey one-fourth part of the six thousand acres to be selected. We may, however, well believe that the six thousand acres to be selected were named in that part of the indenture in possession of Thomson's associates, to be taken up somewhere on the Piscataqua River, inasmuch as some evidence existed, or was supposed to exist, among the families of Thomson's partners, or their descendants in Plymouth, England, at a later period, of claims to land where he settled. appears in a postscript to a letter of Cotton Mather to George Vaughan, dated 3 March, 1708, in which he says: "When my parent lay at Plymouth, bound for New England, on March 24, 1691-2, Mr. Sherwell, a minister then living there, told him that his grandfather and one Mr. Coleman (Colmer) and another had a patent for that which Mr. Mason pretended unto at Pascataqua. You may do well to enquire further concerning it."+

^{*}These memoranda are printed in the "Popham Memorial" volume, App. 124. †Belknap's N. II., III, 340.

If we had any good grounds for supposing that the covenants in the indenture had been consummated and the proportion of land agreed upon actually conveyed, this reference would seem more naturally to point to such an instrument of conveyance. It is not improbable that the island named was more definitely described also in the counterpart to this indenture specifying Thomson's covenants, which are said to be "more plainly and at large" set forth there.

After the landing of himself and his men, and locating his grant, Thomson was to proceed to "build some houses or buildings for habitation, on which they are to begin with as much expedition as may

If this agreement between Thomson and his partners reveals the whole strength of material for building up this colony in the wilderness, his resources at the commencement of the enterprise must have Four men were to go over with Thomson in the "Jonathan," and three more were to be provided that year. Nothing is said about wives or families, and nothing definite as to how the future supplies necessary for the plantation shall be provided, or the extent to the provision to be made; only that each shall bear his share of the expenses according to the contract, and receive his share of the land and profits at the end of five years, when accounts are to be rendered and a final settlement made. Whether Thomson could employ resources of his own, if he had any, outside of this agreement, we do not know. The Records of the "Council for New England," already cited, under date of 3 December, 1622, eleven days before this indenture was signed, say: "Mr. Thomson propoundeth to have order from the Council for transportation of 10 persons with the provisions for New England. And the persons so transported to pay the Council the usual rate for their transportation, after the expiration of two years." No further notice in the Records is taken of this proposition, and probably nothing came of it.

Thompson continued to live at Piscataqua till 1626; at least, he is referred to by Bradford as living there then, and as having entered into competition with the Plymouth people in buying some useful goods sold at Monhegan, at the breaking up of a temporary fishing settlement there. In a petition of his son John in 1648, he says that his father in and about the year 1626 took possession of the island in Boston Harbor bearing his name, and there erected a habitation.* So he seems to have lived at Piscataqua three years at least; but the glimpses of him during that time are very infrequent. We hear of him the first year he came a number of times. He visited Plymouth once in the summer of 1623, when Standish returned from an expedition in search of food for the colony. What a grateful service Winslow would have rendered us, if he had given us some account of Thomson's settlement, which perhaps Standish had visited! But we know not the name of a single person that composed that settlement except Thompson himself and his wife. He died, as is supposed, "about 1628," leaving a wife and an infant son.

Hubbard—alas! the only authority—says that the Hiltons came over with Thomson; and it has been supposed that Hubbard was acquainted with the Hiltons, and had an opportunity of informing himself. But he sadly errs respecting William Hilton, at least; and we find no mention of the name of either of the brothers in connection with the ship "Jonathan," in which Thomson came. Edward might have come over on his own account, either in this ship or in the "Providence," soon to follow. He would hardly have come as one of Thomson's men.

The first authentic information of Edward Hilton's presence here is given by Bradford, who says he contributed, in 1628, £1 toward the Thomas Morton affair. The various patents issued by the Council for New England furnish much valuable and exact information as to the steps already taken, or what was intended to be done by the patentees, toward the settlement of the places or territory granted. Of course, all this information would be furnished by the petitioner to his counsel, who drew up the original application; and the statement would be likely to be drawn as favorably as the facts would Where applicants for a grant had been living a number of years, more or less, on the spot, or in the country, such term of residence was usually cited as a consideration in the patent. grant to Walter Bagnall, it was said that he had lived in New England "for the space of 7 years." John Stratton "had lived in New England these 3 years last past," &c. Aldworth and Elbridge had, by their servants, "inhabited for the space of three years last past." the patent to Vines and Oldham, on Saco River, it is said that Oldham and his servants have for these six years now last past lived in New England aforesaid." Oldham had been at Plymouth. In the patent to Thomas Cammock, and in that to Richard Bradshaw, it is recited that they had been living there "some years before."

The following is the language used in Hilton's patent: "For and in consideration that Edward Hilton and his associates hath already, at his and their owne proper costs and charges, transported sundry servants to plant in New England aforesaid, at a place there called by the natives Wecanacohunt, otherwise Hilton's Point, . . . and for that he doth further intend . . . to transport thither more people and cattle." This is hardly the language that would be used if Hilton had been on the spot seven or any considerable number of years, and is of the same general import as that in the grant to the Laconia associates, 3 November, 1631, after they had been a year or two in operation.

William Hilton came to Plymouth in 1621, in the "Fortune": his wife and two children came in 1623, in the "Anne." By 1627 they had left, and, if his brother Edward was then living at Dover, it would be natural to suppose that he joined him; but, though he is subsequently found in that neighborhood, I believe he can not be traced as having lived either at Dover Neek or at Cocheco. Neither his name nor that of Edward is affixed to the "Dover Combination," of 20 October, 1640.

We have no means of knowing any of the circumstances attending the abandonment of the Little Harbor plantation by Thomson. Hubbard says his removal was "out of dislike either to the place or his employers."* Whether his Plymouth partners had previously withdrawn, or whether they yet continued their interest; and whether any of Thomson's men still kept the settlement alive till the arrival of Neal and Gibbons, and others, in 1630, for the Laconia associates. are matters yet uncertain. That there was a settlement somewhere at "Pascataquack," besides Hilton's, in 1628, appears by the contribution paid that year toward the charge of expelling Thomas Morton from Merry Mount. Of course this was a voluntary contribution, and not a proportionate levy. The amount subscribed at Plymouth was but a small part of her charge. "It cost us a great deal more," says They collected what they could. We know of no other settlement on the river at this date, except that of Edward Hilton, who also contributed, and it seems reasonable to believe that Little Harbor was intended by "Pascataquack."† Prince had some evidence that in the year 1629 the inhabitants on Piscatagua River entered into a combination for erecting a government among themselves; but it was of "uncertain authority," and he placed but little confidence in it.

Uniform tradition appears to have designated Little Harbor, or a point of land now called Odiorne's Point, on the west side of Piscataqua River, at its mouth, as the spot on which Thomson first settled. This is confirmed by Hubbard, so far as to naming "Little Harbor" as the place. Little Harbor takes its name from the body of water on the south side of the "Great Island," and north of the peninsula of which Odiorne's Point forms a part. This peninsula, consisting of about five hundred acres of land, is now included in the town of

^{*}With his usual want of accuracy, Hubbard says that Thomson removed down into Massachusetts Bay within a year after his landing at Little Harbor. (p. 105). \dagger I Mass. Hist. Coll. 11I, 63. The contribution was the same as that of Plymouth, £2 10s. The solitary Blaxton contributed 12s.

Rye. "Odiorne's Point" is a comparatively modern designation. A family of the name of Odiorne has for a number of generations lived on the peninsula. From the records of New Hampshire, under the date of 1704 and 1705, it seems then to have borne the name of "Rendezvous Point." At the time of the celebration of the two hundredth anniversary of the settlement of New Hampshire, in 1823, more than fifty years ago, the knowledge and traditions which then existed relating to this spot were brought together, and were well summarized in Adam's Annals of Portsmouth, pp. 9–11, published two years afterward.

This region was early, and for many years continued to be, called Pascattaway, or Pascataqua,—the name of the river covering all the settlements upon it. Christopher Levett apparently gives the name of "Pannaway" to Thomson's place,—a name not preserved. Had he not soon after spoken of "a great river and a good harbor called Pascataway," "about two English miles further to the east," I should not hesitate to say that "Pannaway" was a missprint for Pascataway. As the places on both sides of the river bore the same name it may have caused some confusion in his mind, or he may have made a clerical error in first entering the name in his journal.*

Belknap says that "Little Harbor" was so called by the first settlers. I find no confirmation of this statement. In all the letters and documents now preserved, relating to the Company of Laconia, "Little Harbor" is not mentioned. Their three houses (or factories or trading posts) are described as being at Pascataqua (Little Harbor), Strawberry Bank, and Newichewanick; though "Piscataqua," as I have already said, continued to be used to embrace all the places on the river.† In an interesting map of the "Province of Mayne and Mason's patent," recently published in a volume of "Original Documents" relating to New Hampshire, by John S. Jenness, Esq.,—supposed to have been drawn about the year 1655,—the name "Little Harbor" is given to the spot on which Thomson is supposed to have first settled.

Hubbard says that at "the Little Harbor, it is supposed, was the first house set up, that ever was built in those parts; the chimney and some part of the stone wall is standing at this day (1680), and certainly was it which was called then, or soon after, Mason Hall, because to it was annexed three or four thousand acres of land, with intention to erect a Manor or Lordship there, according to the custom of England; for by consent of the rest of the undertakers, in some after division, that parcel of land fell to his share; and it is mentioned as his propriety in his last will and testament, by the name of Mason Hall."*

By the first "house," subsequent writers have supposed that the first habitation was intended, and that a large mansion was built by Thomson on his landing; the same that was subsequently occupied by Neal in 1630, and known as "Mason Hall." Hubbard gives countenance to this idea, so far as to say that "the agents of Sir Ferdinando Gorges and Captain Mason, with the rest, had by their order built an house, and done something also about salt-works, some time before the year 1630." Hubbard infers the agency of Gorges and Mason, from the mention of a house and salt-works as already on the place, in the indenture, above cited, of 3 November, 1631. There seems to be some evidence that the agents of the Company of Laconia occupied a house at Piscataqua, that had been built before they eame over. In a deposition of William Seavy, aged about seventyfive years, in 1676, he says he came over to the Isle of Shoals upon a fishing account, about a year before Neal left the country (in 1633); and he was credibly informed that Neal, when he came over in 1630, "lived in a house in Little Harbour, of Piscatagua, which by common report was formerly built by some merchants, &c., of Plymouth, in England." Also, in a recital made by the Council of New Hampshire, in 1681, consisting of Richard Waldern, President, and others, who were opposed to Mason's claim, they say that "the vast expanse of estate," as elaimed to have been made by John Mason, in the settlement of New Hampshire, "is mostly, if not merely, a pretence. An house was hired in this province, but the disbursements laid out were chiefly in the neighboring Province of Meyn, on the other side of the river, and for earrying on an Indian trade in Laconia, in all which his grandfather was but a partner, however he would appear amongst us as sole proprietor." †

That Thomson during his three years' residence at Little Harbor by assistance of his partners, built a large house there, and left it when he went to Massachusetts Bay, is certainly possible.‡ But that

†A reference to Captain Mason's house at Little Harbor, once occupied by Neal, is found in a deposition by Major Robert Pike, aged about eighty-eight years, in 1704. He testifieth and saith that he was well acquainted with Capt. Walter Neal, Mr. Henry Josselyn, Capt. Francis Norton, Mr. Sampson Lane, when they lived at Piscataqua above fifty or sixty years past, at which time they lived at Piscataqua in the right of Captain John Mason, and were agents (as was reported commonly) for him or his heirs, and that Capt. Neal lived in the Stone house at the mouth of Piscataqua river, of late called Little Harbor, and was always called Capt. Mason's Stone house; and that some time since one Mr. Gee lived in said house in the right of Capt. Mason, and that afterwards Joseph Mason, agent for Mrs. Ann Mason, widow of said Capt. Mason, lived at said house, at the mouth of the river aforesaid, in Right of said Mrs. Ann Mason, aforesaid, and that this Deponent lodged one night in said house with said Mr. Joseph Mason, he being employed by said Joseph Mason to assist him in Mr. Mason's affairs, above fifty years past," &c. (Prov. Papers relating to N. H., Vol. II. 530, 331.) Major Robert Pike was, no doubt, a most respectable person, and would testify to the best of his knowledge and belief; and there

Thomson or any one after him, built a house there, known as "Mason Hall," is extremely improbable. Hubbard evidently got his notion of "Mason Hall" from Mason's will, made shortly before his death, in which he designates his whole grant of New Hampshire as, "my county of New Hampshire, or Mason Hall"; or, in another place, "my county of New Hampshire, or Mannor of Mason Hall." He seems, in one part of this instrument, to bequeath to his grandehild, Robert Tufton, "my mannor of Mason Hall," as though it was some estate well known within his grant: and then, after other bequests, all the residue to John Tufton. If any special place is here intended, there are no means of locating it by the description, as the name is not found in any contemporary letter or document, as applied to any special house or domain.

About the year 1679, Robert Tufton Mason—who succeeded as heir on the death of his brother John—presented one of his many cases to prove his title to New Hampshire. He recites that his ancestor erected a fort on Great Island, "and mounted it with ten guns for the defence of the said island and river, and also, within the said river, at a place now called Portsmouth, he built diverse good houses, whereof one was a very fair and large house of stone and timber, and by him called Mason Hall, encompassed by a ditch and strong pallisade," &c., and with above one thousand acres of improved meadow is no reason to question his statement that he lodged one night with Joseph Mason in a house at Little Harbor. But he could not have been acquainted with Capt. Walter Neal, as Neal left the country two years before Pike came over here. What he says about Neal was from hearsay; and the most distant period of which he deposes, "sixty years," would take him back only to 1644, long after Henry Josselyn had left Piscataqua.

No more untrustworthy sources of information relative to the early settlement of New Hampshire can well be found than the various petitions and "cases" set forth by and in behalf of Robert Tufton Mason, respecting his claim to this territory. Of course he had to rely for information mostly on private testimony and tradition, as he was but a child when his grandfather died; and, besides, he had a "case" to make out. Even the dates to the several grants of land to John Mason, which his counsel had means to verify, are frequently wrong, and what was done under them was often strangely misstated. In a paper drawn up about the year 1679, we read "that in the year 1622 the said John Mason did send over several servants and passengers to be tenants, with store of cattle, provisions, and necessaries, unto his lands at Cape Ann, did build sundry houses and set up the trade of fishery upon that coast, and employed for his steward there Ambrose Gibbons, gentleman, who continued there until the year 1630, at which time the Massachusetts colony violently seized upon that part of the province, stretching their bounds three miles to the northward of Merrimack River, and turned the servants and tenants of the said John Mason out of their possessions, under a pretence of charter from his late Majesty, King Charles, in 1628." It would be difficult to find elsewhere in so small a space, except among Robert Mason's own possessions, under a pretence of charter from his late Majesty, King Charles, in 1628." It would be difficult to find elsewhere in so small a space, except among Robert Mason's own papers, so many errors as are contained in this extract.

Probably with equal truth it is said, in a paper drawn up in 1675, that John Mason, after being at Newfoundland about two years, "received orders from his Majesty to visit that part of America now called New England, who, together with Sir Ferdinando Gorges, made a voyage along that coast, in Anno 1619, and at their return for England gave his Majesty a satisfactory account both of their voyage and country." The statement that John Mason spent "upwards of twenty thousand pounds" towards the affairs of New England is probably of a piece with some of his other allegations. This would be equivalent to five times that sum to-day. It is not probable that he spent a fourth part of it, or that he ever had such a sum at his disposal. Mason's principal expenditure over here was as a partner in the Laconia Company, of which he was one of some ten associates. After the division of ^{*} Jenness's Original Documents, pp. 77, 78.

Now the house thus described was that called the "Great House," at Strawberry Bank, said to have been built by Chadbourne, in 1631. This, of the three houses (houses as distinguished from more humble dwellings) in possession of the Company of Laconia, was the most noted in the history of the Piscataqua settlement. It stood for a long time, and was occcupied by some well-known persons. This had the best claim to be called a Manor House; and if this were thus designated, the one built at Little Harbor could hardly have borne the name. Probably the name was never applied to either.*

The precise time of Thomson's death is not known. From the petition of his son John to the General Court of Massachusetts, in 1648, he says that his father, in or about the year 1626, took possession of the island bearing his name, built a habitation there, and died soon after, leaving his son an infant; "who," says the record, "so soon as he came to age, did make his claim formerly, and now again, by his said petition, to this Court," who granted the island to him and his heirs for ever.

Samuel Maverick added his testimony as to the year 1626;† and Johnson says that Thomson assisted Maverick in building a fort upon Noddle's Island. Among the contributors to the expenses of capturing and removing Thomas Morton, of Merry Mount, in 1628, the name of "Mrs. Thomson" appears. So that we may infer that her husband was dead at the time she subscribed. I know of no other data. Savage says he died "about 1628."

I incline to the opinion that John Thomson, the son, was born at Little Harbor, and was brought an infant, to his new home on the island. My reasons are these: David Thomson was living at Piscataqua in 1626, and joined the Plymouth people in a trading voyage to Monhegan in the summer or autumn, as I infer from Bradford, of that year. So that if he left there that year, it must have been in the latter part of it. The year, as it was then calculated, began and ended in March. It was desirable to show that possession of the 1634, he sent over two mills, and some men to set them up on his own land, on the eastern or north-eastern side of the river (the Maine side). How largely he continued his expenditures from this time up to the time of his death, we have no means of knowing. They were probably inconsiderable. In 1634, he wrote to Gibbons: "I have disbursed a great deal of money in the plantation, and never received one penny; but hope, if there were a discovery of the lakes, that I should in some reasonable time be reimbursed again." Hubbard (p. 226) says that Mason had no opportunity "to send over the seventy families, which some to this day affirm he engaged to do." See Jenness's Original Documents, pp. 55, 57; Prov. Papers of N. H., 1, 322.

^{*}In October, 1637, Vines, Josselyn, and Wanerton, as agents of some of the Laconia associates, granted to Francis Matthews "all that parcel or portion of lands in Piscataway River, lying upon the northwest side of the Great Island, commonly called Muskito Hall. being a neck of land by estimation one hundred acres or thereabouts." The location of this grant was in the Great Island itself, the present town of New Castle; and it was reconveyed in 1656 and in 1664, under the same name. (See Provincial Papers relating to N. H., I. 98, 99; N. H. Hist. Soc. Coll., VIII, 120, 122.) At this day, a spot a few rods northwest of the present "Wentworth" hotel is called "Musquito Hall," though this must be some distance from the location of the grant.

island was taken at as early a period as the facts would warrant; and the son says that it was "in or about the year 1626." In the record of the Court above cited, May, 1648, it is said that John Thomson made his claim "so soon as he became of age," and it says also that he "did make his claim formerly,"—that is, some time previously,—"and now again." The Court would not be likely to yield to such a petition without serious consideration, attended with delay. They were jealous of claims not based on their own grants, and the island had thirteen years before been granted to the town of Dorchester. If his first petition, the exact date of which is wanting, had been made only two years before the present petition, it would give 1625 as the year he was born.

In the year 1650, some curious depositions were made concerning Thomson's Island. William Trevore testified that the island was formerly called "Island of Trevour," which he took possession of in 1619, "and declared the same, as the effect of my proceedings, to Mr. David Thomson, in London, on which information said Thomson obtained a grant and patten" of it. William Blaxton testified that he heard old Mr. Thomson affirm that he had a patent for the said island, and those that put hogs on it did it by his consent. Miles Standish testified "that in the year 1620 I came into this country, and I take it in the same year I was in the Massachusetts Bay with William Trevoyre, and then being upon the island lying near Dorchester, called the said island Island Trevoyre. . . Furthur, I can testify that David Thomson showed me a very ancient patent, and that Isle Thomson was in it, but the terms of it I cannot remember." Sagamore of Aggawam testified that "in the year 1619, or thereabouts," he went himself with Mr. David Thomson, and took possession of the island before Dorchester, &c.*

William Trevore, who seems to have forgotten the year he arrived in New England, came over in the "Mayflower" in 1620, as a seaman, hired to stay in the country one year. He then went back, but subsequently made voyages to Massachusetts. The first visit the Pilgrims made to Boston Harbor was in September, 1621, and Standish was of the party, and Trevore may have been of the number. That is the earliest period at which Standish and he could have been together on Thomson's Island. Trevore may then, on his return, have given the information to Thomson to which he refers, which led to his procuring a grant of the island from the Council of New England. Blaxton's testimony is interesting, as showing his acquaintance with Thomson, while the former was the solitary resident of Shawmut. It shows also that Thomson claimed the island under a grant from the Council. The Massachusetts Colony would not probably have acknowledged such a claim, but would be disposed to regard his early residence and possession as entitling his son, through him, to consideration, as they did in the case of Blaxton. The memory of the old "Sagamore of Aggawam" quite deserts him in the matter of dates.

If Thomson's Island was that named in this indenture, of which he had granted one-fourth part to his partners, it might be asked whether Thomson may not have removed to it for the purpose of taking possession and creating a habitation with a view to its future cultivation and the pursuit of his business there, agreeably to the terms of his indenture, and without intending to abandon his interest at Little Harbor. We have no facts or data on which to indulge in such speculations, except Hubbard's statement that he left there out of dislike of the place or his employers. We hear of no claims made by his heir to the estate at Piscataqua, subsequently taken possession of by the Company of Laconia, and none by his late partners to that or to the island. No provision seems to have been made in this indenture, in case of the death of Thomson before the five years should be ended.*

To recur once more to the settlement of Piscataqua: The general reader of the history of New Hampshire will be surprised to learn the length of time that elapsed after the first settlements were there made before the name "New Hampshire" was applied to the place. The patent of 7 November, 1629, to Mason, in which it appears that the proprietor intended to call the territory granted "New Hampshire" seems to have been-like the previous grant to him of Mariana, and that to himself and Gorges in the same year—of no practical significance, and would scarcely have been heard of again, had it not been cited in the claims set forth by the heir to Mason's estate after the Restoration. No use was ever made of it by the proprietor. After the issuing of the Laconia grant, ten days later, 17 November, 1629, active measures were entered upon; everything being done under the name of the "Company of Laconia," an unincorporated association of persons whose head-quarters were in London, who afterwards, 3 November, 1631, procured from the Council a new grant of lands on both sides the Piscataqua River,—the former grant

†Sir William Jones, the Attorney-General, in an opinion on Mason and Gorges's claims, in 1676, says of each of these patents that "the grant was only sealed with the council seal, unwitnessed, no seizen indorsed, nor possession ever given with the grant." (Hutchinson,

I. 316.)

^{*}Hubbard says that Thomson "possessed himself of a very fruitful island and a very desirable neck of land" in Massachusetts Bay, "since confirmed to him or his heirs by the Court of Massachusetts, upon the surrender of all his other interest in New England, to which yet he could pretend no other title than a promise, or a gift to be conferred on him, in a letter by Sir Ferdinando Gorges, or some other member of the Council of Plymouth." Hubbard evidently supposed that Thomson had claims to other lands in New England, which he or his heirs surrendered on receiving a confirmation of the Island. The records are silent as to this.

being one of indefinite and uncertain franchises. In a few years, this company broke up, and the servants were discharged; the whole scheme proving a failure. On a division of some of the company's property, Mason bought the shares of two of his associates, and sent over a new supply of men, and set up two saw-mills upon his own share of lands.* Shortly before the surrender to the King of the Grand Patent, Mason procured for himself the grant of 22 April, 1635,† between Naumkeag and Piscataqua, in which it was recited that the lands embraced in it, "with the consent of the Council shall from henceforth be called New Hampshire." Mason died before the close of that year; and Mrs. Mason, his executrix, committed the management of the estate to her agent, Francis Norton. But the expense exceeded the income. The servants were clamorous for their arrears of wages, so she was compelled to abandon them to shift for themselves.‡ In a few years, the several communities there, including those that the Laconia Company had no hand in settling, being destitute of a proper government, placed themselves under the protecting care of the Massachusetts. Subsequently, Mrs. Mason sent over her agent, Joseph Mason, to look after her late husband's interest; and he presented a number of petitions to the Massachusetts government, and brought suits in the Massachusetts courts, in Mrs. Mason's than to the Laconia interest. Nothing is said about other grants, and nothing about "New Hampshire." In a statement of Robert Mason's claim in 1674-5, reference is made to John Mason's various franchises, "afterwards enlarged" and "now called New Hampshire." Were it not for the accidental circumstance of the prosecution of this claim, thus bringing forward a name used in John Mason's patent, it is not improbable that New Hampshire would have rejoiced to-day in the old euphonious Indian name of "Piscataqua." By the appointment of a commission for the government of the territory as a royal province, in 1679, the name "New Hampshire" became fixed upon

It would probably be doing no injustice to history to say that the recognition of Robert Mason's claim to the territory of New Hampshire, fostered by a government unfriendly to the liberties of its subjects, was one of the greatest misfortunes that could have befallen the settlers on the soil. It was a prolific source of annoyance, which

To go back once more to the Laconia Company, in which the original Mason was an influential partner: The whole history of their proceedings shows that they never intended to plant a colony in any sense analogous to those communities which sprung up elsewhere in New England. It was chiefly a trading and fishing company; an experiment, inspired by adventure and speculation. The intended basis of its operations was the great lakes, which seem never to have been discovered, and its greatest reliance to the peltry trade. The cultivation of the soil, the proper foundation of all such enterprises, was regarded as of secondary importance. The non-residence of the proprietors, and the absence of any settled government, were serious drawbacks to the building up of an orderly community. The letters of their factor, Ambrose Gibbons, to the adventurers in London, were full of excellent advice and serious warnings. The interest of the settlers was not so much considered as the profitable returns; and, when these failed, the whole scheme failed. "You complain," says Gibbons, "of your returns. You take the course to have little;" think not "the great looks of men and many words will be a means to raise a plantation."*

^{*}The Company of Laconia was probably formed soon after the Laconia patent of 17 Novem-*The Company of Laconia was probably formed soon after the Laconia patent of 17 November, 1629, was issued. It was an unincorporated association of less than a dozen persons, the most of whose names are mentioned in a second grant of lands on both sides the Piscataqua River, taken out for their benefit two years later, 3 November, 1631. Some of these associates, it appears, had previously been members of the "Canada Company," which, headed by Sir William Alexander, had undertaken the conquest of that province as a private enterprise, under the command of Sir David Kirke. The fur-trade of Canada was the inspiring motive, united to what might be acquired by conquest.

"Loaded with booty, and bringing Champlain himself as prisoner, the expedition returned triumphantly to England, November 6, 1629, only to learn that peace had been for several months restored, and that by the articles of the treaty all their hard-won conquests in the New World were required to be restored to France.

After Mason had secured his patent of 1635, he had fruitless visions of manors and quit-rent and fee-farm estates floating before his mind. In his last will, as we have already seen, he calls his whole grant on the Piscataqua "my county of New Hampshire, or Mannor of Mason Hall." He had then no charter of government, though he may have intended to procure one, as Gorges afterwards did for Maine.

"Among the most stirring members of the now sadly baffled Canada Company was one Thomas Eyre, a London merchant, who had acted as its Accountant and Treasurer. Thomas Wannerton, a notary public and merchant of London, George Griffith, another London merchant, as well as Captain John Mason and Sir Ferdinando Gorges, seems to have been interested in the Canada Company, and must have been chagrined at its disastrous issue.

"These men now inquired after some shorter and easier way of reaching the fur country that has the river and Canada and one which be need by the English without infinites."

that by the river of Canada, and one which might be used by the English without infringement of the late treaty...

"It was but ten days after the return of the Canada Co. Expedition that, accordingly, Sir Ferdinando Gorges and Captain John Mason took out for themselves and their associates a grant, dated November 17, 1629, of a large, vaguely bounded territory on the Iroquois Lake, named Laconia, and admitted as their associates in the patent, Thomas Eyre, Thomas Wannerton, John Cotton, Henry Gardner, George Griffith, Edwin Guy, and Eliezer Eyre. The scheme of these patentees is apparent from the language of the grant itself. It was to send over cargoes of Indian truck-goods to the Piscataqua, and unlade them at the factories near the mouth of the river, and thence to transport them in boats or canoes up the Piscataqua to Lake Champlain, to be bartered there for peltries for exportation from the factories to Europe. For the better accommodation of this traffic, the Company were authorized to take up one thousand acres of land on the side of the Piscataqua River as a site for their factory; but they seem not to have availed themselves of this privilege, the territory at the mouth of the river being acquired by the adventurers under a subsequent territory at the mouth of the river being acquired by the adventurers under a subsequent

The connection between the Canada Company and the Laconia Company, thus indicated, and the circumstances attending the formation of the latter, are well stated in a volume entitled "The Isles of Shoales, An Historical Sketch, by John Scribner Jenness, second edition," New York, 1875, pp. 58-69, written from information gathered from the public archives in London. The extracts above quoted are taken from that book.

David Kirke, while in the Canada waters, had probably heard of the treaty of peace of the 14th (24th N. S.) of April of that year, but he chose to ignore it, and of course the members of the Canada Company at home knew of it soon after it took place (the king's proclamation was dated 10 May, 1629); but no one knew what precise bearing it would have on the large interests, which the Company might have, to be effected by it. Charles, however, gave his word to the French minister that everything captured should be at once restored. This was a grievous blow to the Canada merchants, who had fitted out their fleet at a cost of £60,000; and they did not relinquish their property without a struggle. Kirks claimed that a larger part of the skins which he brought nome had been obtained by trading with the Indians. In a London news-letter, dated 18 November, 1629, is the following: "Upon the French ambassador's great complaints against Kirke, for his action in Canada, the matter hath been debated in Council; and it is thought that, for the good of the peace, the place will be restored unto the French, although there is nothing as yet resolved about. Neither is there any order hitherto taken between the two States for the settling of the trade for the time to come, or the satisfying of the merchant's complaints for the time past." (The Court and Times of Charles the First, 11. 43). The formal restoration of Quebec to France did not take place till the 5 July, 1632.

By a grituation in Paris it was decided that the French government should pay $120.000 to the 5 July, 1632.

By an arbitration in Paris it was decided that the French government should pay £20,000 to Kirke as an indomnity for his loss, and the government pledged that sum, but not a penny was paid. By the treaty of peace, it was agreed between the two crowns that there should be no restitution for prizes taken on either side, before the date of the treaty, and no reprisals should be made for such captures. See "The First English Conquest of Canada," by Henry Kirke, M. A., London, 1871, pp. 63-93; Parkman's "Pioneers of France in the New World," pp. 401-411. See also the Treaty of Suze in Rymer, vol. xix. p. 88; and the Proclamation of Peace with France, dated May 10, 1629, in the same volume, p. 66.

The first vessel which the Company of Laconia despatched to Piscataqua was sent out from London the last of March, 1630, and by the 1st of June had arrived, with Walter Neal, governor, and Ambrose Gibbons, factor, and some others. In the following year, others were sent. At the end of three years, the principal associates became discouraged by the inadequate returns, and the alleged unfaithfulness of a master of one of the tishing-vessels; and in a letter to their factor, dated the 5th December, 1632, they say: "They have no desire to proceed any further, until Captain Neal come hither to confer with them, that by conference with him they may settle things in a better order. We have written unto Captain Neal to dismiss the household, only such as will or can live of themselves may stay upon our plantation, in such convenient place as Captain Neal, Mr. Godfrie, and you shall think fit; and,

Whatever his intentions may have been, without a radical change of policy and measures, he never would have succeeded in building up a colony on these shores. Death put an end to his schemes. New Hampshire has but little cause to cherish his memory; and he would probably have been forgotten but for the accidental revival of his name, by the claims of his heirs, who used them as an instrument to annoy and perplex the settlers on the soil, who had acquired a right to their homesteads and farms by long undisturbed possession.

after conference had here with Captain Neal, they shall have a reasonable quantity of land granted unto them by deed." See notes (A) (B).

These letters were not received until the 7 June following, and Captain Neal, being called These letters were not received until the 7 June following, and Captain Neal, being called home, left the colony 15 July, and sailed from Boston 6 August. According to instructions, the care of the house at Newichewanick was committed to Gibbons, that at Pascattaway (Little Harbor) to Edward Godfrie, and that at Strawberry Bank to Thomas Warnerton. Not long after the probable arrival of Neal in London, the company, on the 6 December, made a division of the land on the north-east side of the river (the document from which I quote says, clearly by mistake, the "north-west side"), and of the "swine" belonging to the company. They also "agreed that Pascattaway house and the house at Strawberry Bank, and all the islands and isletts within the river of Piscattaway, together with all the land on the south-west side of the said river which is mentioned in the patent, as also the Isles of Shoals, and the house at Newichewanock with the land thereunto belonging shall remain in common south-west side of the said river which is mentioned in the patent, as also the Isles of Shoals, and the house at Newichewanock, with the land thereunto belonging, shall remain in common until a division thereof hereafter to be made." The division of lands on the north-east side, made at this meeting, is referred to in a letter of Gorges and Mason to Warnerton and Gibbons, dated Portsmouth (England), 5 May, 1634, in which is enclosed a copy of the draft of the "lands and bounds agreed upon for every man's part;" and a further division of all the "movables" left in trust by Neal with Warnerton and Gibbons was also now directed to be made. It appears that Mason had now bought out the shares of John Cotton and his deceased brother, William Cotton, so that he and Gorges now owned together one-half of these effects, and of this one-half Mason owned three-fourths. (Mason also appears to have owned independently of the rest some cows and goats). The remaining one-half belonged to the other adventurers. Gorges and Mason directed their own shares to be paid over to Henry Josselyn, who now came over especially to look after Mr. Mason's interest. See note (C).

other adventurers. Gorges and Mason directed their own shares to be paid over to Henry Josselyn, who now came over especially to look after Mr. Mason's interest. See note (C). They each give notice that they have now sent over men to work upon their several divisions of land, that Mason had sent over two saw-mills, with people and provisions to set them up, and each had given authority to invite and "receive such others as may be had to be tenants, to plant and live there, for the more speedily peopling of the country." No encouragement was given that the other partners would adventure this year to the plantation, and we find no instructions from them as to the disposal to be made of the other half of the divided effects, or as to their future plans or intentions. Mason instructs Gibbons in his letter of 5 May, 1634, to discharge the servants, and all that are upon the company's charge, and to pay them off in beaver, about which he will hear more at large from the company. Gibbons replies to Mason's letter, under date of 6 August, saying that the servants had been paid their wages for the past year, but that he shall expect a "general letter" before paying them their old wages or dividing the goods, etc., or a further letter from him.

Although the adventurers as a hody may not have made any further advances to the colony after their letter of 5 December, 1632, referred to above, still the company, as we have seen, was kept alive to a later period, for the purpose of winding up its affairs.

ony after their letter of 5 December, 1632, referred to above, still the company, as we have seen, was kept alive to a later period, for the purpose of winding up its affairs.

To what extent Mason pursued the business alone on the east side the river after the date of the letter of instructions of 5 May, 1634, we may not fully know, or whether any thing was done by him or by any other of the adventurers on the west side. I have seen no evidence of any division having been made of the land on the west side of the river. Hubbard, in speaking of Little Harhor, and the Manor to be erected there by Mason, says, "By consent of the rest of the undertakers, in some after division, that parcel of land fell to his share, and is mentioned in his last will and testament by the name of Mason Hall." Hubbard probably infers that it fell to Mason's share "by a division," because he mentions it in his will; whereas, in this instrument, Mason claims and wills, as his property, his whole grant of New Hampshire, of 22 April, 1635, which included the part mentioned by Hubbard. Mason died before the close of the year 1635. What course was taken by the late partners, or by the heirs of Mason, during the two following years, we have but few contemporary documents to inform us. In 1638, Mrs. Mason, the widow and executrix of the late John Mason, appointed Francis Norton her general attorney for her whole estate in those parts. "But," says Dr. Belknap, "the expense so far exceeded the income, and the servants grew so impatient for their arrears, that she was obliged to relinquish the care of the plantation, and tell the servants that they must shift for themselves; upon which they shared the goods and cattle." Charges were afterwards brought against her agents and servants for "imbezzling the estate." Years afterward, the claims of Robert Mason brought out depositions of old people on both sides, from which some truth may be gleaned; but all such documents should be received with caution. In March, 1651, Mrs. Mason appointed Joseph Mas

In conclusion, let the reader of New Hampshire history bear in mind that that State was not founded by John Mason, nor by the Company of Laconia of which he was a member. A permanent settlement had already taken root into its soil before the bark "Warwick" first appeared in the Piscataqua waters.

brought a successful suit in the Massachusetts courts against Richard Leader for encroaching upon the lands at Newichewanick. Two years later he presented a petition against sundry inhabitants of Strawberry Bank and others, for encroaching upon the property of the Laconia patent, "molesting our tenants, disposing of our lands and of our tenants' lands, which for sixteen years past was granted unto them by lease from the then agents of the proprietors;" and he prays for relief "in the behalf of Mistress Anne Mason and the rest of the proprietors." This would show that others of the Laconia proprietors still had an interest in the lands on the west side of the river. In all these claims made by Mrs. Mason, her whole reference is to her late husband's interest in the Laconia Company. No mention is made of the grant of New Hampshire, by that or by any other name, claimed by Robert Mason after the Restoration. Indeed to Robert Mason's first petition, in 1660, appears the names of Henry Gardiner and George Griffine (Griffith), two of the partners of the Laconia Company. Company.

The operations of the Laconia Company, whose franchises, as we have already seen, were quite distinct from those of Edward Hilton and his associates, were chiefly on the east side of the river, on lands subsequently included in Gorges's grant of New Somersetshire; and Mason's transactions after the division, whatever they may have been, were principally confined, no doubt, to the same section. This territory, at first called "Pascataqua," was, in 1647, incorporated as "Kittery," from which subsequently the towns of Eliot, South Berwick, and Berwick, have been taken. The permanent settlement of this territory should undoubtedly date from its occupation by the Laconia Company in 1630.

And here I am reminded of the tendency which appears to have existed among some of our local historical writers to antedate the settlements on the eastern coast. Williamson, in his History of Maine (I. 243-4), says that some of the territory on its western border, early known

History of Maine (1. 243-4), says that some of the territory on its western border, early known as Pascatagna, was settled as early as 1624. He evidently infers this from a supposed connection and intercourse between this section and the settlements of Dover and Portsmouth, as Pascataqua, was settled as early as 1624. He evidently infers this from a supposed connection and intercourse between this section and the settlements of Dover and Portsmouth, in all bearing the same general name.

Williamson also says (I. 227) that "as early as 1623, a permanent settlement was commenced at Saco." His principal authority for this statement is the language of the patent to Vines and Oldham of 1629-30, reciting that Oldham and his servants had lived "in New England" for six years preceding. He supposed that they had lived at Winter Harbor, where Vines is known to have passed the winter of 1616-17. Now Oldham and his servants came to Plymouth in 1623, in the Anne, and had some land assigned to them in the following year. He was afterwards expelled from that community; but he never settled on the land granted to him and Vines, either before or after the patent was received.

This same writer (I. 231) follows Dr. Belknap, in his life of F. Gorges, in fixing upon the same period as that at which grants of land were made to some members of the Gorges family, of 12,000 acres on each side of the York River, at which time William Gorges, Lieut. Colonel Norton, and others, came over with all the necessary materials for building vessels, saw-mills, &c. This error of about a decade of years occurred by a misreading of Gorges's imperfect narrative, where the chronology of events is rarely noted, or is incorrectly given. But Williamson gratuitously makes this addition to the account; viz., that the immediate management of the enterprise was intrusted to Ferdinando Gorges, the grandson of Sir Ferdinando, "a young gent'eman of rank and ambition." Now the truth is that the grant of 12-000 acres on each side of the York River was made 2 December, 1631. F. Gorges, the grandson, was interested in the grant through his grandfather, who caused his name to be inserted in the patent; but he was only two or three years old at this time. The period hitherto assigned for this grant and settlement was some six years bef

The bark "Warwick," which brought over Neal and Gibbons in 1630, came to New England again in the following year; sailing from "the Downes" 4 July, 1631, and arriving at the harbor of Piscataqua the 9th September. She may at this time have brought over to the colony some of those stewards and servants of the Laconia Company, whose arrival Adams, in his Annals of Portsmouth, places under the year 1631. Her factor, Henry Fleet, had commission from her owners to be absent one year "for trade and discovery." In the following winter, she brought thence a cargo of corn to Piscataqua, and on her return to the South put into Salem and Boston. On the 9th April, 1632, she sailed from Boston for Virginia, where she remained for some time in charge of her factor, trading in the waters of the Chesapeake. The bark belonged to George Griffith and Company (George Griffith was one of the Laconia partners), and her owners subsequently claimed that Fleet had, by the connivance of Governor Harvey, "restrained the vessell and profits to the petitioner's great loss." Griffith appears to have had other schemes kindred to those in which the Laconia Company was engaged. In 1638, in a petition to the king, "he sets forth his great loss by sending men to the river Amazon, and planting on the coast of Guiana, through the Portuguese, and the treachery of the natives," &c. See Neill's "English Colonization of America," pp. 223-237; Winthrop, I. 39, 71, 72; Cal. S. P. Col. Ser. pp. 184, 270.

Sidrach Mi lar, of London, cooper, presented a petition to the Privy Council, saying that, by a contract with Captain John Mason, John Cotton, and Henry Gardner, on behalf of the company or adventurers for the Province of Laconia, in New England, the petitioner and two servants were transported to Piscataqua, where they worked eighteen months for the Company. Millar, being sent to England, left his servants behind him, who have since been discharged, destitute of means or friends. The Governor would not pay their passage money, and the Company will not pay what is due to them; prays that the Company may be ordered to pay the money due to him and his two servants for the work done according to the contract. See Cal. S. P. Col., p. 138; Folsom's Original Doc., p. 8. Millar may have returned to England with Neal in August, 1633, some eight of Neal's company having gone back with him at that time.

The Laconia associates in London, after the suspension of their operations, seem to have had dissensions among themselves, resulting in law-suits, the evidence of which exists among the Records of the Privy Council and of the Court of Requests. See N. E. Hist. and Geneal. Reg. VIII, 142, 143; Jenness's Isles of Shoals, 185-190. Thomas Eyre was probably secretary of the company. He had been secretary of the Canada Company; and in June, 1632, was chosen secretary for the Council of New England.

The editor of the Provincial Papers relating to N. H., a valuable work, often consulted by me, at p. 69 of Vol. 1., assumes that Thomas Warnerton, the Laconia associate, is identical with the emigrant who bore the same name; though he had immediately before him a letter of the partners, dated at London, 5 December, 1632, signed by Warnerton, among others, in which instructions are given to the emigrant here. The Laconia associate was a notary public and merchant of London, and is found living there in 1632, 1633, and 1636. Thomas Warnerton, the emigrant, (sufficiently illustrated by Winthrop and his editor, 11. 177, 178), had been a soldier, quite likely he was a son of the proprietor, and "left his country for his country's good." Hubbard's account of the winding up of his career, pp. 484, 485, is taken from Winthrop. See Jenness's Isles of Shoals, 2d edition, p. 61; Sainsbury, Cal. (Col.), p. 289.

Mr. Chester has also sent me abstracts of the wills of Abraham Colmer and Leonard Pomery; that of the former proved 22 Nov., 1631, and the latter 30 March 1629. COMBINATIONS

LOCAL GOVERNMENT

IN

NEW HAMPSHIRE.

[From Historical Papers, by Charles Wesley Tuttle, 1889, pp. 329-335.]

The grant of territory in New England to Capt. John Mason did not confer upon him any power of political government; but the grant of so much power as should be necessary to protect his own rights and the rights of his servants, as well as to preserve order, must be understood as implied in the concession made to him. In the absence of any general government, even of the simplest sort, the several communities or clusters of inhabitants in New Hampshire found themselves compelled at an early period to combine for self-protection. These separate communities were settled at and in the neighborhood of Strawberry Bank (Portsmouth), Great Island (New Castle), Exeter, and Dover.

The Lower Pascataqua.

It is not possible, at the present time, to determine the year when the inhabitants on the lower Pascataqua, including Strawberry Bank, Great Island, and Little Harbor, first entered into a "combination" or local government. Hubbard* says that "after Captain Neal's going away" to England (1633) the inhabitants entered into a combination "for the better enabling them to live orderly one by another." They chose for their first governor 'Mr. Francis Williams, an agent sent by Captain Mason, this Williams being a prudent man, and of better quality than the rest." He held this office for several years. In 1638 he exercised his authority, seemingly, however, beyond the limits of his jurisdiction, in quelling the violent disturbance at Dover, which grew out of the factious disputes between Larkham and Knollys and their respective partisans.†

It would appear that the inhabitants on the lower Pascataqua entered into a combination for a second time previous to 1643. The editor of the Provincial Papers of New Hampshire mentions an existing court record, bearing date the year last named, in which "John Pickering is injoyned to deliver the old combination of Strawberry Bank the next court." And in the grant of glebe lands by the "inhabitants of the lower end of Pascataquack." May 25, 1640, signed by "Francis Williams, Governor, Ambrose Gibbins, Assistant," and others, reference is made to an existing "combination." The record of both the earlier and later combinations has undoubtedly perished, nor is there any record of their substance. When Massachusetts extended her jurisdiction over New Hampshire, all these combinations were dissolved, and some of the persons, like Williams, who had been prominent in the local governments, were appointed to civil or military offices under the government of Massachusetts.

Exeter.

In the year 1638 the Rev. John Wheelwright and others, who had been banished in the preceding year from the Colony of Massa chusetts Bay, on account of their active participation in the theological controversy incited by Mrs. Ann Hutchinson, or on account of their known sympathy for her doctrines, made a settlement at Exeter. They first instituted a church, concerning which Winthrop, under date of Dec. 13, 1638, says:

Those who went to the falls at Pascataquack gathered a church, and wrote to our church [in Boston] to desire us to dismiss Mr. Wheelwright to them for an officer; but because he desired it not himself, the elders did not propound it. Soon after came his own letters, with theirs, for his dismission, which thereupon was granted. Others also (upon their request) were dismissed thither. *

The people whom the Rev. John Wheelwright led or early attracted to the "falls at Pascataquack," entered into a written combination for the purpose of government in 1639. Shortly afterward this instrument was altered to suit the views of those who were not inclined to profess in strong terms their allegiance to the King. But in the year 1640 there was a reaction in public sentiment, and the original combination "in substance" was readopted, with the following preliminary statement:—

Whereas a certen combination was made by us, the brethren of the church of Exeter, wth the rest of the Inhabitants, bearing date Mon. 5th d. 4, 1659. wh afterwards, upon the instant request of some of the brethren, was altered & put into such a forme of wordes, wherein howsoever we doe acknowledge the King's Majesty our dread Soveraigne & our selves his subjects: yet some expressions are contained therein wh may seeme to admit of such a sence as somewhat derogates from that due Allegiance wh we owe to his Hignesse, quite contrary to our true intents & meaninge: We therefore doe revoke, disannull, make voyd, and frustrate the said latter combination, as if it never had beene done, and do ratify, confirme, and establish the former, wh wee onely stand unto as being in force and virtue, the wh for substance is here set downe in manner & forme following. *It will be observed that Gov. Winthrop uses the phrase, "the falls at Pascataquack," and that the Exeter compact of civil government contains the expression, "Exceter, situate & lying upon the river of Piscataquacke." Both expressions refer to the stream now called the Exeter River, the Indian name for which was Squamscott. The falls in the river are still popularly called Squamscott Falls. The reader will consider the importance of the fact that in 1638 and 1639 the expressions above cited were used to designate the Pascataqua River, or a branch of it, as bearing upon the contention of Mr. Jenness, (Notes on the First Planting of New Hampshire, etc.), respecting the southern limits of the Hilton Patent. He remarks (pp. 54, 55): "It may well be doubted whether at the time the Hilton Patent. He remarks (pp. 54, 55): "It may well be doubted whether at the time the Hilton Patent was granted [1629-30] the name Piscataqua was ever applied by the English or the Indians to Exeter River." As we have seen the name was so applied in 1638 and 1639, and it is probable that its application then was in harmony with the popular usage from the time of the first English settlements on the Pascataqua.

† It appears that the original writing, containing the combination adopted in 1639, has been lost, but we have it "for substance" in the new combination adopted in 1640, as given above. Unless this fact is borne in mind, the date, "Mon. 5th d. 4th, 1639," affixed to the paper draughted in 1640, is likely to mislead the reader. For a fac-simile of the paper, see Bell's History of Exeter.

Hilton Patent.

It is probable that the settlers within the territory granted in 1630 to Edward Hilton had some kind of civil government as early as 1633, but there is no record of a formal combination for that purpose prior to the year 1640. The form of local government entered into on the 22d of October, 1640, is usually, but erroneously, spoken of by Hubbard, Belknap, and more modern writers, as the "Dover Combination." The instrument is here reproduced. It will be observed that the name Dover does not occur in it, and that the signers describe themselves as residing on "the River Pascataquack." The Hilton Patent included, so it was claimed, not only a portion of the present town of Dover, but also a portion of the present towns of Newington, Greenland, and Stratham. Among the signers was Captain Francis Champernowne. Champernowne never resided in Dover. His residence in 1640 was in that part of Greenland which was then claimed to be a portion of the Hilton Patent.

The original Hilton Patent Combination is supposed to be lost, but a copy, made for Governor Cranfield, was sent by him to England in 1682, and is now in the Public Record Office. Some of the subscribed names are evidently misspelled. The following copy is taken from Jenness's Abstracts of Original Documents relating to

OF THE

TOWNS OF NEW ENGLAND.

A Paper Read before the Massachusetts Historical Society, December 14, 1865.

BY JOEL PARKER.

Printed in the Proceedings of the Society for 1866-'67.

THE ORIGIN, ORGANIZATION, AND INFLUENCE OF THE TOWNS OF NEW ENGLAND.

It is interesting and instructive to contemplate the progress of the settlement of the different portions of the country; to note the differences which existed between the mode of settlement adopted in New England and in other districts; to inquire how the townspeople of New England came into existence, and perceive how largely they must have contributed to the success of the settlements; but, above all, to mark their influence, mainly exerted through their own subsequent incorporation as towns, upon the social, political, moral, and religious character of the inhabitants. It will increase our veneration for our fathers, it will refresh our own patriotism.

The great principle upon which the settlement of New England had its inception, and which led to the establishment of the colony at Plymouth, was the desire of the Pilgrim Fathers to enjoy unmolested their religious opinions. There were two other principles upon which the settlement was projected, or which were soon after recognized, and which, in their tendency to promote the prosperity of the enterprise, were secondary only to that of religious liberty; one, that the right of government should be secured to them by charters, conferring upon them powers for that purpose; the other, that the adventurers were severally to possess small freeholds in their own right.*

There were perhaps several reasons why the emigrants, in the first instance, were desirous of acquiring only a moderate portion of the territory. They could take possession of but a small strip of land on the sea board, the necessity of actual protection against Indian hostility obliging them to live in communities. They desired to encourage the emigration of all those who, like themselves, were suffering for conscience's sake. They had in view trade, rather than agriculture. And it may be added, that the religious and political principles of many of them alike forbade an attempt at the acquisition of feudal rights or manorial relations.

There were doubtless, also, several reasons why, in their grants and charters, they should have insisted upon the insertion of such articles as would enable them to make laws and ordinances for their own government, and provision for their own welfare. The necessity of a civil government of some kind was apparent. The impossibility that any government, administered by the Mother Country alone, should be adequate to their wants, must have been equally so. And, above all, the determination of the emigrants to be secure in their religious privileges, which security they well knew could not be attained except by the power of making their own regulations, was alone a sufficient reason.

In considering, therefore, the early history of New England, and teaching its prosperity through the hardships and toil and suffering and dangers which were endured by the early settlers, while great credit is due to the religious principles which actuated most of them, and too much praise can hardly be bestowed upon it, we should not overlook the other agencies to which I have thus referred; to wit, corporate municipal powers, and the subdivision of the land into small freeholds; which, if they grew out of, and were originally but consequences of, the religious sentiment, yet became of themselves powerful means in the promotion of the settlement and prosperity of the country.

Fervent as was the piety, and persistent as was the energy, of many of the early settlers, the religious principle could not have been maintained, impressing its character upon the opinions, manners, and habits of the people, had it not been for these other agencies. Had there been, in the early settlement of the country, colonial governors, appointed by the crown to enforce laws made by the Mother Country only, without a power of self-government, the ranks of the emigrants could not have been filled. And, had the country been granted in large tracts to single proprietors, who thereupon attempted to settle them as leaseholds, by a tenantry paying rents of money, grain, &c., the settlements of New England could never have proceeded with the rapidity and success which have characterized them.

Manors have existed in a portion of the colony of New York. And the grants of land by the owner of the manor ("the Patroon"), reserving an annual rent, have been the source of incalculable evils, moral and political, in these districts.

But the form of self-government provided for in the charters and patents was not alone sufficient for the purpose. All these elements, to wit, religious liberty, self-government, and freehold titles, have had their full influence and operation more effectually through the organization of towns, than in any other mode. It is through the action of these town incorporations that the Puritan principles have been sustained, the New England character formed, the industry and economy of the people promoted, the education of the whole population provided for, and perhaps the independence of the country secured. I am sure that I do not exaggerate their importance when

I say that they have been the arterial system of New England, through which has circulated the life-blood which has invigorated, sustained, and strengthened her; making her expand in her religious, social, educational, benevolent, and political institutions and character.

The subject of the present paper is the origin of these town corporations, the mode of their organization, their utility as manifested by the division of the lauds within their limits, the rights and privileges which they possessed and secured, their duties and liabilities, and the influence they have exerted, not only upon the social and religious character of the people embraced within their respective limits, but the vast effect they have had upon the political destinies of New England, and of the whole country.

Before proceeding to show the manner in which these towns originated, it may be well, for the information of any one not conversant with the subject, to say, that in the early history and records of New England, while the term plantation was often used to designate the whole colony, whether of Plymouth or Massachusetts, the terms plantation and town were used indifferently, to represent a settlement of persons in the neighborhood of each other, forming a cluster of habitations, the inhabitants voluntarily associating themselves together for the performance of certain common duties, and the enjoyment of common privileges and social intercourse; although persons living at some distance, and comparatively isolated, might be thus associated with those more compactly settled, and thus belong to the plantation When adjacent lands were afterwards granted to them or others, so that the territory was sufficiently large, the limits of the plantation or town were established, and it was afterwards known as a township or town. Purchases of territory were sometimes made from the Indians, and allowed by the General Court, and a charter The territory within the limits of these grants and purchases was sometimes known as a township; but as the limits of such early towns were rarely, if ever, established until an act of incorporation was granted, which authorized the inhabitants to exercise certain powers of local government, the term township is not so often found applied to these earliest settlements, as that of town.

At a somewhat later stage in the history of New England, when the emigration had increased and there was a desire and necessity for the expansion of the settlements, tracts of land, of some miles in extent, were granted by the Government to companies, or to several persons, in anticipation of settlement. These grants were called townships; and the grantees or proprietors of the township held meetings, dividing and alloting the lands among themselves, in different modes, by a major vote. The share of each proprietor in the township might be sold by him, and his lands when a division was made. Acting thus far like corporations, the proprietors have been recognized as having corporate powers for such purposes, and the collective body has been known as the Proprietary. When the lands were all divided and allotted, the proprietary became extinct,—dissolved by the accomplishment of the purpose for which it existed,—and the term township soon ceased to be the common designation. When ever a sufficient number of inhabitants were settled in such township, to render it expedient that they should perform duties and enjoy privileges similar to those performed and enjoyed by the inhabitants of the earlier towns (which was generally before the proprietary was dissolved), the township was incorporated, and from that time became known as a town, by the name specified in the act of incorporation; although the term township continued to be used, mainly in reference to the division of the lands, and matters pertaining to land-titles.

The term plantation was retained but a short time, and has fallen into almost entire disuse in New England; but it has been, and still is, used in the southern states, to designate a large tract of land in the ownership of a single person, particularly when cultivated by the labor of slaves.

Early after the institution of the Federal Government, the term township was used as descriptive of the territorial divisions of the public lands of the United States in the western states and territories, which have been usually surveyed into tracts six miles square, with sub-divisions down to forty acres, and then offered for sale by the Government. As these townships become settled, they are called and known as towns; and sometimes the villages in them have, popularly, the same designation.

It has been said (by Mr. Baylies), that "the origin of town governments in New England is involved in some obscurity. The system does not prevail in England. Nothing analagous to it is known in the southern states; and, although the system of internal government in the middle states bears a partial resemblance to that of New England, it is in many respects dissimilar. Those who are strangers to our customs, are surprised to find the whole of New England divided into a vast number of little democratic republics, which have full power to do all those things which most essentially concern the comfort, happiness, and morals of the people."*

Another writer remarks, that the New England towns were "peculiar in their independence and the organization of their government," and that "this government, in the light of to-day so simple and reasonable, perhaps existed nowhere else."—"The nearest precedents," he thinks, "for the New England towns were those little independent nations, the free cities of the twelfth century; or the towns of the Anglo-Saxons, where every office was elective."

But a careful examination of the history of the New England towns will show that they were not founded or modelled on precedent.

I very well recollect the curiosity expressed by some of the gentlemen in the suite of Lafayette, on his visit to this country in 1825, respecting these town organizations and their powers and operations; and a very intelligent foreigner, the author of "Democracy in America," took great pains to acquire information respecting them, and devoted considerable space in his work to an account of their powers, privileges, and duties. With these matters we are all familiar, having almost daily occasion to take part in the exercise of the first two, and to aid in the performance of the latter. But the questions, how it happened that these towns were formed, what were their powers and duties originally, what has been the course of their progress, and what the effect of their organization, are not the subjects of our daily contemplation.

They were not contrived in the closet, nor in the hall of a legislative assembly; and brought into existence, with the powers and duties which we find attached to them, by the enactment of a law for that purpose. They did not burst into mature life by any previous contrivance. But, like most other useful machinery, they had their origin in the wants of the time, and came into existence by a gradual progress from imperfect beginnings.

For the origin of these institutions, the introduction of their municipal powers and duties, and their operation in the distribution of the land into small freeholds, it is necessary to study the history of the early settlement of New England.

The charter of "the Council established at Plymouth, in the County of Devon [in England], for the planting, ruling, ordering, and governing of New England in America," granted by James I, Nov. 3, 1620, and known as "the Great Patent of New England," incorporated the grantees and empowered them to make, ordain, and establish all manner of orders, laws, &c., for and concerning the government of the colony and plantation, which should not be contrary to the laws and statutes of the realm; with power to the Council, and to such governors, officers, &c., as they should appoint, to correct, punish, pardon, govern, &c., according to such laws, orders, &c., "and in defect thereof, in cases of necessity, according to the good discretions of the said governors and officers respectively, as well in cases capital and criminal, as civil, both marine and others, so always as the said statutes, ordinances, and proceedings [be], as near as conveniently may be agreeable to the laws, statutes, government, and policy of this our realm of England." The lands embraced in it were to be held "in free and common socage, and not in capite nor by knight's service:" which was the most free manner of holding lands in England.* This was certainly a most ample grant of powers.

The emigration of the first settlers at Plymouth, in New England, was before this grant (although their arrival was after), and the settlement which they contemplated was to be under the General Company of Virginia, which was established in 1606. For this purpose a patent was procured from the Virginia Company, which is supposed to have embraced a tract of territory near the mouth of the Hudson River. But they never made use of it. Storms drove them from their course; they made land at Cape Cod, and concluded to settle there.

Before landing they entered into and subscribed a combination or compact, "being the first foundation of their government," "occasioned partly by the discontented and mutinous speeches that some of the strangers amongst them had let fall from them in the ship, that when they came ashore they would use their own liberty; for none had power to command them, the patent they had being for Virginia and not for New England, which belonged to another government, with which the Virginia Company had nothing to do. And partly, that such an act by them done (this their condition considered) might be as firm as any patent, and in some respects more In this compact, after reciting that they were loyal subjects of King James, and that they had undertaken, for the glory of God, the advancement of the Christian faith, and honor of their king and country, to plant the first colony in the northern parts of Virginia, the subscribers solemnly covenanted and combined themselves "together into a civil body politic, for our better ordering and preservation, and furtherance of the ends aforesaid; and by virtue hereof to enact, constitute, and frame such just and equal laws, ordinances, acts, constitutions, and offices, from time to time, as shall be thought most meet and convenient for the general good of the colony, unto which we promise all due submission and obedience."

‡Bradford's Hist., pp. 89, 90.

Under this compact they chose Mr. Carver governor; and, in the early part of the next year, he was re-elected. Doubtless they chose minor officers also. On Carver's death, in April, 1621, Bradford was elected governor; but, being ill at the time, an assistant was chosen. Subsequently the number of the assistants was increased to five, afterwards to seven, forming a court or council of assistants, the Governor having a double voice.* The authority to elect the officers, and to direct and order the affairs of the colony, was in the freemen; and meetings for the purpose, called General Courts, became annual, first in January, then in March, afterwards in June.†

Thus a frame of self-government, to be administered by the freemen themselves, and through the agency of those whom they elected for the purpose, was established from the first.

On the first of June, 1621, a charter or patent from the President and Council established at Plymouth, in England, was granted to John Pierce and his associates, in trust for the colony. By this patent it was recited that "Pierce and his associates had transported, and undertaken to transport," "divers persons into New England, and there to erect and build a town, and settle divers inhabitants, &c.;" and thereupon the President and Council agreed to grant and allot, and did grant and allot, to Pierce and his associates, and every of them, one hundred acres of ground for every person, if they should continue three years, or die in the meantime, yielding a yearly rent of two shillings per acre after the first seven years. There were other provisions for grants of lands,-a covenant for a further specific grant of title, by bounds, upon a survey; another, that at any time within seven years, upon request, the President and Council would grant letters and grant of incorporation, by some usual and fit name and title, with liberty to them and their successors to make laws, ordinances, and constitutions, for the rule, government, &c., of all persons to be transported and settled, &c., with a provision, that in the meantime it should be lawful for Pierce and his associates, their heirs and assigns, by consent of the greater part of them, to establish such laws and ordinances as were for their better government; and the same, by such officer or officers as they should by most voices elect and choose, to put in execution. It was further agreed that, when the lands should be planted, there should be a further allowance and grant of fifty acres for each person transported and settled in the plantation.*

It does not appear that the grantees ever acted under this patent. And it seems to me not improbable, that the clause providing for the payment of nent was particularly distasteful to them. † There is no evidence that any reliance was placed upon the authority given by the patent when, ten years after the first settlement, the Court, after indictment and trial by jury, undertook to inflict capital punishment for the offence of murder. As they were then an organized community, within the limits of the Great Patent, and recognized as such, perhaps they relied somewhat upon the provision in that grant, respecting discretion in governing, where no express authority was found. It appears that they consulted Governor Winthrop upon that occasion. They had no scruples respecting their authority, by virtue of their combination, to inflict corporal punishment for lesser offences. ±

Pierce, in 1622, procured another patent, and it seems intended to establish a manorial court, and himself as lord of the manor. generally said, that this was assigned to the Plymouth colony. But Dr. Palfrey cites extracts from the Manuscript Journal of the Council for New England, to show "that Pierce's new patent was cancelled, and the Adventurers were reinstated in their rights." §

A patent was granted, by the Plymouth Company in England, to Bradford, his heirs, associates, and assigns, Jan. 13, 1629. And when, in 1636, the colonists revised their laws, they refer to their "solemn and binding combination," and to this patent, as their authority "for the ordering of a body politic within the several limits of the It may be noted, however, that in "a form to be placed before the records of the several inheritances granted to all and every of the king's subjects inhabiting within the government," which was prepared at the same time, they not only refer to the compact, and the patent to Bradford, but allege that they "had sundry commissions made and confirmed by his said Majesty's Council for New England, to John Pierce and his associates (whose name we only made use of, and whose associates we were)." | If perchance it might afterwards be supposed that the "commissions" to Pierce affected the title to the lands, they asserted, it seems, their right to the benefit of them; although they did not rely upon them for authority in ordering the affairs of the body politic.

Bradford surrendered the patent to him, "his heirs, associates, and assigns," "into the hands of the whole court, consisting of the freemen of the corporation of New Plymouth," in 1640, in order that the title should be established in the colony.*

Many of these facts relative to the original establishment of the Colony are familiar to us, partly through the statements of authors who had seen Bradford's manuscript. I have recited them here, because the New England towns derived their origin, organization, and powers of local government, from the powers exercised by the early emigrants; under the Compact, so far as appears, in the Plymouth colony, and under the charters in the colony of Massachusetts Bay. And they serve to show the principles upon which the emigrants acted, and in part the manner in which they were obliged to proceed in making their settlement. The circumstances in which they were placed, gave in no small degree a direction to the measures which they adopted in the management of their affairs, while always governed by the principles which led them to forsake their native land, and form a colony in the wilderness.

Baylies says of the emigrants, that, "finding a place where much land had been cleared in the neighborhood of a small but pleasant stream," &c., "and of a high hill which could be fortified in a manner so as to command the surrounding country, they resolved to lay out a town." † But Bradford does not use this phraseology at that date. He calls the settlement, in the first instance, a plantation; and it was not until the latter part of 1621, when describing the measures for defence against the Indians, he says, "This was accomplished very cheerfully, and the towne impayled round by the beginning of March." ‡ In another place he speaks of an "Indian towne;" from which it is apparent that he uses the term merely to express the idea of a compact settlement, and with no reference to any organization.

It was their first duty to maintain religious observances and worship; and the second was that of good order, not only in things spiritual, but temporal also.

For several years these powers of government were exerted upon a single community only.

The original design being to establish a trading settlement, or factory as it is sometimes called, their first arrangement was that of partnership. Every man's person was valued at ten pounds; besides which, those who were able contributed in money and goods, and the profits were to be shared according to the interest of each in the common stock. The lands were also held in common, and assigned in small parcels for cultivation from year to year.

^{*}Bradford's Hist., 372. †1 Baylies' Memoir, 60. ‡ Bradford's Hist., pp. 95, 106, 112. $2 Hutch., 416, 417.

Although nothing appears to have been done under the patent to Pierce, it serves to show that at that time it was in contemplation not only to grant lands in severalty, but it indicates what was supposed to be the proper extent of ordinary grants. The cultivation of the lands under a title held in common, by the people at Plymouth, was originally intended as an arrangement for seven years; but it proved an incentive to idleness instead of industry; and, after a trial of two or three years, an acre of land was allotted to each in severalty, "to them and theirs as near the town as might be."* This occupation in severalty made a great change in the industry of the people, and of course in the production of the necessaries of life; † and, in January, 1627, it was agreed in full court, "that the first division of the acres should stand and continue firm, according to the former division made unto the possessors thereof and to their heirs forever; free liberty being reserved to get firewood thereon;" but the timber-trees were excepted for the owners of the ground. At the same time a second division of twenty acres to every person was made. ‡ Perhaps this limited experience had its effect in inducing a different mode of dividing the land in the early settlement of the colony of Massachusetts Bay.

It appears very clearly from this statement, that the early settlers at Plymouth had very moderate desires respecting the acquisition of They set up trading-houses on the Kennebec and Penobscot, and settlements were found at Scituate about 1628 (although the lands were not laid out "by order of court" until 1633), and at Duxbury about 1632, the settlers "promising to live in the town [Plymouth] in the winter, that they might the better repair to the worship of God." The Plymouth colony, as we should expect under such circumstances, did not increase with great rapidity.

The whole colony constituted but one church, and there was but one town until 1633, when those who were on the side of the bay opposite to the town, (the place where Duxbury now is,) as Hutchinson says, "broke from the rest, because of the difficulty of travel, and became a distinct society." It is mentioned, however, in the records of the colony, in November of this year, as "in the liberties of Plymouth" (p, 20).

The settlement at Scituate had had a minister prior to 1634, and in that year a society was organized and a minister settled (Jan. 18, 1634, O. S). A house for public worship was creeted some years earlier,

When these settlements became separated from the settlement at

Plymouth, by an organization for the separate support of the gospel, it was the natural course of things that they should become separated for the management of their local temporal affairs; and this was probably done in the first instance without particular authority, but was soon authorized by acts of incorporation, which constituted them separate towns; and thus they had legal power to manage such of their affairs as were purely local, and to make by-laws for that purpose (subject, however, to such laws and regulations as should be made by the General Court), the freemen of these new towns still remaining members of that court.

The emigrants had escaped from the tyranny of ecclesiastical power. The principle for which they contended was liberty to worship God according to the dictates of their own consciences. Of course, when they associated together for the purpose of supporting public worship, it was "a church without a bishop;" its creed, polity, and proceedings being regulated by the voices or votes of the members of the church, subject to some extent to the great body of the churches when met in council. This is the fundamental law of Congregational action. The principle that the right to rule is in the people, and not transmitted by succession in office, or by hereditary descent, was, of course, the principle which governed the companies in England in their temporal affairs. The founders of the colony at Plymouth applied it to their community by their compact, and founded "a state without a king," so far as their immediate government was concerned. So far as they acted under their charters afterwards, the principle was the same. And this was true also of the colony of Massachusetts. The emigrants acted, indeed, under the authority of companies which had procured grants from the king; but there was no officer deputed by the royal authority to govern or direct their affairs. The freemen of the colony,—those who were admitted to participate in its government,—assembled in General Court, consulted and directed what should be done, and their orders and ordinances became the laws of the colony. These laws were at first made by and for the inhabitants of a single settlement or town. As the settlements extended, the single community remained, under this single rule in relation to all their affairs, until it became not only a great inconvenience for those in the new settlements in the vicinity to attend the church at Plymouth; but the necessity for so doing eeased by the ability of the other settlements to provide a minister for themselves, and sustain public worship. And when they were able to do this, they had their particular local interests, which they eould best understand and provide for. There was then not only no necessity that they should go to Plymouth to procure orders and rules for the regulation of such of their affairs as were entirely local, but there was no reason why the inhabitants of Plymouth should have a voice in the direction of such matters. It was not consistent with the principle upon which the colony was founded, that it should be so. That principle required, that, while they should remain a part of the whole, and be subject to the general voice in relation to all matters which concerned the whole colony they should be allowed to be what their separate settlements had made them: viz., distinct communities, in regard to such affairs as concerned none but themselves; and this was accomplished by acts of incorporation, passed by the whole body in General Court, which recognized them as towns, and gave them the general powers of corporations.

Originating, however, in this necessity and propriety that the people thus separated by distinct settlements should manage their local concerns, this was only a part of the purpose of their organiza-There were divers things to be done which concerned the general welfare, and which at the same time would or might promote the local interest of these settlements; and other things, which, while they were mainly of public concernment, (and for which therefore the rule ought to be determined by the general authority of the colony,) could be more conveniently done and performed by these local organizations. And the performance of these things could be, and was therefore, required of them. It was made a part of their duty, and penal consequences attached to the non-performance. And thus there grew up a system of government, embracing two jurisdictions; administered by the same people; the colonial government, having jurisdiction over the whole colony, administered by the great body of the freemen, through officers elected and appointed by them; and the town governments, having limited local jurisdiction, such as was conceded to them by the colonial government, administered by the inhabitants within the towns, through officers and agents chosen by them. In some respects they were like the borough towns in England. In others, entirely dissimilar.

At a General Court held in October, 1633, "it was by full consent agreed upon and enacted, that the chief government be tied to the town of Plymouth, and that the Governor for the time being be tied there to keep his residence and dwelling; and there also to hold such courts as concern the whole."* This indicates an extension of the settlements.

Few of the early regulations have been preserved.† But in 1632 it was enacted, "in regard to our dispersion so far asunder, and the inconvenience that may befall, that every inhabitant himself a sufficent musket or other serviceable piece for war," and a certain quantity of ammunition.* In 1633 it was enacted that every constable-rick have a sufficient pound to impound cattle that shall transgress any such orders as are or shall be made.† The constablerick seems to have been the territorial division in which the constable was empowered to exercise his duties and powers, and might be a ward or a town. In January, 1633, a constable and messenger was chosen for Plymouth, a constable for the ward of A bounded, &c.; and a constable for the ward of Scituate. In January, 1634-35, it was agreed that the constables of Duxbury and Scituate should remain in their place another year; and in 1635 others were chosen.

In October, 1634, certain persons were appointed for laying out highways "for Duxbury side," and others for "Plymouth." March, 1635-36, it was ordered "that at such convenient time as shall seem meet to the Governor and Council, upon warning given to all men meet together for the mending of the highways, with such tools and instruments as shall be appointed."

In 1636, at a General Court held in October, "the ordinances of the colony and corporation being read, divers were found worthy the reforming, others the rejecting, and others fit to be instituted and made; it was therefore ordered and agreed, that four for the town of Plymouth, two for Scituate, and two for Duxbury, should, as committees for the whole, be added to the governor and assistants, to rectify and prepare such as should be thought most convenient, that, if approved, they may be put in force the next General Court."§ This may be regarded as the first convention for revising the laws; and we have here a representation from the plantations, or settlements, not yet arrived at the dignity of towns, which was to report a draft for the consideration of the General Court.

In the revision, which was made in November of the same year on the report of the committee, it was enacted "that the town of Plymouth, viz., the purchasers and freemen, have liberty of themselves to dispose of the lands that are or shall belong unto them, to such they think meet to receive in unto them. And also to make such orders for their convenient and more comfortable subsistence, as shall by them be thought most meet and convenient, provided they be not contrary to the public ordinance of the Government."

"That Scituate be allowed the like liberties, and to dispose of the grounds between the North River and Cowehasset, provided they have a recourse to Plymouth in case of justice."* This shows that freeholders as well as freemen might vote in the town meetings in relation to town affairs.

In June, 1637, it was enacted by the court that "Ducksborrow shall become a township and unite together for their better security, and have the privileges of a town; only their bounds and limits shall be set and appointed by the next court." †

We have thus the origin of the first three towns in the Plymouth colony.

It has been generally supposed, that, for many years after the settlement of New England, no one was permitted to participate in the election of officers, and in the making of the laws, but members of the church. This was not true of the Plymouth colony. There is nothing in the compact or charter, nor have I found any thing in the laws of the colony, requiring that as a qualification.

The compact constituted the signers of it an associated community, of which, as a matter of course, no other person could become a member without their consent.

The Great Patent to the Council at Plymouth expressly authorized the company, in their discretion, from time to time, to admit such and so many persons to be made free, and enabled to traffic, and to have and enjoy lands, as they should think fit.

By the first patent to Pierce and his associates, the Plymouth Company, calling themselves the President and Council of New England, not only covenanted to grant letters of incorporation, authorizing the grantees to make orders and laws for the rule and government of all persons to be transported and settled upon the land; but a clause was inserted by which it was made lawful for them, for their several defense and safety, to "expulse, repel, and resist, by force of arms," all such persons as, without the special license of the President and Council, should attempt to inhabit within the several precincts and limits of their plantation.

The charter to Bradford and his associates expressly conferred upon the grantees the power to make orders, &c., as well for the better government of their affairs, "and the receiving or admitting any to his or their society."

The power of exclusion from participation in the government of the colony was therefore perfect from the first; and they doubtless exercised it with a view of admission to the freedom of settlement and corporation, of such only as were deemed worthy. But they did not limit their discretion in the admission of freemen, by the adoption of any order or rule for a long period.

^{*11} Plymouth Col. Records, 18; Col. Laws, Brigham's ed., 47. †1 Plymouth Col. Records, 62; Winsor's Hist. Duxbury, 11.

In the revision of 1636, it was enacted, "that the laws and ordinance of the colony, for the government of the same, be made only by the freemen of the corporation, and no other; provided that, in such rates and taxations as are or shall be laid upon the whole, they be without partiality, so as the freemen be not spared for his freedom, but the levy be equal." * Miles Standish was a very efficient freeman, but not a church-member. In 1656, it was ordered, that the deputies of the towns where persons live who are admitted to be freemen, "shall propound them to the court, being such as shall be also approved of by the freemen in such towns where they live;" and, in 1658, they were required to stand propounded one whole year.† In the same year it was enacted, "that no Quaker, Rantor, or any corrupt person, shall be admitted to be a freeman;" also "all such as are opposers of the good and wholesome laws of the colony, or manifest opposers of the true worship of God, or such as refuse to do the country service, being called thereunto," "being duly convicted of all or any of these." And it was further enacted, "that if any person or persons that are or shall be freemen of this corporation, that are Quakers; or such as are manifest encouragers of them, and so judged by the Court; or such as shall speak contemptuously of the Court and of the laws thereof; and such as judged by the Court grossly scandalous, as liars, drunkards, swearers, &c., shall lose their freedom of this corporation." The provision excluding Quakers and ranters from admission would have been entirely unnecessary, if churchmembership had been requisite.

In the revision of the laws, published in 1671, it was required, in order to be admitted a freeman, that the party should be twenty-one years of age, have the testimony of his neighbors that he was of sober and peaceable conversation, orthodox in the fundamentals of religion, and have at least twenty pounds rateable estate. This is requiring something more, as well as something less, than church-membership.

The next section placed a restriction upon the right of suffrage in relation to town-officers. The provision, with its preamble, is deserving of quotation entire: "And because it greatly concerns the good and weal of the whole Colony to have a good choice made in the several towns of selectmen, deputies, grand-jurymen, constables, &c., and it appears that some do abuse their liberty in voting for the choice of such officers, and are either factious or slight in their choice,—it is therefore enacted, that henceforth none shall have power to vote on such accounts in town-meetings, but such as are freemen of the corporation, or free holders of twenty pounds rateable estate, orthodox in the fundamentals of religion, of good conversation, and having taken the oath of fidelity."*

The revision of 1636, before referred to, provides for the election of constables for each part, and other inferior officers. The oath of the constable describes him as an officer of the "ward;" and he was diligently to see that His Majesty's peace commanded be not broken, to apprehend suspicious persons, to serve warrants and summons directed to him, "to see the highways for man and beast be made and kept in convenient repair, and therefore be also appointed surveyor for the liberty he is chosen," &c. By the same code it was provided, "that in every constable-rick there be a pair of stocks erected. Also a cage, which shall be of competent strength to detain a prisoner, and a whipping-post; and these to be erected in such places as shall be thought meet by the several neighborhoods where they concern, upon the penalty X^s for any township which shall be defective herein." †

In January, 1636,—before the incorporation, it would seem, although recorded after,— it was ordered that the inhabitants of Plymouth should "have liberty to meet together to make orders for the herding of their cattle, and such other things as shall be needful for their more neighborly living together." In 1639, a like provision was enacted "for all the townships" "allowed or to be allowed." ‡

In September, 1638, it was enacted that the inhabitants of Scituate should build a bridge over South River; that the inhabitants of Sandwich and Yarmouth should build one over Eel River; and that the inhabitants of the townships of Plymouth and Duxbury should build one over Jones's River.§

In March, 1639, reciting that the townships had formerly had liberty to meet and make town-orders, which were thought to be defective, "for that they conceived they had not power to make assessments, rates, and taxes, for raising such necessary expenses as shall be disbursed about the general occasions of the town concerning the Commonwealth,"—it was enacted, "that every township shall have liberty to meet together and make levies, rates, and taxes, for their town's charges, and to distrain such as shall refuse to pay the same, upon warrant of the Court or Governor." The next year it was provided, that, where persons had relief from the towns, and had children and did not employ them, the towns might take order that the children should be put to work in some fitting employment, or placed out by the towns; also that every township should provide a barrel of powder, and lead or bullets answerable, to be kept ready for defence in time of need. In 1641, it was enacted that every township do carry a competent number of pieces, fixed and complete, with powder, shot, and swords, every Lord's Day, to the meetings. And, in 1642, it was required that all the towns make wolf-traps and bait them, and look to them daily, upon the penalty of ten shillings for every trap which should be neglected. The number to be made by each town was specified.*

The next year, provision was made against bringing into any town any person whose support might become chargeable to the town; that every person that lived, and was quietly settled, in any township, and not excepted against within three months, should be reputed an inhabitant [gain a settlement]; and that every township should make competent provision for the maintenance of its poor. †

We have here some of the original powers and duties to be exercised and performed by the towns and their officers, upon their incorporation. They are, it is perceived, of a very miscellaneous character. Other powers, privileges, and duties were added from time to time, as it became apparent that these organizations were adapted to their exercise and performance. And so changes have been made since, as occasion seemed to require. The duty of keeping the stocks and the whipping-post has been abolished by the humanity of later times. That of keeping the cage [jail] has been transferred to the counties. The maintenance of the wolf-traps is no longer required.

In March, 1638, complaint having been made that the freemen were put to many inconveniences and great expenses by their continual attendance at the courts, it was enacted, "that every town shall make choice of two of their freemen, and the town of Plymouth of four, to be committees or deputies to join with the Bench [Court of Assistants], to enact and make all such laws and ordinances as shall be judged to be good and wholesome for the whole. Provided that the laws they do enact shall be propounded one court, to be considered upon until the next court, and then to be confirmed, if they shall be approved of (except the case require present confirmation). that if any act shall be confirmed by the Bench and committees, which, upon further deliberation, shall prove prejudicial to the whole, that the freemen at the next election court, after meeting together, may repeal the same, and enact any other that may be useful to the And that every township shall bear their committee's charges, and that such as are not freemen, but have taken the oath of fidelity, and are masters of families and inhabitants of the said towns, as they are to bear their part in the charges of their committees, so to have a vote in the choice of them, provided they choose them only from the freemen of the said town whereof they are; but, if any of such committees shall be insufficient or troublesome, that then the Bench and the other committees may dismiss them, and the town to choose other freemen in their place."*

Such was the foundation of the system of representation in the legislative department of the Plymouth colony. The representatives were not chosen by the freemen alone, but inhabitants of the towns who were masters of families and had taken the oath of fidelity had an equal right to participate in the election, while freemen only could be elected. General Courts, for the election of the officers of the colony, continued to be held yearly: the freemen who could not conveniently attend being allowed to give in their votes for Governor, assistants, commissioners, and treasurer, in the town-meetings, sealed up, which were then to be taken by the deputies to the General Court, and counted with those of the freemen who were present.† If some of the principal elements of this system could be incorporated into our present system, State and National, and faithfully enforced, there would be less reason for exception to the proceedings of our legislative bodies, and the laws would have a greater measure of stability.

In 1639 a General Court was held, at which deputies attended from seven towns.†

In 1641 there were eight towns: in 1658, twelve.§

A representative system was introduced into the Massachusetts colony at an earlier date, by reason of the more rapid increase of that colony.

The settlements in the Massachusetts colony commenced in a different manner,—dispersed in the outset, so that the separation into towns, which, as we have seen was arrived at in the Plymouth colony by slow degrees, took place at once, by reason of the transfer of the government of the plantation to New England, and a greater emigration; and from the nature and necessities of the case.

Through fishing and other voyages, divers persons—some in companies, some singly—had, prior to 1629, settled within the limits of what was subsequently the Massachusetts colony.

The charter of "the Governor and Company of Massachusetts Bay in New England," granted by Charles I., March 4, 1628-9, under which the settlements were afterwards made in this colony, was, so far as our present inquiry is concerned, substantially like that to the Plymouth Company granted by James. The differences are hardly worth noting in detail. The grantees and their associates were constituted a body politic and corporate. Reciting a grant by the Plymouth Company, in England, of a tract of land between the Merrimack River and Charles River, &c., it granted and confirmed that grant in fee. The lands were to be held in free and common socage. A Governor, Deputy-governor and assistants were to be elected out of the freemen, for one year, who were to hold courts. And a Great and General Court was to be holden by the officers and freemen of the company, at which officers were to be elected and freemen might be admitted. Ample power was given to this General Court to make laws, ordinances, &c. All the subjects of the realm inhabiting there, were to have and enjoy all liberties and immunities of free and natural subjects.

The proceedings under the charter show that it was contemplated that the lands should be granted, in small parcels, to those who adventured in the company, and those who settled in the colony.

At a General Court held in London, April 30, 1629, it was ordered that thirteen of the most wise, honest, expert, and discreet persons, resident upon the plantation, should have the managing and ordering of the Government, to be entitled "The Governor and Council of London plantation of Massachussetts Bay, in New England." John Endicott was chosen Governor, and seven persons to be of the council. They were authorized to choose three others; "and, to the end that the former planters there may have no just occasion of exception, as being excluded out of the privileges of the company," it was ordered that such of them as were willing to live within the limits of the plantation should be "authorized to make choice of two, such as they shall think fit," to make up the number of twelve of the Council.*

It was further agreed on and ordered that the Governor for the time being, and the Deputy-governor in his absence, should have power to call courts and meetings, in places and at times convenient, as to his discretion should seem meet; and that the Governor or Deputy, together with the Council, being assembled, or the greater number of them, whereof the Governor or Deputy should be one, were "authorized by this act, grounded on the power derived from His Majesty's charter, to make, ordain, and establish, all manner of wholesome and reasonable laws, orders, ordinances, and constitutions (so as the same be no way repugnant or contrary to the laws of the realm of England), for the administering of justice upon malefactors, and inflicting condign punishment upon all other offenders; and for the furtherance and propagating of the said plantation, and the more decent and orderly government of the inhabitants resident there." †

Under this arrangement, a settlement was made at Salem. May, provision was made for granting lands. It appears from the record that this was done with a view to building a town.*

On the 29th of August, of the same year, it was determined that the patent and government should be transferred to New England, and settled there; and John Winthrop was elected Governor, Oct. 20.

The first Court of Assistants appears by the records to have been held at Charlestown), Aug. 23, 1630, about two months after the arrival of Governor Winthrop and those who accompanied At this court, "Impr., it was propounded how the ministers should be maintained. Mr. Wilson and Mr. Phillips only propounded. It was ordered that houses be built for them at the public Sir Richard Staltonstall undertook to see it done at his plantation for Mr. Phillips, and Mr. Governor at the other plantation for Mr. Wilson." After specifying the particulars of the maintenance, it is added, "All this to be at the common charge, those of

Mattapan and Salem only excepted."†

Thomas Dudley, one of the Assistants, and afterwards Governor, writing to the Countess of Lincoln, in March, 1631, gives reasons why "we were forced to change counsel, and for our present shelter to plant dispersedly, some at Charlestown, which standeth on the north side of the mouth of Charles River, some on the south side thereof, which place we named Boston (as we intended to have done the place we first resolved on); some of us upon the Mistic which we named Meadford; some of us westward, on Charles River, four miles from Charlestown, which place we named Watertown; others of us two miles from Boston, in a place we named Roxbury; others upon the river of Sawgus, between Salem and Charlestown; and the western men four miles south from Boston, at a place we named Dorchester. dispersion," he adds, "troubled some of us, but help it we could not, wanting ability to remove to any place fit to build a town upon; and the time too short to deliberate any longer, least the winter should surprise us before we had builded our houses." ±

At a Court of Assistants, Sept. 7, it was "ordered that Trimountain shall be called Boston; Mattapan, Dorchester; and the town upon Charles River, Waterton." § Also ordered, that no person should plant in any place within the limits of the patent, without leave from the Governor and assistants, or the major part of them. "And that a warrant shall presently be sent to Aggawam to command those that are planted there forthwith to come away." Sept. 28, constables were chosen by the Court of Assistants for Salem and Dorchester, "to continue in office for a year, and after, until new be chosen." At the same time it was ordered, that there should be collected and levied by distress, out of the several plantations, for the maintenance of Mr. Patrick and Mr. Underhill, the sum of 50l., which sum was proportioned among Charlton, Boston, Dorchester, Roxbury, Waterton, Medford, Salem, Wessaguscus, and Natascett. On the 30th of November, there was a similar assessment upon a part of these towns and upon Winnett-semett, for the maintenance of Mr. Wilson and Mr. Phillips.*

At a General Court, May 18, 1631, Winthrop was chosen Governor, and Dudley Deputy-governor, for the year ensuing. And it was "ordered, with full consent of all the commons then present, that onee in every year at least a General Court shall be holden, at which it shall be lawful for the commons to propound any person or persons whom they shall desire to be chosen Assistants; and, if it be doubtful whether it be the greater part of the commons or not, it shall be put to the poll. The like course to be holden when they, the said commons, shall see cause, for any defect or misbehavior, to remove any one or more of the Assistants; and, to the end the body of commons may be preserved of honest and good men, it was likewise ordered and agreed, that for time to come no man shall be admitted to the freedom of this body politic, but such as are members of some of the churches within the limits of the same." † In September, 1635, it was "ordered that none but freemen shall have any vote in any town, in any action of authority or necessity, or that belongs to them by virtue of their freedom, as receiving inhabitants, and laying out lots, &c." ‡ This is, perhaps, the first interference, by the General Court, with the authority of the inhabitants of the towns to manage such of their affairs as were of a strictly local character.

Speaking of them, a judicious writer observes; "—and then follows what purports to be a long extract in relation to the Massachusetts colony, containing this paragraph: "The first General Court was held at Charlestown, on board the ship "Arabella." A law was passed, declaring that none should be admitted as freemen, or be entitled to any share in the government, or even to serve as jurymen, except those who had been received as members of the church; by which measure every person whose mind was not of a particular structure, or accidentally impressed with peculiar ideas, was at once cast out of society, and stripped of his civic rights."—See Peterson's Hist. of R. I., pp. 22, 23; Amer. Quar. Review, No. 34, N. S., p. 327.

The mixing up, by the reviewer and the historian, of the "Pilgrim Fathers" of the Plymouth colony, with the proceedings of the "Puritans" in the Massachusetts colony, is bad enough. But this is not the worst error. The Pilgrim Fathers, as we have seen, never adopted the rule, that, in order to be a freeman, the candidate must be a member of the church. There is no good reason to suppose that the first General Court of the Massachusetts colony (Oct. 19, 1630), was held on board the "Arabella."—See 1 Winthrop's Hist., Sav-

There had been, before that time, in addition to the apportionment of taxes upon the towns for the support of ministers, assessments upon them for the making of a creek at the "new-town" (Cambridge), and for the making of a palisado about it, in anticipation of its becoming the seat of government. The towns had also been required to furnish arms to those of their inhabitants who were unable; to provide certain weights and measures; to repair fences which had been adjudged by the inhabitants insufficient, if the owner did not after warning, the owner being made liable to pay the charges. It was ordered, also, in 1634, that the constable and four or more of the chief inhabitants of every town, to be chosen by the freemen there, should make surveys of corn fields, moving-grounds, and other lands, improved or inclosed, or granted by special order of the Court, of every free inhabitant there; and should enter the same in a book, and deliver a transcript thereof unto the Court, that it might be recorded, and be a sufficient assurance of title. In less than a year afterwards, it was agreed that those which are not freemen, that had taken or should take the oaths of fidelity, should have the same assurance of land as was provided for freemen.* The bounds of towns also were established by the Court of Assistants, and differences between them determined.

Thus far the settlements have been in advance of the laying out of the towns. But, in 1635, it was "ordered that there shall be a plantation settled about two miles above the falls of Charles River, on the north-east side thereof, to have the grounds lying to it on both sides of the river, both upland and meadow, to be laid out hereafter as the Court shall appoint." †

In 1634, it was ordered that the constable of every plantation should, upon process received from the secretary, give notice to the freemen of the plantation to send so many of their members as the process should direct, to attend upon public service; and it was agreed, that no trial should pass upon any for life or banishment, but by a jury so summoned or by the General Court.‡

In 1635, reciting that "whereas particular towns have many things which concern only themselves and the ordering of their own affairs, age's ed., 35, note 4. Where the Court was held, however, is unimportant. Officers could not be chosen at the Court of Assistants, held Aug. 23, 1630, even under the order of the Company in England of April 30, 1629. The right of election was in the General Court. But no order making church-membership a requisite to admission as a freeman was passed until near nine months after Aug. 23, 1630; and none which limited voting in town affairs, generally, to the freemen, until five years after that time.

Even in Rhode Island, not only the franchise, but ownership, was restricted. Peterson says of the proprietors there: "Those whom they considered turbulent and unruly, they would not admit to ownership, or to exercise the privileges of freemen."—Hist. of R. I., 34.

and disposing of business in their own town, it was ordered, that the freemen of every town, or the major part of them, shall only have power to dispose of their own lands and woods, with all the privileges and appurtenances of the said towns; to grant lots and make such orders as may concern the well ordering of their own towns, not repugnant to the laws and orders here established by the General Court; as also to lay mulets and penalties for the breach of their orders, and to levy and distrain the same, not exceeding the sum of twenty shillings; also to choose their own particular officers, as constables, surveyors for the highways, and the like." *

In 1638, it was declared, that every inhabitant in any town was liable to contribute to all charges, both in church and commonwealth, whereof he did or might receive benefit; and that every inhabitant who did not voluntarily contribute, proportionably to his ability, with other freemen of the same town, to all common charges, as well for upholding the ordinances in the churches as otherwise, should be compelled thereto by assessment and distress, to be levied by the constable or other officer of the town as in other cases.

The preceding orders, so far as they limit the right of voting to the freemen, were modified in 1647, when the General Court—"taking into consideration the useful parts and abilities of divers inhabitants amongst us which are not freemen, which, if improved to public use, the affairs of this commonwealth may be the easier carried an end, in the several towns of this jurisdiction "—declared that it should be lawful for the freemen in any town "to make choice" of such inhabitants, though non-freemen, who have taken or should take the oath of fidelity to this government; to be jurymen, and to have their vote in the choice of the selectmen for town affairs, assessment of rates, and other prudentials proper to the selectmen of the several towns; provided still that the major part of all companies of selectmen be freemen from time to time that shall make any valid act: as also, where no selectmen are, to have their vote in the ordering of schools, herding of cattle, laying out of highways, and distributing of lands; "provided also that no non-freeman shall have his vote until he have attained the age of twenty-four years." ‡

In 1649, it was ordered that, in issuing warrants for jurymen, respect should be had to the number of inhabitants in each town.

Prior to that period, we find further, that highways might be laid out and established by the town authorities; that it was the duty of the towns to make and keep in repair highways and bridges, and that they were liable for all damages sustained by defects in the highways; that towns of fifty householders should have a school, and towns of one hundred families or householders should set up a grammar school, the master thereof being able to instruct youth so far that they might be fitted for the university,—the several towns being liable to a penalty for non-performance;—that they might purchase and hold a parsonage; and were to elect officers of the train-bands, which were the militia in the town.

The privileges, and more especially the duties, of these corporations have been extended from time to time since that period.

Having ascertained the mode in which the towns came into existence as corporations, and thereby obtained the power to make by-laws, and the other powers incident to a corporate existence; and how, at the same time and subsequently, they were subjected to the performance of particular duties, and received grants of privileges,—the change, by and through which the General Court of the Massachusetts colony was no longer composed of the great body of the freemen of the colony, but of deputies (or, as is now generally said, representatives), elected by the towns, may well demand our attention.

The charter, as we have seen, provided that there should be "a Great and General Court." This Court was to be holden four times in each year, by the Governor or Deputy-governor, and such of the Assistants, not less than six, and the freemen, who should be present; and had power to admit freemen, elect officers, and make laws. This was attended with no material inconvenience, so long as the Company was a body of "adventurers," residing in England, making the laws there, and acting by officers and agents for the purpose of disposing of land, and trading in furs, &c., in New England.

But when it was perceived, that the project of settling a colony required a government within the colony, and it was debated whether it was not expedient that the charter and government should be transferred to New England, the government of the Company established there, and the settlers admitted as freemen,—it must have become apparent, that the success of the enterprise would enlarge the number of freemen to such an extent, that it would be impracticable for the great body of them to meet together, elect members and officers, and make the laws; and that some other constitution of a legislative body was desirable. This consideration probably had its weight, along with others, in leading to the adoption of that part of the order of April 30, 1629, by which it was agreed on and ordered, that the Governor or Deputy-governor together with the Council, to be organized under that order, were authorized by that act, "grounded on the power derived from his Majesty's charter, to make, ordain, and establish all manner of wholesome and reasonable laws, orders," &c.

Notwithstanding there was nothing in the charter on which to ground such a provision, it does not appear to have met with any immediate opposition. On the contrary, we find that, at a General Court held at Boston, Oct. 19, 1630, "For the establishing of the government. It was propounded if it were not the best course that the freemen should have the power of choosing assistants, when there are to be chosen; and the assistants, from amongst themselves, to choose a Governor and Deputy-governor, who, with the assistants, should have the power of making laws, and choosing officers to execute the same. This was fully assented to by the general vote of the people and erection of hands."* How it happened that such an attempt to depart from the charter, in a fundamental point, should have been assented to by a general vote of the people interested, does not appear.

Mr. Savage in a note to Winthrop's "History," says, "The company, or great body of the colony corporation, submitted at first to the mild and equal temporary usurpation of the officers chosen by themselves, which was also justified by undisputable necessity.";

The reason is not very material. If there was indifference, it did not last long. At a General Court, held May 14, 1634, it was "agreed that none but the General Court hath power to choose and admit freemen."—"That none but the General Court hath power to make and establish laws, nor to elect and appoint officers as governor, deputy-governor, assistants, treasurer, secretary, captain, lieutenants, ensigns, or any of like moment, or to remove such upon misdemeanor; as also to set out the duties and powers of the said officers,"—"That none but the General Court hath power to raise monies and taxes and to dispose of lands, viz., to give and confirm proprieties."

At the same court it was agreed, that a fine should be set upon the Court of Assistants and Mr. Mayhew, "for breach of an order of court against employing Indians to shoot with pieces;" one-half to be paid by the Court of Assistants, then in being, who gave the leave.‡ The margin of the record shows that the fine was remitted. These proceedings evidently show a determination on the part of the freemen to assert their rights of government, and to hold the Court of Assistants to a strict responsibility. Is it unreasonable to suppose, that the spirit which dictated these acts had been fostered by the exercise of the power of making by-laws and orders, and transacting business under their town organizations?

At the same General Court it was "further ordered, that it shall be lawful for the freemen of every plantation to choose two or three of each town before every General Court, to confer of and prepare such public business as by them shall be thought fit to consider of at the next General Court; and that such persons as shall be hereafter so deputed by the freemen of all the several plantations, to deal in their behalf in the public affairs of the commonwealth, shall have the full power and voices of the said freemen, derived to them for the making and establishing of laws, granting of lands, &c., and to deal in all other affairs of the commonwealth wherein the freemen have to do; the matter of the election of magistrates and other officers only excepted, wherein every freeman is to give his own voice." *

Here we have the system of representation, which was two years afterwards introduced into the colony of Plymouth.

In September, 1636, the representation was limited and proportioned among the towns by an order "that, hereafter, no town in the plantation that hath not ten freemen resident in it shall send any deputy to the General Courts; those that have above ten and under twenty, not above one; betwixt twenty and forty, not above two; and those that have above forty, three, if they will, but not above." †

This system of town representation was continued substantially for more than two centuries, and was finally abandoned in 1857, and a district system substituted, because, the smaller towns having one member and the larger a proportionate number, the representative body became too large for the convenient transaction of business, and the expense of maintaining it an unnecessary tax. In 1635, it was ordered that the deputies should be elected by papers [ballots], as the Governor was chosen.

In March, 1643-4, it was "ordered, first that the magistrates may sit and act business by themselves, by drawing up bills and orders which they shall see good in their wisdom; which having agreed upon, they may present to the deputies to be considered of, how good and wholesome such orders are for the country, and accordingly to give their assent or dissent: the deputies in like manner sitting apart by themselves, and consulting about such orders and laws as they in their discretion and experience shall find meet for common good;

^{*1} Records of Mass., 118; 1 Winthrop's Hist., 157. Hutchinson says, "At a General Court for elections, in 1634, twenty-four of the principal inhabitants appeared as the representatives of the body of freemen, and, before they proceeded to the election of magistrates, the people asserted their right to a greater share in the government than had hitherto been allowed to them."—I Hutchinson, Hist. of Mass., 39. This has been supposed to indicate that these twenty-four persons "declared themselves to be the representatives of the body of the freemen, the freemen having assented;" that "it was a voluntary organization, or, as it were, a Committee of Safety to frame government."—Debates in the Convention of Massachusetts in 1853, tto ed., vol. i. p. 473; 8vo ed., vol. i. p. 910. But this is not probable. The "twenty-four persons," supposing that they appeared, probably came exercising their own rights as freemen, and claiming that in what they said they spoke the sentiments of the freemen, and represented them in that sense.

† 1 Records of Mass., 178.

which agreed upon by them, they may present to the magistrates, who, according to their wisdom, having seriously considered of them, may consent unto them or disallow them; and when any orders have passed the approbation of both magistrates and deputies, then such orders to be engrossed, and, in the last day of the court, to be read deliberately, and full assent to be given; provided, also, that all matters of judicature which this court shall take cognizance of shall be issued in like manner."* Thus this town representation became a distinct branch of legislation and judicature, the legislative body being divided into two branches, with a negative upon each other. If the wisdom, discretion, experience, and deliberation, mentioned in this order, could be secured at the present day, our laws would be much more likely to be "good and wholesome" for the country.

The particular manner in which the towns should organize does not appear to have been prescribed by law. Their officers were such as their business seemed to require, and their by-laws and regulations such as commended themselves to the judgment of the several communities, having doubtless a similarity in their main features. We derive some knowledge of their early proceedings from the Town

Histories.

Charlestown was occupied immediately after the arrival of Governor Winthrop, and it was intended to build a "great town" there.

A skillful engineer was employed to "model and lay out the form of the town."†—As this seems for a time to have been regarded as the most important settlement, and many of the most distinguished of the emigrants settled there, its proceedings are of more than ordinary interest, as they probably furnished the model for those of other towns, and serve to elucidate their history. They furnish some intelligence which I have found nowhere else.

It was jointly agreed and concluded that each inhabitant have a two-acre lot to build upon. Afterward further divisions were made to the original settlers, and to others who became inhabitants.

There is a record of "the inhabitants that first settled in the place, and brought it into the denomination of an English Towne;" but it had little resemblance to an English town, except in the fact that it had streets, and was inhabited.

The inhabitants of Charlestown for a few years transacted all their local business in "town-meeting." Prior to any law making it a duty they provided for the support of their poor, &c. In 1634, they empowered a committee to lay out lots and make rates; and a committee to be at town-meetings, and assist in ordering their affairs. Probably the duty of this committee was to endeavor to give the right direction to the affairs, on account of differences of opinion; for in 1635, "in consideration of the great trouble and charge of the inhabitants by reason of the frequent meeting of the townsmen in general, and that, by reason of many men meeting, things were not so easily brought unto a joint issue," they made a compact, by which it was agreed by the townsmen jointly, "that eleven men, with the advice of pastor and teacher, desired in any ease of conscience, shall entreat of all such business as shall concern the townsmen, the choice of officers excepted; and what they or the greater part of them shall conclude, the rest of the town willingly submit to as their own proper act." The eleven persons thus chosen were "to continue in this employment for one year."*

We have here, I think, the origin of the management of the affairs of the towns by "selectmen," originally introduced by the agreement of the townsmen of Charlestown, and afterwards adopted into the laws of the colony.

The selectmen acted as assessors of taxes and overseers of the poor. Other town-officers were elected, some of them the same as those elected at the present day,—town-clerk, constables, surveyors of highways. Overseers of the fields were also elected, part of whose duty was that of the hogreeve of a subsequent period. But herdsmen and chimney sweepers are no longer known as town-officers.

In 1636, a schoolmaster was engaged by the town for a twelve-month,—eleven years prior to the law of Massachusetts compelling towns to maintain schools.† A schoolhouse was built in 1648.‡ There was an organization of the militia also, for there were trainings soon after the settlement.§ I have stated these particulars of what the people of Charlestown agreed and assumed to do, to show what the towns of New England have done, in a greater or less degree, from their earliest existence.

The histories of other towns are not so full and particular. But it appears from the history of Dedham that the inhabitants made a town-eovenant, which "laid the foundation for making legitimate by-laws:"—that, having thus acquired the right in their aggregate capacity to make laws, they exercised it for three years; but, as the affairs of the plantation required monthly town-meetings, this diverted them from their necessary business, and in 1639 they delegated all their power to seven men, to be annually chosen."—"These seven men met monthly for many years, made necessary by-laws for the establishment of highways and fences, for the keeping of cattle and swine and horses; for keeping proper register of land-titles, and of births and marriages; for the support of schools and religion; for additional bounties for killing wolves and wildcats; for the extinguishment of Indian claims."*

It is but reasonable to suppose, that the other towns which were founded about the same time—Newtown (afterwards Cambridge), Dorchester, Watertown, Boston, &c.—followed the lead of the "great

It seems that, in some of the earlier settlements, it was understood that the lands within the towns, the Indian title being extinguished, belonged to those who were authorized to settle them, partly to be divided among themselves, and partly to be granted to those who should join them. In others they were granted by the General Court. †

The first allotments of land, as we have seen, were quite small; and it excites no surprise therefore to learn, that in 1634 "those of Newtown complained of straitness for want of land, especially meadow, and desired leave of the court to look out either for enlargement or removal." The same was true of settlers in other places; and this led to an extension of the settlements. §

In this respect, as in some others, it was doubtless true "that the appetite grew by what it fed on;" and that there was, for that reason, a disposition, even when a liberal allowance had been made, to "ask for more."

In a tract entitled "Good News from New England," printed in London, 1648, we find,—

"Most men, unlanded till this time, for large lands eager sue; Had not restraint knocked off their hands, too big their fermes had grew."

The wholesome restraint, however, which prevented the acquisition of overgrown territory, was continued. Substantial homesteads might be allowed to those who could improve them, and there were a few instances of large grants to some of the principal magistrates.

It is stated that in 1634, when a larger allotment of land was made in Charlestown, the largest share was two hundred and sixty acres, and the smallest ten acres. These grants of land were intended for actual settlers. There was an order in one of the divisions in that ^{*}Worthington's History of Dedham, 32, 33.—The town regulations extended to all matters of police.—Felt, in his "History of Ipswich," p. 37, refers to an order of May 11, 1644, the first part of which is, "It is ordered that all dogs, for the space of three weeks after the publishing hereof, shall have one leg tied up." The reason of this singular restraint was, that the people had manured their lands with fish, and the dogs, being of opinion that a more satisfactory appropriation might be made of the fish, did not pay due regard to this mode of cultivation. The latter part of the order was, "If a man refuse to tie up his dog's leg, and he be found scraping up fish in the cornfield, the owner shall pay twelve shillings, beside whatever damage the dog doth. But if any fish their house-lots, and receive damage by dogs, the owners of those house-lots shall bear the damage themselves." † History of Charlestown, 54.

town, that, if the lands granted were not occupied, they might be regranted.

The straitness of the men of Newtown for want of land, "especially meadow," it would seem, led to the settlements on the Connecticut, at Hartford and its vicinity.*

The colonial records of Connecticut commenced in 1636; but the original settlement being from Massachusetts, and the organization into townships being similar, it is not necessary to dwell upon the history of those settlements. The same may be said of New Haven and Rhode Island.

As the Indian title by occupancy was extinguished, either by purchase or by the extinguishment of the occupants, grants of townships were made by the General Court, from time to time, extending into the interior. These grants were made to numbers of persons, who associated together for the purpose of procuring them; and, unless otherwise expressed, each grantee became the owner of one share in the township. The grantees were called proprietors, or collectively "the proprietary," and had certain rights of a corporate character, suited to the purpose of dividing the lands among themselves; for which purpose they held proprietary meetings, and acted by major vote. The partition of the townships and sales by the owners severally, were better adapted to promote the speedy settlement of the lands than an attempt to sell by the proprietary, as general owner of the whole; for the reason, that this mode furnished the greater stimulus of individual interest in making sales and securing occupation.

The extension of the settlements is beautifully portrayed by

Bryant :—

"Look now abroad: another race has filled
These populous borders; wide the wood recedes,
And towns shoot up, and fertile realms are tilled;
The land is full of harvests and green meads;
Streams numberless, that many a fountain feeds,
Shine disembowered, and give to sun and breeze
Their virgin waters; the full region leads
New colonies forth, that, toward the Western seas,
Spread, like a rapid flame, among the autumnal trees."

The early settlements of New Hampshire differed somewhat from those of Massachusetts.

The history of the conflicting grants, which were made from time to time, is foreign to our present purpose, which is with its mode of settlement rather than its title.

Captain John Mason—who, along with Sir Ferdinando Gorges, obtained the grant of all the lands between the rivers Merrimac and

^{*1} Winthrop's Hist., 162, 167; Morton's Memorial, 181.

Sagadahoc, extending back to the great lakes and the River of Canada—seems to have contemplated, along with a fishing establishment, large agricultural operations, connected with the "great house," which was probably designed for his own residence. It is said that three or four thousand acres of land were annexed to the house, which was built at Little Harbor, on the Piscataqua River, with the intention of forming a manor there, according to the English custom.

Hilton, another agent, who settled at Dover, had the power of granting lands. But subsequent events show, that here, as well as elsewhere, most of the settlements must have been made without any regular title to the land; and there was, for a long time, no government organized under any charter or commission.

The inhabitants of Portsmouth having, in 1640, entered into a social compact to establish a government among themselves, in the next year the settlements on the Piscataqua River and its branches were formed into distinct governments; so that there were existing, at the commencement of that year, four separate republics, independent of each other; namely, Portsmouth, Kittery, Dover, and Exeter;*—that is, there were then four towns in that region which had all the powers of government in fact, by agreement, without any legal incorporation. The three former were settled with special reference to their fisheries; the latter for its salt marshes.

The evils attendant upon such a state of things is readily seen, and the consequence was a union with Massachusetts, which continued until about 1680; these towns, with Haverhill and Salisbury, forming the county of Norfolk. They were represented in the General Court of Massachusetts. I am not aware that Massachusetts assumed the right of granting lands in virtue of the union, which was jurisdictional rather than proprietary.

When the government of the colony of New Hampshire was organized, under the commission of President Cutts, in 1680, only these four towns are mentioned; and, although the settlements must at that time have extended considerably beyond their present limits, the representation in the first assembly was from them only.

But the Massachusetts colony claimed, under their charter, the right to a large tract north of the present northern line of the State; and made grants of townships under that claim, during the union, and afterwards, until the settlement of the boundary.

On the establishment of Mason's claim, townships were granted in a similar mode, by the Masonian proprietors.

The colonial governor, Benning Wentworth, made similar grants, beyond the Masonian curve line, upon certain conditions respecting settlement. These grants were usually to a large number of persons, sometimes with shares for the Church of England and the Society for Propagating the Gospel in Foreign Parts, and a lion's share for His Excellency himself.

The usefulness of these New England towns is seen, not merely in the ends which were attained directly by their regular action, in the accomplishments of the objects of their organization, through the exercise of their powers and the performance of their duties; but in the facilities which they furnished for rendering aid to other purposes which were not the objects of their organization.

I have already adverted to the fact, that these town-organizations were powerful agents in the preservation of the religious principles of early settlers.

That there was a difference in the characters and habits of the people in the different sections of the country, upon the first emigration, we need not be told, and this has been perpetuated to some extent by a difference of social institutions. In other cases, changes of organization have produced corresponding changes in the manifestations of character.

There was no small difference in the habits and manners of the early settlers of New England. A large portion of them was of the Puritan stock; but this, it is well known, was not true of all. Some of the early settlers of New Hampshire were attracted thither, not so much because of the freedom it offered to worship God according to the dictates of their consciences, as that it offered a freedom of valuable fisheries.

It is undoubtedly true, however, that in the days of the early settlement, and for a long period afterward, the leaven of Puritanism leavened the whole lump. It is equally true, that it exerts its influence for good upon the country at the present day; and we trust it will do so through all coming time.

But had there been nothing in the municipal institutions of New England operating favorably for the preservation of its principles, they could not have continued to exert their full influence after two or three generations.

While, on the one hand, character has it influence in the formation and preservation of the institutions of government, it is also true that the institutions thus formed, in their turn, exert an abiding, almost controlling, influence in the formation of character.

Could the worthy Friends who founded the State of Pennsylvania have bestowed upon the City of Brotherly Love the simplicity of a Quaker town, and could their dress and forms of worship have been continued to it until this day, it would not, a few years since, have been the most noted of all the cities in the Union for the frequency and ferocity of the riots of its fire department.

Had the Puritans left their descendants merely the legacy of their lives of purity and austerity, and of their principles of honesty and religious faith, without any institutions by which they might be perpetuated, the remembrance of their virtues, the force of their example, and the operation of their principles, would have been much less vivid, much less powerful, and of much shorter duration.

I do not mean to be understood that institutions alone can preserve such principles and virtues, but only that they render a powerful aid in producing that effect. While much that is valuable has been preserved, something of simplicity, at least, has passed away.

The grants of townships which were for the disposition and settlement of the land, became the source of immediate associations of people,—few perhaps at first,—clustering around the central point within the grant, or some favorable spot near the centre, except when they were drawn to a point more remote, by means of the advantages offered by a waterfall, natural meadows, or some other local The numbers of this small company, thus collected, inattraction. creased from time to time, until the little settlement rose to the dignity of a New England village. Here the mechanics established themselves, not always with the best of tools, but sometimes with plenty of shop-There is an anecdote of a traveller in Dunstable inquiring for the shop of the blacksmith. "You are in his shop now, but you will find his anvil two miles further on," was the answer. Here was not only the blacksmith but the carpenter and the shoemaker; and then came the tailor and the trader. The butcher and the baker are of a later date; households in those early days, acting for themselves in these occupations.

These villages thus formed in the townships, although not walled for defence furnished a wall of defence against Indian hostility, in the mutual support and aid of the settlers who clustered together, partly for that purpose; and, when upon frontier settlements that was not deemed a sufficient protection against a foe whose approaches were so secret and whose onset was so deadly, forts were constructed, by the common labors of the inhabitants, for their better security in times of danger.

As the village made progress, lots were selected or drawn, and farms cultivated in other parts of the township; the occupants in general looking to the central settlement as the place for the transaction of their business and for social intercourse. Amid these mutual dangers and hardships, mutual feelings of almost fraternal affection were cultivated.

They divided into school districts, which were compelled to build schoolhouses. Their duty to provide, in their corporate capacity, for religious instruction, continued for a long period. This, with the provision for schools, transmitted the Puritan character, modified by time and circumstances, but still with many of its distinctive features. There was a change in this particular after the country was settled, so that provision could be made in the several towns for the support of religious worship without the aid of the town authority.

The effect of these rights and duties, thus exercised, upon the religious, moral, social, and political character of the people, has been seen and felt; but the influence of the town incorporation, through which they have been exercised and performed, has been but partially estimated. Through no other agency could such laws have been carried into effect. The want of such agencies was one great reason why in other parts of the country no similar provisions respecting schools and religious institutions existed.

Passing the religions, moral, and social, let us dwell a moment upon the political effects.

It was through these agencies and this organization that the measures of the Mother Country were discussed, when the controversy arose between her and the colonies. And if the merits of this controversy were better understood by the great mass of the people in New England than in any other portion of the country of similar extent, which I doubt not was the case, it was owing, in no small degree, to these town incorporations: first, in furnishing the education; and second, in the facilities they afforded for gatherings of the people and the discussion of the subject.

There was no extraordinary effort necessary to secure a meeting, whenever one was desired. The machinery for producing it was all ready. It only required to be put in operation. No stumps were needed on which to utter patriotic harangues. The meeting-houses were well adapted to that purpose. It was thus that great masses of the people were influenced to an active and ardent patriotism.

At the same time the most perfect facilities were furnished for a full knowledge, not only of those who were friendly to the crown, but of the various degrees of their hostility to the popular cause, from that of lukewarmness to that of rabid Toryism.

It was through these organizations that the way was prepared for resistance, not only in sentiment, but in material. Depots of military stores were provided, to a limited extent only; but, so far as such provision was made, it was mostly by the towns.

Great Britain rightly judged that a portion of the country so organized was the most dangerous; and all the events of the time led to the striking of the first blow here.

It was through these organizations that an industrious yeomanry while following the plough, and the diligent tenants of workshops while handling their tools, were converted into an armed soldiery, on the first news that the British had left the limits of Boston and were marching into the country. The dragons' teeth which produced that harvest were sown in the shape of farmers and mechanics, who, holding themselves in readiness, as "minute men," required but the heat of warlike intelligence to burst into full life and vigor as a patriotic army.

But for these towns, New England could not have been prompt to meet the crisis, and to assert the rights of the colonies by an armed resistance which made itself felt and respected from the very moment of the onset. By driving back the enemy discomfited, notwithstanding his partial success, she gave confidence in the result of the war, if war must come.

It was through their organization that law was enforced and order sustained, during the period when war had subverted the administration of justice, which had previously existed, and peace had not arrived to substitute another. The towns organized under their own provisional government, as in the days of the earliest settlement, adopted regulations, and instituted an authority which reduced the refractory to obedience, and prevented the state of anarchy which must otherwise have existed to a greater or less degree.

It was through these towns that the great mass of the people of New England were not only prepared to throw off an allegiance which had become oppressive, but that they had anticipated the action of Congress upon that subject. The several averments or accusations in that bill of indictment, the Declaration of Independence, had been previously asserted and sustained by resolutions, over and over again, in the town-meetings of New England.

It was through these organizations, and not through a want of patriotism elsewhere, that the support of the declaration was more effectual in New England than in any other of the colonies.

That New England, like other communities, has and has had unworthy men within her borders, is doubtless true; that her soil and her resources teach her the salutary lessons of economy, has become proverbial. Founding himself on these facts, her character for patriotism in the War of the Revolution has been recently assailed by an English historian of some distinction; and it may be proper to add a remark or two upon this subject, although it may lead to a restatement of some of the preceding matter.

Without intending any invidious comparisons, where in general all did well, and the credit of the successful issue is due to all, it is but justice to New England to declare, not only that in no other part of the country of the same extent was she excelled—nay, equalled—in her expenditure of blood and treasure, which has often been said, and always proved when the occasion required proof; but that in no other part of the country could the war have begun with the same preparation on the part of so many of the inhabitants, and under circumstances so well calculated to inspire confidence in the result; and that in no other part could there have been the same efficiency in carrying it on.

If New England had been overcome, the War of the Revolution would have been an unsuccessful rebellion. And it is but a small measure of justice to the towns of New England to say, that this state of preparation, and this efficiency, were owing to their organizations, to the consultation of the inhabitants in town-meetings assembled, and to their powers to provide for the exigency by ammunition, provisions, money, and soldiers, growing out of that organization, as has already been stated.

Stores of that great sinew of war, ammunition, the want of which was such a constant source of complaint, were found nowhere to the same extent as in New England; and much of it was provided by the towns.

Were supplies of provisions to be had at short notice? It was not by foraging among friends as if they were enemies, but the towns were called upon, and the supplies were generally forthcoming; not always, it is true, in the ample manner desired, for there was not always sufficient ability when the will consented.

Was money required to carry on the operation of a campaign? It was found nowhere so readily as in New England. Were soldiers needed to fill ranks in the army? A requisition was made upon the towns to furnish their quota of troops, and the call was not in vain. Was the pay which was offered inadequate, and men reluctant to assume more than their share of the burden of the contest, to the neglect of their proper business, and the ruin, perhaps, of their families? The inhabitants, in town-meeting called for the purpose, voted increased wages from the treasury of the town, (which, in other words, was by an assessment on themselves,) to make up the deficiency of a depreciated currency. And when, by repeated drafts in this way upon their resources, the general ability was somewhat exhausted, individual inhabitants, excited to action by the enthusiasm of these assemblages, became security for this additional payment, sometimes involving their whole property.

How much of the female fortitude and resolution which so nobly sustained the good cause may be traced to the town organization, or town-meetings, cannot be known. I intend to keep within the limits of fact, instead of entering the region of imagination.

When the Revolutionary contest was over, these organizations existed in the full exercise of their powers, requiring no change to carry the country onward to increased prosperity; and they still remain with undiminished usefulness.
